GIANT OLYMPIC IN AT MIDNIGHT

Newest and Biggest of Ocean Steamships Sighted Off Fire Island at 12:17.

AT HER PIER ABOUT 8:30 A. M.

Arrives with 500 Saloon Passengers Who Enjoyed All the Latest Luxuries of Ocean Travel—The News Abroad.

The marine observer at Sandy Hook was straining his eyes seaward at midnight last night for the lights of the new 45,000-ton White Star liner Olympic, the biggest ship in the world, steaming toward this port at nearly 22 knots an hour with 500 cabin passengers aboard. His vigil was rewarded at 12:17 A. M., when he sighted her east of Fire Island, incoming at full speed, several hours ahead of her scheduled time.

The Olympic was reported 433 miles east of the Ambrose Channel Lightship at 6:58 o'clock yesterday morning. Her commander, Capt. E. J. Smith, Commodore of the White Star fleet, wirelessed to the liner soon afterward that he expected to reach Quarantine about 3 o'clock this morning.

A revenue cutter to meet her will leave the Barge office landing at 6:30 A. M. As the liner, coming from Southampton via Cherbourg and Queenstown, has a clean bill of health, she will not be detained long at Quarantine by Dr. Doty, so that she will meet the revenue cutter on her way up the bay to her pier, at the foot of West Nineteenth Street, she should dock there about 8:30 o'clock.

The White Star pier, No. 59, has been extended temporarily for the accommodation of the Olympic and Titanic, her sister ship, after a long struggle between the White Star Line officials and the War Department at Washington. Owing to the somewhat slender construction of the extension to the pier the pilots say that the huge liner will have to be handled with great care while she is being docked.

One gentle jolt from such a floating mass, and the new section of the pier might be separated from the rest and float away down the river. It has already received one knock from the Celtic which shook the beams up somewhat but did not do any serious damage.

To dock the Olympic more easily there will be a fleet of twelve tugs at the pierhead, which will hold her back and prevent her from swinging over too hard on to the pier.

James Bruce Ismay, President of the International Mercantile Marine Company, is a passenger on the new liner with his wife, and Col. Thomas Denny of the famous Dumbarton firm of shipbuilders is making the trip to watch the developments of the triple engines, two of the reciprocating type, one on either side, and a cetnre low pressure turbine. Mr. Ismay and Col. Denny will return next Wednesday on the Olympic, for which already there are 700 first-class passengers booked. Manager Jeffries says there is still room in the first cabin for more.

According to wireless messages received from passengers aboard the Olympic she has done splendidly on her maiden voyage. She has been equipped with all the latest improvements for the amusement and safety of her passengers.

The Olympic is the largest ship that has ever entered the port of New York or any other port in the world. The Mauretania and the Lusitania lose their places as the leviathans of the Atlantic, but retain their speed records as a consolation. The Olympic is also the more costly. She represents anu investment of $10,000,000.

The dimensions of the Olympic are 882½ feet long and 92½ feet beam, with 66,000 tons displacement and a depth of 175 feet from the top of her funnels to her keel. Pier 59 North River was extended 100 feet to accomodate her. She is ninety feet longer than the Mauretania and the Lusitania and 13,000 tons bigger in size, and carries a crew of 850 officers and men.

Here are some of her other measruements: Height of funnels above casings, 62 feet; draught, 34 feet 6 inches; largest shell plates, 46 feet long and 1⅛ inches thick; number of decks, 11; number of watertight bulkheads, 15; capacity of double bottom, 5,700 tons; cargo capacity, 5,600 tons; number of passengers provided for, 2,650. Sixteen boats are carried at the davits on her top deck.

The swimming bath on the promenade deck is 33 feet by 14, with a depth of 9 feet of water. The huge rudder, which is operated electrically, weighs 100 tons; the anchors weigh 15½ tons each, the centre propeller 22 tons, and each of the two wing propellers 38 tons. Each link in the chain anchor weighs 175 pounds, the huge after bosses from which the three propeller shafts are suspended weigh in all 73½ tons.

In appearance the new leviathan has more of a bluff bow than the Mauretania or Lusitania, and resembles the lines of the Adriatic. She has four funnels, the last of which is used as a ventilator.

There are three passenger electric elevators in the first class sections and one in the second class. The bridge deck promenade is 550 feet long, which gives a good idea of the huge scale on which the vessel has been built. Five times around this deck measures more than a mile.

The width of the ship is poticable in the main dining saloon, which runs right across the ship, a distance of 90 feet, 114 feet in length, and contains seating accommodations for 532 persons. Its interior decoration is done in the style of the early seventeenth century. The White Star Line officials say that the Olympic will maintain an average speed of 21 knots and will make her landing here regularly on Wednesdays.

It is said that the bilge keels with which she has been fitted, combined with the machinery of reciprocating engines operating the two wing propellers with the centre turbine, eliminate all vibration, and serve to steady the ship in all kinds of weather.

According to reports of Capt. Smith sent by wireless to the office here, the Olympic encountered fine weather after leaving Queenstown last Thursday until

ZAPATA OBEYS DEFIANTLY.

Says He Will Retire—Empties His Rifle on Marble Floor of Hotel.

Special to The New York Times.

MEXICO CITY, June 20.—To the surprise of every one in Mexico City, Emiliano Zapata, Madero's Jefe de Armas at Cuernavaca, obeyed Madero's summons to answer the charges against him, and rolled into the city this afternoon in an automobile. He ordered that the big car be driven to the Hotel Coliseo, where he inquired gruffly for a room, pumped his rifle empty on the marble floor without deigning to pick up the cartridges, and clanked upstairs. He then removed his two big revolvers and gave them to an attendant, and sent for a bootblack.

This morning at 5 o'clock Zapata's chief of staff left this city with an automobile for Cuernavaca. On his arrival there Zapata and his brother were ready to start, and the return journey over fifty miles of mountain road was begun at once. During the entire trip Zapata sat with a gun grasped between his knees, and did not utter a single word. His men in Cuernavaca swear that if he is harmed or detained they will march on the capital.

Zapata and several friends took dinner in a downtown restaurant. Zapata was besieged by reporters, but except declaring "we are not ogres who eat raw babies," he said he would have nothing to give out to the press until after consulting Madero.

3 HURT IN ELEVATOR FALL.

Unexplained Accident to Electric Apparatus in Grand Central Palace.

An electric elevator in the new Grand Central Palace, Forty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue, failed to respond to the machinery of control when the operator, Samuel Simmons, tried to stop it at the first floor of the building yesterday afternoon about 5:30, and it fell to the bottom of the shaft. Twelve persons were in the car, and of this number three suffered painful but not dangerous injuries. They are:

BURACHMAN, ISAAC, 737 Adams Street, Hoboken. Possible internal injuries.

WATSON, ALFRED, Philadelphia, registered at the Vanderbilt Hotel, 395 Lexington Avenue. Contusion of the left knee.

Two ambulances from Flower Hospital took the injured men to the hospital at the foot of Sixty-third Street. Later in the evening Dr. Baer said that the injuries of Isaac Baruchman had not been fully determined, but that his condition did not appear to be dangerous. The fracture suffered by Harry Alberts had proved serious and would be slow to heal. The injury of Alfred Watson was only slight.

Samuel Simmons, the negro operator of the car, could give no reason or excuse for the accident other than that the car did not respond to the control. A stop was made at the sixth floor on the descent, and from that point the car sped rapidly downward. At the second floor, a passenger said, the car seemed to slow up. At the first floor, instead of coming to a stop, the speed of the car increased. The operator worked his lever in vain, and the safety appliance, for some reason not yet explained, failed to prevent the crash to the bottom of the shaft.

COMMISSION FOR TRENTON.

City Adopts New Form of Government—Vote 6,792 to 4,890.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 20.—Trenton to-day adopted the commission form of government, abolishing the offices of Mayor and Common Council and placing the whole of the government of the city, with the exception of the public schools, in the hands of five Commissioners to be elected within the next two months.

Because of a campaign unequaled in recent years for bitterness, an unusually large vote was polled, and interest in the contest continued unabated until the result of the contest was announced. The vote as recorded to-night, which will probably not vary more than two or three, was 6,792 for and 4,890 against. Only four of the fourteen wards of the city voted against the plan. Party lines were completely broken.

The next move will be to nominate and elect the Commissioners and then the new form of government will be put into effect.

The new form of government is made possible by the Walsh act which was passed by the Legislature last Winter in spite of the opposition of political bosses in all parts of the State. Gov. Wilson was heartily in favor of the change, and not only supported the bill in the Legislature but also advocated it by speeches during the campaign here and elsewhere.

HUHN AUTO HITS BOY.

Philadelphians Send Victim to Hospital and Chauffeur Surrenders.

An automobile in which were seated George Huhn and wife, of Philadelphia, struck William Doyle, aged 6 years, of 167 West Fifty-third Street, last night in West Fifty-fourth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, and so badly injured the lad that he is not expected to live. He was taken to the Roosevelt Hospital.

Mr. Huhn and his wife were returning to the country estate of George Brokaw, which Mr. Huhn recently rented for the Summer, at Great Neck. L. I., and were driving west in Fifty-fourth Street. Young Doyle and a number of other lads were playing tag, and the Doyle boy ran into the car before the chauffeur, Harold Jackson, could stop it.

Mr. Huhn and his wife jumped out of the car, placed the lad in it, and told the chauffeur to speed to the Roosevelt Hospital. They then took a surface car to continue their trip. At the hospital Dr. Weningen found that young Doyle had suffered concussion of the brain, a possible fracture of the skull, and internal injuries.

After leaving the boy at the hospital Jackson went in search of a policeman. At Fifty-eighth Street and Ninth Avenue he found Policeman Keith, told him what had happened, and, after being complimented on his action, was taken to the West Forty-seventh Street Station, where he was locked upon charge of assault and operating a car without a license.

In the Men's Court Jackson said he had been informed by a friend that he could operate an auto for a month before applying for a license. The Magistrate told him his ignorance would cost him $10, which was not paid.

LEA'S BLOOD SAVES WIFE.

Mrs. Lea Stronger and Senator to Leave Hospital in Few Days.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Mrs. Luke Lea, whose life was despaired of until the transfusion of blood from her husband, Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee, on Sunday, was decidedly better to-day.

Senator Lea, greatly weakened by the loss of blood he gave up in the heroic effort to save his wife's life, was able to walk about. He will be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

CORONATION DINNER A SCENE OF SPLENDOR

MANY AT SHAKESPEARE BALL

King Gives Special Audience to Ambassador Hammond, Who Presents a Letter from President Taft.

LONDON, June 20.—One of the most remarkable banquets that palace of King or Emperor ever witnessed and the gorgeous Shakespeare ball under the auspices of noted society leaders stand forth as the principal features of the second day of coronation week.

The banquet in Buckingham Palace tonight was a scene of imperial grandeur. The King and Queen entertained the visiting and English royalties, all the special foreign delegations, the foreign Ambassadors and Ministers, the officers of state, and the royal households, members of the Cabinet and ex-Cabinet Ministers, and the heads of the Church, judiciary, army, and navy.

The two largest apartments in the palace, the ballroom and the picture gallery which adjoins it, were utilized as a banqueting hall. On the tables was displayed the royal gold plate, used only on historic occasions, the value of which is estimated at $15,000,000, while its weight is eight tons. This plate for the most part was collected in the reigns of the four Georges. The principal piece is a massive peacock captured in one of the Indian wars, the tail being studded with diamonds. Cut glass worth a fortune, ivory vessels hundreds of years old, and old wines dating back more than a century were on the board.

On the walls of the gallery are more than 800 pictures. The decorations of both rooms are largely gilt, and this background was embellished with banks of palms and giant lilies, while orchids, roses, and ferns were on the tables. Yeomen of the Guard were ranged about the walls, and all the diners wore their richest uniforms, decorations, gowns, and jewels.

The Shakespeare Ball.

The Shakespeare ball was held in the Albert Hall, which was elaborately decorated. The dancers numbered thousands, while 400 boxes were occupied by the representatives of foreign nations and the most prominent British officials. As many as twenty-nine quadrilles were danced simultaneously, the participants representing groups of characters from Shakespeare's plays. Leading actors and actresses took part in these quadrilles, together with the leaders of the smart set. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince Louis and Princess Victoria of Battenberg, Prince Alexander of Teck, Prince and Princess Henry of Prussia, the German Crown Price, Frederick William, and the Crown Princess, and the Turkish, Russian, Austrian, Japanese, Greek, Danish, and American representatives were present.

These functions were only part of the day's events. In the morning the King received most of the foreign envoys formally. In the afternoon, with the Queen, he went through a rehearsal of the coronation at the Abbey, and later gave a special audience to John Hays Hammond, who presented to his Majesty a letter from President Taft. The King also received the Chinese, Japanese, Turkish, and Persian envoys, who presented decorations from their sovereigns.

The other important events of the day included luncheons to the overseas Premiers and Mayors, a party given by the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, and a review of the Colonial troops by the War Secretary, Lard Haldane.

Perfect Weather in London.

This has been a perfect Summer day, and the population is imbued with the carnival spirit as much as is ever possible with Englishmen. To-night countless electric globes arranged in various designs illuminate the streets, which from curb to curb are filled with hundreds of thousands of persons. Through the masses navigates every sort of vehicle imaginable—motors, 'buses, drays, and carts filled with sightseers, advertising vans with minstrels, and donkey wagons driven by costermongers. St. James's Park and the West End Club region are jammed to suffocation.

Enormous crowds gathered early to-day in the vicinity of Westminster Abbey, where the peers and peeresses furnished a free show, many arriving for the coronation rehearsal wearing their robes and carrying their coronets, while there were great thongs near Buckingham Palace to watch the coming and going of the uniformed envoys.

The letter from President Taft which Special Ambassador Hammond presented to King George this afternoon wished the British monarch a long life and reign. The delivery of the American President's congratulations was followed by a chat between his Majesty and the Special Ambassador. Mr. Hammond subsequently attended a reception given by Sir Richard Solomon, High Commissioner for the Union of South Africa, in honor of Louis Botha, Premier of the Union. Sir Richard was counsel for Mr. Hammond when the latter was being tried for his life after the Jameson raid of 1895. It was the first time the two men had met since Mr. Hammond purchased his pardon for $125,000 from the late President Kruger.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond lunched to-day at Kensington Palace as the guests of Princess Louise, who is an old friend of the Hammonds. At the luncheon they met Princess Henry of Battenberg and a small party.

Hammond Sits with Royalties.

At last night's banquet at Buckingham Palace, given by the King and Queen to the special representatives of the various powers, Mr. Hammond took in Princess Alexander of Teck, the Queen's sister-in-law. Seated at the same table with the American Special Ambassador were Prince Henry of Prussia, the Chinese Prince Tsai-Chien, the eldest son of the Regent of China; the hereditary Princess of Saxe-Meiningen, who is a sister of Emperor William, and the Prince of Monaco. Before the dinner Mr. Hammond was introduced to the King by the Duke of Connaught, and after dinner the Special Ambassador introduced his staff to his Majesty.

The scheme of decoration of Stratton House, Piccadilly, which W. L. Burdette-Coutts has loaned to Mr. Hammond, is one of the prettiest and most elaborate along the route of the coronation procession. The whole front of the house is covered with scarlet ramblers, the roses being arranged in the shape of a crown and the initials "G." and "M." For illumination the house is outlined in varicolored electric lights, with the American Eagle and the Stars and Stripes within a circle of light.

Many of the most notable coronation guests have been in London for a week or more, but in the past two days special trains have brought scores of other foreign representatives to the capital. These include Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany and the Crown Princess, Prince Henry of Prussia, Archduke Franz Josef of Austria-Hungary, Prince and Princess Maximilian of Baden, Prince Rupert of Bavaria, Prince de Ligne of

SAILORS' STRIKE HERE ENDS AT CONFERENCE

Union Leader Announces That the Coast Lines Have Agreed to Grant Chief Demands.

STRIKERS ARE JUBILANT

Increase of Pay, Better Food, and Better Quarters Among the Concessions Said to Have Been Made.

Following a conference between officials of the various steamship companies and the representatives of the striking seamen, members of the International Seamen's Union, last night in the office of the Old Dominion Steamship Line, at Pier 25, North River, H. P. Griffin, Vice President of the International Seamen's Union, said the strike was at an end. He further said that there had been concessions on both sides, but that the various steamship companies had met the chief requests of the men and that only minor details remained to be adjusted.

The steamship companies issued no statement in regard to the conference.

When Griffin later appeared at the strikers' headquarters, 400 West Street, and announced the issue he was lifted on the shoulders of the enthusiastic seamen and carried into the hall.

Griffin said that the representatives of the Morgan Line, the Savannah Line, the Old Dominion Line, and the Mallory Line had agreed to the chief demands of the union—all that they had held out for. The conference began at 5:30 o'clock and it was nearly 11 o'clock before it ended.

Those sharing in it as given out by Griffin were William H. Pleasant, Vice President of the Savannah Line; H. R. Walker, President and General Manager of the Old Dominion Line; J. S. Raymonds, Assistant General Manager of the Clyde and Mallory Lines; C. W. Junger, General Manager of the Morgan Line; John J. Kelly, representing the cooks and stewards' organization; Richard H. Cassen of the Sailors' Union; James Vidal and William Andretsky of the Firemen's Union.

The agreement reached included the granting of an increase of $2.50 a month to the strikers with the exception of those employed on the Old Dominion Line. The union workers on the Old Dominion were satisfied with their wages. The companies also agreed, according to Griffin, to the demands for better quarters, better food, and to other demands of less importance.

The sailors will also get their meals aboard ship when in port instead of paying them 50 cents a day to pay their board ashore.

Owing to the lateness of the hour the agreement was given out informally, Griffin stating that he had been authorized to speak for the companies and strikers in the matter of the adjustment. The Vice President of the International Seamen's Union went directly from the offices of the Old Dominion Company to the strikers' headquarters. As he approached the building a score or more of the seamen and steamshipmen saw him and ran forward.

"We have won," shouted Griffin. The men cheered, then raised him on their shoulders and hurried him into the hall.

As a squad of police was escorting some negro strikebreakers down West Eleventh Street to the Morgan Line pier at the foot of West Eleventh Street before the settlement was announced a crowd of strikers fell in behind the police and shouted and jeered at them. Several stones were thrown, and one of the strikers, Salvatore Ureta of 514 Canal Street, was locked up in the Charles Street Station.

CAN'T SEE NAVAL REVIEW.

Thousands Will Be Disappointed Because of the Seamen's Strike.

LONDON, June 20.—The seamen's strike is playing havoc with the plans of those who had arranged to witness the great naval review by King George at Spithead on Saturday.

In addition to the four ocean-going vessels of the Union-Castle Line, the sailing of which for the naval review was canceled last night, the Royal Mail Steam Packet Line announced to-day that it was obliged to withdraw four of its big ships which had been chartered to attend the sea pageant.

These eight ships long ago sold out their entire accommodations for Saturday and thus thousands at the last moment are prevented from witnessing the spectacle.

From Liverpool comes the news that at a meeting of the Cunard Line officials with a deputation of seamen, firemen, and stewards a settlement of all points in dispute was reached.

It is stated in other dispatches from Liverpool that the American and Dominion Lines have granted the same concessions as the Cunard Line, but as the conceding lines are outside the Shipping Federation, which thus far refuses to compromise, there is no present prospect of an end of the struggle.

At Southampton the situation is rather worse. The White Star and American Line representatives have wired to their agents elsewhere to divert all cargo to other ports.

A serious disturbance is reported from Glasgow. Last night strikers stormed a shed where non-unionists were working and fired boxes and oil barrels. They were dispersed only after charges by the police, who used their clubs and also turned streams of water upon the rioters.

LIVERPOOL, June 20.—The Cunard, White Star, and Allan lines to-day conceded the advances demanded by the striking seamen and arranged a compromise on other points with the strikers.

NEW SOIL FOR CENTRAL PARK

Board of Aldermen Authorizes $150,000 Stock Issue for the Work.

Central Park soil is to be improved at once. At the request of Park Commissioner Stover and after hearing a report on the condition of the soil, the Board of Aldermen, at yesterday's meeting, authorized the issue of $150,000 in corporate stock for the adoption of the recommendations contained in the report. As it will take time to carry out these recommendations, the board decided to appropriate $50,000 immediately for the work, and to apportion the remaining $100,000 for next year and the year after.

The new treatment will consist in part of plowing up the open spaces and worn-out sections, particularly, and sowing them in clover and other grasses, to form a heavy turf, which will hold moisture.

WOOL BILL PASSES, 221 TO 100, IN HOUSE

Twenty-six Republicans Vote for It and Only One Democrat in the Negative.

CUTS THE TARIFF IN HALF

In Effect Next January Unless the Senate Blocks It—Taft's Message Arrives Late.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—After a lifeless front of opposition on part of the Republicans, the Democrats to-day passed their Wool bill by a large majority. The Republicans in the final showdown mustered hardly more than one-fourth of the House. For the bill were 194 Democrats, 26 Republicans, and 1 Socialist. Against it were 99 Republicans and 1 Democrat—the latter being Representative Francis of Ohio, who comes from a sheep-raising district. The result is a great victory for the new majority and is the third bill that it has sent to the Senate in compliance with the pledge of the party to correct the distortions of protection in the Payne-Aldrich tariff, the first being the Reciprocity Agreement bill and the second the Free List bill.

The most favorable vote of the day for the Republicans came on Mr. Mann's motion to recommit the bill to be reconsidered in Ways and Means after the Tariff Board shall have furnished the House with the data on the wool industry that are now being collected. The motion was defeated by a vote of 189 to 118, many Republicans who stood with Mann lining up for the bill on final vote.

The most suggestive thing in the vote is the fact that men who never before repudiated a Republican tariff measure voted with the Democrats. The Kansas delegation voted solidly for the bill, and Minnesota, Iowa, and Wisconsin gave strong support to it. The Republicans who voted for the bill were Anthony of Kansas, Anderson of Minnesota, Campbell of Kansas, Davis of Minnesota, French of Idaho, Haughen of Iowa, Helgsen of North Dakota, Jackson of Kansas, Kent of California, La Follette of Washington, Lenroot of Wisconsin, Lindbergh of Minnesota, Madison of Kansas, Miller of Minnesota, Morse of Wisconsin, Murdock of Kansas, Nelson of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska, Sloan of Nebraska, Steenerson, Stephens, and Volstead, Wood of Iowa, and Young of Kansas.

There was a rustle of surprise at some of the votes, especially of Anthony and Campbell of Kansas, who have heretofore stood immovably with the standpatters.

There were one or two dramatic incidents of the debate. The Republicans were slow to offer amendments and the Democrats hardly got their steam roller oiled during the afternoon, there was so little use for it, but it worked in good order whenever it was brought out.

Victor Murdock of Kansas made a fine fight for free "tops" and gave a nice explanation of the distinction between worsteds and woolens—combed and carded wool—and then appealed to the Democrats to use their magnificent opportunity actually to reduce the cost of living in keeping with their party pledges. Mr. Hill of Connecticut attempted to pierce Murdock's armor two or three times, but it stood proof against his onslaughts.

Mr. Hill created a diversion by exhibiting to the House a beautiful Russian shawl which he said he had bought for $25 and on which he paid 60 per cent. duty, too little by far, he claimed. Such a shawl would have cost in the United States, he declared, fully $150 and we could not duplicate it. The argument from the shawl was that if the Democratic bill should become law we could never hope to make any such fabric in the United States. Mr. Hill also showed some marvelously fine thread that he had bought abroad, and which we could not and never had duplicated in this country—and of course never would if the bill should go on the statute books.

Representative Gray of Indiana offered an amendment to replace raw wool on the free list, and to recommit the bill to the committee with instructions that manufacturers of wool be reduced to 20 per cent. ad valorem. This was lost.

The bill places a duty of 20 per cent. ad valorem on raw wool imports as against an average duty of a little more than 44 per cent. ad valorem under the present law. On partly manufactured wool and on products manufactured in whole, or in part from wool, the average duty under the proposed law would be about 42.5 per cent. ad valorem as compared with the present average ad valorem duty of more than 90 per cent. The Ways and Means Committee has estimated the bill would reduce the annual revenue under the woolen schedule of the tariff by a little more than $1,000,000.

The bill prescribes that it shall be in effect on Jan. 1 next, but it is not believed that the bill will pass the Senate at this session.

After the roll call had been taken and the House was on the point of adjourning suddenly attention was called to the fact that a message had come from the White House while the debate was on. It was the President's response to a resolution calling for data from the Tariff Board on wool, and the President informed the House that the work of the board had progressed such a little way now that it would not be practicable to bring forward any new light on the subject until December.

The House received the message with a hearty laugh. Mr. Cooper of Wisconsin asked why it was that the message should have been suppressed apparently until after the vote on the bill, and Mr. Mann explained that he and Mr. Underwood had looked it over and decided that as it came in while the House was in debate and the Speaker was out of the chamber they would not call attention to it until after the bill had been voted on.

INSISTED ON TITIAN HAIR.

Mr. Earle Will Give It to Mrs. Balfour in a Photograph and She Must Pay.

William P. S. Earle, a brother of Ferdinand Pinney Earle, who makes photographs and colors them, made for Mrs. Louise Balfour a striking photograph of herself. Mrs. Balfour, who says she is a relative of the former British Premier, liked the photograph, all but the color of the hair. It was just a plain brown, whereas the color she wished to have was genuine Titian.

There were objections, and after them there was a visit to Mr. Earle's studio with a rejected photograph, notice being given at the same time that a bill for $60 for making it would not be honored.

Earle, the photographer, sued, demanding damages in the sum of $60, and the case came up for a hearing before Judge Hoffman in the Municipal Court. J. Egan was legal counsel for Earle, and Warren Leslie represented Mrs. Balfour. Judge Hoffman, after looking at the photograph, expressed the opinion that $60 was not an excessive price for it. He then heard Mrs. Balfour's objections to the color of the hair, and on receiving a suggestion from Mr. Earle to the effect that this defect could be remedied by the application of fresh coloring matter, rendered a decision in Earle's favor. The photograph, redone in the Titian hue, will be delivered next week.

HAIL PELTS ASBURY PARK.

High Wind and Heavy Rain Help to Do Damage at the Resort.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 20.—For twenty minutes this afternoon hail as big as marbles fell in Asbury Park, streets were awash from curb to curb with rain, and lightning and a high wind struck down shade trees and tore off awnings. There was no shower at Long Branch, eight miles north. At Spring Lake, a like distance south, there was only a patter of rain.

Locally the worst damage was caused by the hail, which broke many windows and destroyed gardens. Chimneys and cupolas were torn off by the high wind and cellars were flooded by the rain. Benches along the boardwalk were swept into the ocean. Several shade trees were splintered by lightning, but there was no damage to buildings. Horses at the station hack stands were badly battered by the hail.

C. B. FOR CUNARD SKIPPER.

Capt. Charles of the Lusitania Learns He's in the Coronation Honor List.

Capt. J. T. W. Charles, R. N. R., Royal Division, commander of the Cunard liner Lusitania, received this cable dispatch yesterday from the Liverpool office of the company:

> Congratulations on your coronation honors as Commander of the Bath.
> CUNARD LINE.

The arrival of this dispatch yesterday morning was the first intimation Capt. Charles had received that King George had conferred a C. B. upon him. The senior officers, including the purser, chief engineer, and chief steward, went to the Captain's cabin and congratulated him on the distinction he had received, Dr. James Pointon making a little speech on behalf of his colleagues. The Captain returned his thanks.

Bradley Beach Council to Bar "Cutaways" and Restrict Sunday Bathing.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 20.—Bathing costumes, which the Rev. J. B. Kulp complains are "more cutaway than costume," are not to be tolerated in Bradley Beach. In the seclusion of that resort Summer people have heretofore walked through the streets in the costumes designed for beach wear and have been unmolested.

The new styles, especially those of the women, however, have shocked not alone Mr. Kulp, but other members of the Bradley Beach Methodist Church. The Council will pass an ordinance prohibiting the wearing of bathing costumes in the streets and of exaggerated "cutaways" on the beach. Sunday bathing, too, will be limited to half a day.

NEW YELLOWSTONE GEYSER.

Named the Harvard in Honor of Alumni in the Park at the Time.

Special to The New York Times.

LIVINGSTON, Mont., June 20.—A large new geyser erupted in Norris Geyser Basin in Yellowstone National Park last Thursday, according to a dispatch received here to-night. The new geyser has been named The Harvard, in honor of the delegation of Harvard alumni, which arrived in Yellowstone Park on the same day the geyser was discovered. They had been attending the convention of Harvard clubs.

The geyser plays to a height of over 100 feet. The discovery of the new geyser was confirmed in a message here to-night from H. W. Childs, President of the Yellowstone Park Hotel Company.

CHOLERA ON ANOTHER SHIP.

Two Cases on an Italian Liner Are Sent to Swinburne Island.

On the arrival of the Italian liner Duca degli Abruzzi from Naples at Quarantine yesterdady it was discovered that there were two cases of cholera on board and the liner was detained while the patients were transferred to Swinburne Island. Both are members of the ship's crew.

The steerage passengers were transferred later to Hoffman Island for observation, after which the ship was disinfected before she was allowed to proceed to her pier and land the cabin passengers.

Two deaths occurred on the voyage in the steerage, one a man who died of meningitis and the other a child, from an injury. There were 25 first, 45 second cabin, and 635 steerage passengers on the ship.

TEST OF BIGGEST WARSHIP.

Utah to Make Trial Trip on Monday Off Maine Coast.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—The battleship Utah, the largest warship so far completed for the United States Navy, left the New York Shipbuilding Company's yard at Camden to-day for her official trial off the New England Coast. The new ship must develop a speed of 20¾ knots an hour to comply with the Government's requirements. The speed test will take place probably next Monday over the measured course off Rockland, Me.

The Utah has a displacement of 21,875 tons, while the battleship Delaware, the biggest ship in the fleet now assembled off Portsmouth, England, for the coronation of King George, has a displacement of 20,000 tons.

WON WITH THE WOMAN VOTE.

Larchmont Village Blacksmith Elected Collector of Taxes.

Special to The New York Times.

LARCHMONT, N. Y., June 20.—The annual village election of Larchmont-on-the-Sound to-day brought out several women of society who voted for the various village officers and at the same time assisted in carrying the appropriation of $25,000 for the new village sidewalks.

The only contest for village officers was between Philip Mandeville, the Democratic nominee, and who is the village horseshoer, and Joseph De Virin, the Republican candidate, a newsdealer, for Tax Collector.

The contest was one of the warmest ever held in Larchmont, and the vote, considering the fact that many members of the Larchmont Yacht Club, who reside in that place, were at their offices in Manhattan, was large. Automobiles, carriages, and trolley cars were used in bringing the voters to the village hall, where the poll was held. Mr. Mandeville won by three majority, receiving 247 votes, while his opponent received 244.

Among the women who voted are Mrs. A. B. Alley, Mrs. William J. Moran, Mrs. W. H. Seaich, Mrs. A. H. Cohen, Mrs. W. H. Merrill, Mrs. E. G. Unitt, Mrs. H. B. Southwick, Mrs. William E. Webb, Jr., and Miss Clara Davidson.

OUST ARCHITECT WHO DESIGNED THE CATHEDRAL

ORIGINAL PLANS ABANDONED

Vision of the Completed Structure Is Constantly Broadening, Says Dean Grosvenor.

TO GROW UNHAMPERED NOW

Planned Part by Part, a Triumphal Fruition Is Expected Possibly in Fifty Years.

MR. LA FARGE NOT WARNED

Went Abroad with No Inkling of a Change—Trustees Had Right to Terminate His Contract.

C. Grant La Farge is no longer the architect of the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine, the $10,000,000 edifice which is ultimately to crown Morningside Heights, and for which he and his partner, the late George L. Heins, drew the plans twenty years ago. Mr. La Farge has been succeeded by Ralph Adams Cram, the church builder of this city and Boston, who is to be known as the consulting architect.

This means that Mr. La Farge is to be consulted no more regarding future work on the cathedral, which is only about one-third finished, and if he is to do any more work on it or any of its chapels at all he will have to be specifically invited to do so by Mr. Cram, his successor, an action which in the end will have to be approved by the Cathedral Trustees.

The situation which has developed in the last few weeks is none the less interesting from the fact that Mr. La Farge, who is abroad, knew nothing of it until apprised of it by cable by his partner, Benjamin W. Morris, who succeeded the late Mr. Heins in the firm. Mr. La Farge's office, in fact, got its first intimation of what was going on, it is understood, from a letter written by Mr. Cram to Mr. La Farge on June 6, after he had sailed for Europe. Mr. Morris would not tell last night what were the contents of this letter, but intimated that Mr. Cram had taken the position that he would not accept the flattering offer from the Cathedral Trustees unless the American Institute of Architects ruled that in doing so he was not violating the ethics of the profession.

Mr. La Farge does not yet understand the situation clearly, but only so much of it as Mr. Morris has been able to explain in meagre cablegrams. He had gone abroad on private business, but on hearing what had been done in his absence at once decided to return to New York, and so cabled Mr. Morris. Mr. Morris thought he was in Paris last night, and that he would sail for New York to-day. What he can do when he arrives Mr. Morris could give no intimation. His contract with the Trustees expired with the completion and dedication a few weeks ago of the choir, and no other immediate work, except several chapels for which plans are already being drawn by other architects, was contemplated until further funds had been amassed, but it is said that he never had an intimation that the contract would not be renewed when other important steps in construction were to be taken.

Original Plans Never Followed.

Simultaneously with the news of Mr. Cram's selection comes also the statement from the Rev. Dr. William M. Grosvenor, the newly elected dean of the Cathedral and since the death of Dr. Huntington Chairman of the Building or Fabric Committee of the Trustees, that even so far the construction of the cathedral has not progressed according to the plans of Heins & La Farge, and that the structure when completed will be very different looking from the exterior then designed and now known all over the country through picture postal cards and other photographs. It is to be bigger and finer than ever before contemplated, but Dr. Grosvenor said he could give no idea what it would look like in the end, for that would be fifty years hence, and doubtless many changes in plans would be made. He said that a comparison of the present incomplete structure and the finished edifice as pictured in the architect's drawing of the exterior would show that not a single window had been placed where Heins & La Farge designed it should be.

In the absence of Mr. La Farge it was extremely difficult to get last night an authoritative statement in explanation of the Trustees' apparent slight to him in dropping the man who with his partner drew the original plans, as their chief adviser in further construction. Other architects of the city do regard their action as a slight to Mr. La Farge, and friends of Mr. Cram were eager to state last night that he hesitated long in taking the commission, and, in fact, flatly refused to do so until he became convinced that the Trustees had made up their minds not to employ Mr. La Farge as consulting architect, and if he didn't accept, would seek some other architect even if they had to go abroad to find one that would take the place.

But Bishop Greer and Dean Grosvenor were willing to give explanations for the Trustees, which fell short only of why Mr. Cram had been selected when the natural choice would seem to fall on the original architect who had given twenty years of his life to a study of the cathedral.

Had Right to Terminate Contract.

Bishop Greer, who is President of the Trustees, said they had acted entirely in their rights, though he was not acquainted with the details of the transaction. He did not think, in fact, that the agreement with Mr. Cram had been fully made, though quite sure that it would go through without hitch.

"The original contract for the designs for the Cathedral," said he, "were made with Heins & La Farge. They provided that in the event of the dissolution of the architectural firm either by agreement or by the death of one of its members, either the Cathedral Trustees or the surviving member of the firm, in the event of a death, would have the right to terminate the contract, leaving the Trustees free to make any other arrangements they saw fit. Mr. Heins died about four years ago, and the Trustees terminated their first contract with the firm, of which Mr. La Farge was the surviving member, shortly after that time. But they made new contracts with Mr. La Farge for the completion of such work as was then in progress. That work, including the choir, recently dedicated, was completed some weeks ago, and the second contract with Mr. La Farge thus automatically expired. Now Mr. Cram has been selected consulting architect. That is all."

Bishop Greer was asked if there was any reason why Mr. La Farge had not been chosen, as he was familiar with the work.

"You had better ask Dr. Grosvenor about that," he replied.

THE CATHEDRAL OF ST JOHN THE DIVINE AS PLANNED BY HEINS AND LA FARGE

Plans Have Broadened, Says Dr. Grosvenor.

Dr. Grosvenor was reached at his Summer home, at New Canaan, Conn. He said there was no mystery about the change in architects; rather a change and a broadening of the views of the Trustees, and consequently an enlargement of the plans for the cathedral. He related, as had Bishop Greer, how the first contract was terminated at the death of Mr. Heins, and then said:

"This new cathedral is to be the biggest and finest ecclesiastical structure in modern times, with the single exception of the new cathedral of Liverpool. It is too big for one man. It is to be no one-man affair. It is to be such a structure as should have the fruits of the best minds in the world and the opinions of the greatest experts on ecclesiastical architecture in the world. It is to be made as fine and as beautiful as it is possible for such a structure to be made.

"The determination reached by the Trustees to bring this to pass will result in the enlargement of the original plans for the cathedral. The Trustees have greatly broadened their views about it, and in this situation they have decided to appoint Mr. Ralph Adams Cram, an eminent architect of Boston and New York, to be their consulting architect. There is to be no written contract with him, but simply a verbal agreement that he shall be the Trustees' adviser on all architectural developments of the cathedral.

"He is to act in this manner: For the coming additions to the building Mr. Cram will select the architect for the specific work with the approval of the Fabric Committee and the whole body of Trustees. There are to be no competitions. You may say for me that I do not approve of competitions. When the architect selected shall have finished his design he will submit it to Mr. Cram who will reject it at once and direct another if he sees fit. However, if he thinks well of the design submitted, he will lay it before the Fabric Committee. If this committee approves of it, the design will then be laid before the Trustees in a body, and there final action will be taken."

When asked to explain why the change of contracts had involved the selection of a consulting architect instead of a renewal of the contract with Mr. La Farge, Dr. Grosvenor said:

"This matter was too large and too important to be tied up to the judgment of one man, or to rest on the decision of one man. It is not a thing to be done hastily. It is a thing to be done by the best minds to be found in the whole world."

Trustees Expect Commendation.

"Has there been any criticism of Mr. La Farge?" Dr. Grosvenor was asked.

"Did you ever hear of an architect who was connected with a big work who was not criticised?" he replied rather indefinitely. Then he added: "I feel sure that when the people of New York learn what the Trustees have done and why they have done it there will be no criticism, but only commendation. I am very glad to tell you all about it, for I want the people to know about the Cathedral."

Dr. Grosvenor was asked if the engagement of Mr. Cram did not mean the complete severance of all relations between the Cathedral and Mr. La Farge.

"Well, you see," he explained, "his contract with the Trustees had already expired when the work on which he had been engaged since the death of Mr. Heins was completed, the last big work being the choir, not long ago dedicated, but it is possible for him to be selected by Mr. Cram or the Trustees for any specific work, just as for any other architect to be chosen. If his design is approved by Mr. Cram, and then by the Fabric Committee, and finally by the Trustees, he will get the work."

Friends of Mr. La Farge were willing to predict last night that he would not submit designs for parts of the cathedral, which he had designed as a whole, the new designs to be passed upon by another architect, who had been chosen to a chief place in the counsels of the Trustees, to which he had a right to aspire.

No Telling What Final Form Will Be.

"Well, Doctor," the reporter remarked, "we are to print cuts to-morrow both of the cathedral as it is now and as, according to the original design, it will look when finished."

"Don't print the cut of the original drawing," advised Dean Grosvenor earnestly. "It won't look anything like it. It is not like it now and won't be like it when it is completed. The Heins-La Farge plan is not being followed and never has been closely followed."

Here Dean Grosvenor was told that every one was familiar with the proposed exterior appearance of the cathedral, through photographs and picture postal cards everywhere displayed.

"Well, that doesn't matter," he said. "They are not true pictures. You may take any photograph of the original drawings you choose and compare it with the structure as far as erected and you will not find a single window where in the original plans it is placed.

"What will it look like when it is finished? I cannot tell. That will be fifty years from now, perhaps, and who knows what changes in plans already drawn, or even to be drawn, may be found desirable before the expiration of that period."

Dr. Grosvenor appeared to have the idea that the general architectural design would be as much a development as the construction itself.

"You see," he said in this connection, "this is not to be a big steel structure which may be thrown together after a pattern in a few months, but a great edifice of stone and marble which is to be builded slowly to take rank as one of the greatest architectural achievements of modern times, and important details or even general plans cannot be always decided beforehand."

Dr. Grosvenor said at this point also that there would be no halt in the work of erecting the Cathedral, and announced several memorial gifts, which he said had not hitherto been made public. One was the donation of $20,000 from Mrs. Russell Sage for the pulpit of the Cathedral, and another was $150,000 from Mrs. J. J. Blodgett for the erection of a choir school. The Dean used the selection of design for the proposed choir school, the chapel to be given by Mrs. George L. Rives to cost $100,000, and the chapels in honor of Bishop Potter and Dr. Huntington as an illustration of how the new scheme for the completion of the Cathedral will work out.

"Take these cases," he said. "The plans for the chapel to be given by Mrs. Rives, for instance, will be drawn by Thomas Hastings of Carère & Hastings. Mr. Cram will advise the trustees on the suitability of the plans, and if on his advice and the judgment of the trustees they are the best possible plans, the chapel will be erected according to them."

It is understood that the determination to employ Mr. Cram instead of Mr. La Farge originated with the Fabric or Building Committee of the trustees, but has the sympathy of a large majority of the board, which is largely guided in the matter of construction of the Cathedral by the committee's judgment. Dean Grosvenor is Chairman of the committee, and its other members are the Rev. Dr. W. T. Manning, rector of Trinity Church; the Rev. Dr. J. Lewis Parks of the General Theological Seminary, the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires of St. Thomas's Church, Charles F. Hoffmann, J. Roosevelt Roosevelt, George Macculoch Miller, and Henry Lewis Morris.

None of them who could be seen would venture an opinion for publication as to the choice of Mr. Cram in preference to Mr. La Farge, all referring this question to Dean Grosvenor, who had said the problem was too big to rest on one man's judgment.

No Warning to Mr. La Farge.

Mr. Morris, Mr. La Farge's partner, was the only man to be seen last night who could speak for Mr. La Farge. When inquiry was made early in the afternoon at Mr. La Farge's office, Mr. Morris had left for the day, and it was said that it was not believed that Mr. La Farge knew anything about the move by the Cathedral Trustees before he had left for Europe. Mr. Morris was found later at his home in Mount Kisco, Westchester County.

"Mr. La Farge knew absolutely nothing about the prospective employment of Mr. Cram before leaving New York," said Mr. Morris. "We knew nothing of it at the office until June 6, when a letter came for Mr. La Farge from Mr. Cram, apprising him of the offer made by the Trustees. The further contents of that letter I do not feel at liberty to tell you, but I have understood that Mr. Cram made his acceptance of the Trustees' offer conditional on a decision by the New York Chapter of the Institute of American Architects that there was nothing unprofessional in his doing so.

"I got in touch with Mr. La Farge, who had just completed his contract with the Trustees for the erection of the choir and had gone abroad on private business, by cable, and laid the matter before him briefly but as clearly as I could. He is coming back to this country at once as a result, though I cannot predict what action, if any, he will take or can take. He will probably sail to-morrow, and will be here early next week.

"Further than to say," added Mr. Morris, "that Mr. Cram did not inform Mr. La Farge what was being done until action had been practically completed, I cannot tell you. This is by no means all I know, but it is all I can tell you."

Mr. Morris said he understood that the original contract with Mr. La Farge had been terminated by the Trustees four years ago at the time of Mr. Heins's death, that more recent contracts were for specific work which was under way when Mr. Heins died, and that the Trustees were within their rights in engaging some other architect to direct the further erection of the cathedral.

Little light on Mr. Cram's new association with the cathedral Trustees was to be obtained at his New York office, 170 Fifth Avenue. He was said to be at his Boston office, at 15 Beacon Street. The firm is composed of Mr. Cram, the senior member, and Messrs. Bertran G. Goodhue and Frank W. Ferguson. Mr. Goodhue admitted that negotiations were in progress for Mr. Cram to be consulting architect to the cathedral, but as far as he knew were not completed. He did not know whether or not Mr. La Farge had been consulted by any one before the offer was made to Mr. Cram, but thought not.

He said that it was a mistake to say that the La Farge plans had not been followed in the construction of the Cathedral to the present. The plans had been modified, it is true, but by Mr. La Farge himself, sometimes on his own initiative, and sometimes at the suggestion of the Trustees. Mr. Goodhue said Mr. Cram was very reluctant to have anything to do with the Cathedral unless Mr. La Farge was retained. When the offer came to him, he wrote to Dean Grosvenor suggesting that instead of appointing him alone as the consulting architect, a commission be named consisting of Mr. La Farge, Henry Vaughan, Mr. Cram's rival church builder of Boston, and himself. Mr. Goodhue would not say what Dean Grosvenor replied to this, but it is known that the reply was unfavorable.

A number of architects, who were friends of both Mr. Cram and Mr. La Farge, were anxious last night to make it plain that Mr. Cram had done nothing unprofessional in accepting the Trustees' offer. He had not in any way whatever solicited it, they said, and had, in fact, repelled it until assured that if he didn't take it some one else, possibly a foreigner, would be invited to do so. He wrote a letter to this effect, it is understood, to Walter Cook, the architect of 3 West Twenty-ninth Street, but Mr. Cook said last night that, while he understood the attitude of Mr. Cram to have been as stated, he could not give out the letter, as it was personal and not intended for publication.

Mr. Cram is one of the best-known architects of churches in the United States. Most of his work has been confined, in fact, to the designing of churches and educational institutions. He is the architect of Calvary Church, Pittsburg, which is conceded to be one of the handsomest church edifices in America. He also designed the Detroit Cathedral, and there are few cities of the first-class east of the Mississippi which have not one or more church monuments to his skill in that direction.

He is also the advisory architect of the much-discussed Graduate School and Cleveland Tower at Princton University. He was also one of the original competitors of St. John's Cathedral. He is also the author of numerous books on ecclesiastical, architecture and other subjects, among his important works being "Church Building," 1901; "The Reunited Abbeys of Great Britain," 1906; "Impressions of Japanese Architecture and the Allied Arts," 1906, and "The Gothic Quest," 1907. Mr. Cram is 47 years old, a native of Hampton Falls. N. H., and was educated at Exeter Academy. He has been an architect since 1889 and is a Fellow of the Boston Society of Architects, of the American Institute of Architects, of the Royal Geographical Society, London, and of other distinguished organizations.

Mr. La Farge is a son of the late John La Farge, whose architectural business he assumed in 1884. He and Mr. Heins organized as a firm two years later, and he was only 30 and Mr. Heins 32 when they won the contract for the design of the cathedral.

The Cathedral of St. John the Divine had its inception in 1872. Bishop Horatio Potter brought about a chartered corporation and took steps toward a suitable site. He was succeeded in 1887 by his nephew, Bishop Henry Codman Potter. Under him the work was carried on with great vigor. It was then that the present site, the three blocks bounded by Amsterdam Avenue and 110th and 113th Streets was obtained.

After the purchase of the site plans for the Cathedral itself began to be discussed. New appeals for funds were made, and these met with such generous responses that the proposed edifice became assured. A competition for the design was determined upon, and architects from all parts of the world were invited to submit their schemes.

The work was attractive to architects, and the Trustees had more than a hundred plans to choose from. Wishing to get the advantage of every side of public as well as expert opinion, a room was rented in the old See house at 29 Lafayette Street and the drawings of the architects were placed on exhibition. Criticism was invited from the press and months were spent in discusion and consultation. Finally, in July, 1891, a committee of experts having first been chosen to report on the best plans from a professionally architectural standpoint, the Trustees gave the great prize to the young architects, George L. Heins and C. Grant La Farge of this city.

The plans show a structure 520 feet long, 165 feet wide across the nave, and aisles 288 feet across the transepts and with a spire 425 feet high, set upon a base 100 feet square. The area upon which the cross of this tower will look down will be 99,500 square feet, making St. John's the fourth largest cathedral in the world in point of area. It will be exceeded only by St. Peter's at Rome, with 227,069 square feet; the Cathedral of Seville, in Spain, with 124,000 square feet, and the Duomo of Milan, which covers 107,000.

The cornerstone was laid in December, 1892. The foundations had been blasted out of the solid rock of Morningside Heights. Workmen found after digging only about ten feet into the earth of the site that the building would stand upon solid foundations. The rock was drilled and blasted and covered with a thick coating of concrete, and upon this base the large blocks of granite have been piled to form the partially complete structure of to-day.

RELICS FOUND IN THE MAINE.

Officer's Sabre One of Them—Leak in the Cofferdam Stopped Up.

HAVANA, June 20.—The skeleton of the Maine, coral encumbered and swarming with grimy workmen engaged in cleaning the upper works and exploring as far as possible the exposed interior spaces, stood spectrelike this morning above the green, slimy pool within the cofferdam. The water level had been reduced by fifteen feet. One additional foot had been pumped out during the night. Small as it was, the reduction served to reveal a large area hitherto entirely submerged, every additional inch serving to disclose more evidence of the appalling character of the explosion.

All attempts to study or identify any of the portions of the great ragged mass of upheaved steel work, once the massive bow of the battleship, appear absolutely futile until all is completely exposed. The lowering of the water below the level of the spardeck amidships shows the deck abreast of the engine room on the port side greatly bulged up. Under it the whole side of the ship appears to have been blown up. Protruding from this aperture are twisted masses of steel, apparently steam pipes and other appurtenances of the main engines, all so distorted and corroded as to defy identification for the present.

In the course of the exploration of the stern superstructure to-day the searchers found an ivory-hilted sabre in a fair state of preservation. It doubtless belonged to Lieut., now Major, Catlin, the officer in command of the ship's marine guard and recently commanding the brigade of marines at Guantanamo. They also found in the Captain's cabin a small compass, much corroded; a bottle of bay rum, perfectly preserved, and small toilet articles.

Brig. Gen. Bixby expects to hold the water at the present level for several days, and it is hardly probable that additional relics will be discovered until pumping is resumed.

The leak which developed in the cofferdam yesterday was located and stopped up this morning.

GOVERNMENT HOLDS LINER'S CREW ABOARD

Step Taken to Stop the Smuggling In of Undesirable Aliens in the Guise of Sailors.

ALL HANDS TO BE EXAMINED

Strong Guard Stationed on the Cretic and Pier to Prevent Any of the Men from Escaping.

On the arrival of the White Star liner Cretic from Naples at her pier last night Capt. Lobez, her commander, issued orders at the request of the immigration authorities that no members of the crew were to be allowed ashore. Petty officers were placed on guard at the gangways to see that the order was carried out, and word was sent by Capt. Smith, Marine Superintendent of the line, to the gatekeepers to have a strict watch kept in case any of the crew managed to slide down the moorings and get on the pier. The Cretic carries 277 officers and men, English, Italian, and Greek.

William Dobler, Chief Inspector of the boarding division, with a staff of men, went down to Quarantine on the Emigrant to meet the Cretic. Two detectives from the Department of Justice also went aboard the revenue cutter to board the ship. After a brief examination of the list of the crew furnished by Purser Evans, the authorities decided that it was too late to check off the crew according to the list, and the Captain was requested to hold all hands on board for the night until thorough examination can be made this morning.

The unusual order of the commander created considerable discussion on board ship, but no definite information was to be had concerning it, as the few who knew the reasons for it declined to talk. One of the immigration officials told the reporters that the crew would be examined this morning to see whether they were all bona fide members of the ship's company. He added that the procedure was due to information having been received by the authorities from reliable sources that aliens were being smuggled into the United States from Mediterranean ports as sailors, and the Federal authorities were taking steps to stop the practice carried on by the crews of Greek steamships.

One of the White Star officials on the pier said it was nothing more than the paternal interest taken in public affairs by the Government at Washington.

"The news of the sailors' strike has reached Washington," added this official, "and in order that the Olympic shall not be detained to-morrow through trouble with the tugboats not having crews or the crew of the Cretic joining the strikers along West Street, instructions have been given to the immigration authorities here to hold the crew on board to-night."

The Cretic landed 36 first cabin and 85 second cabin passengers, and held her 635 steerage passengers until this morning, when they will be taken to Ellis Island.

On arrival at Quarantine the ship was detained two hours while Dr. Doty and his staff made an examination of the passengers, and crew, as the three previous vessels arriving from Naples had cases of cholera on board. The ship's surgeon, Dr. Deavers, reported that two children were ill with measles in the steerage, and they were removed to Hoffman Island.

1,190 TO GET CANAL BONDS.

Final Tabulation of the 10,000 Bids Received—Brisk Trade on Curb.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—A final tabulation of the bids for the $50,000,000 issue of 3 per cent. Panama bonds indicates that $2,330,500 were taken at 103 and upward, $18,698,500 from 102.75 to 102.99, $11,019,500 from 102.50 to 102.74, $16,568,800 from 102.25 to 102.49, and a little more than $1,425,000 from 102.21 to 102.24.

Of the ten thousand bids received 1,190 will be accepted. The successful bidders will be notified in a day or two and will have until July 15 to pay for the bonds. It has been finally determined that the National City Bank of New York will get $1,000,000. Joseph Pulitzer will get $1,000,000. The other large bids will stand as first announced.

Although many bankers received word yesterday of their allotments of the new Panama 3 per cent. bonds, there was little data on which to base estimates of the probable market for them. Lacking knowledge of the average price and the extent to which the new bonds have been taken off the market, it was a day of phenomenal activity in the "when issued" contracts on the Curb. Opening at 103⅛, which was even with Monday's close, the price sold off to 102¾. Transactions were often in lots as large as $100,000.

The trading at the close of the day was estimated to have aggregated $3,100,000 in par value. The closing price was 102⅞. Never in the history of the Curb has such a day's business been transacted in any bond issue.

At yesterday's low price the Panamas were still ⅛ above the price at which they opened on the Curb in the week of May 20, but they were ¾ below the high price of 103¼. The "when issued" contracts have been traded on the Curb for about six weeks, and in that time transactions have totaled about $10,324,000 par value.

PARK OVER FILTRATION PLANT

Tennis and Playgrounds in Jerome Park—Aldermen Give the Money.

The Aldermen voted yesterday to give Water Commissioner Thompson $8,680,000 for the completion of the easterly section of the Jerome Park reservoir and the construction of a filtration plant large enough to filter all the water in the Croton watershed. The part of the reservoir holding the filtered water is to be roofed over, and on this roof tennis courts and playgrounds may be constructed. Regarding the project, the Commissioner said yesterday:

"The total cost of the work is estimated at $8,700,000, a sum of $10,000 having been previously appropriated to defray the expense of preliminary plans. The present unsightly hole in the ground at Jerome Park, which has been an eye-sore to the residents of the neighborhood since the work was suspended in 1905, is planned, under the present scheme, to be turned into a beautiful park space. The reservoir is to be covered, the filtration plant being located in the centre, and the top being graded off evenly. This will permit the erection thereon of small recreational or park buildings, tennis courts, playgrounds, &c.

"The reservoir proper will be divided into two parts, the northern end being used as a settling basin, into which the raw water will flow and pass through the filtration plant into a clear-water basin at the southern end. The reason for covering the reservoir is to obtain the best results from the filtration plant and to keep the water absolutely pure."

NOT A SHIP, BUT A BRIDGE

Opinion of One Passenger on Incoming Olympic—What's Doing Aboard.

By Marconi Wireless to The New York Times.

ON BOARD S. S. OLYMPIC, June 20.—The initial trip of the new monster White Star liner Olympic is exceeding expectations. We expect to dock early on Wednesday. From the time we passed Daunt's Rock, at 4:22 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, to noon on Friday, we steamed 428 knots. The next day's run was 534 knots, to noon Sunday 542, to noon Monday 525, although we slowed down for four hours on account of fog.

As we left Southampton, flying the Royal Naval Reserve ensign, we were saluted by the British fleet at Spithead. We have received many congratulations from passing ships, and the wireless equipment has been kept very busy from the time we started.

The passengers are unanimous in praise of the big ship. Miss Jane Cowl, who is aboard, says this isn't a ship, but a bridge across the Atlantic. It takes the best part of the voyage to find one's way about the vessel. The public rooms and the staterooms are huge, and the ventilation is wonderful.

The French restaurant is a great feature and is largely patronized. The forty-foot swimming pool, electric and Turkish baths, and racket court are all much used and highly appreciated. Olympic games were held yesterday, and a dance last night, which had a bizarre air from the Moorish decorations.

The weather has been beautiful and the ship very steady, without vibration. On board are 489 first-class passengers, 263 second-class, and 564 third-class. The crew numbers 850.

WOULD LABEL EDITORIALS.

Senate Passes Measure Requiring That They Shall Be Signed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 20.—Tammany Senators to-day came to the support of Senator Grady's bill requiring that every newspaper editorial shall be signed. It was passed in the upper house by a vote of 27 to 2. While professing aversion to the newspaper profession, Senator Brackett opposed Senator Grady's bill, declaring that it did not propose the proper remedy. He deplored the editorial abuses which inspired the measure.

"I am not sure," said Senator Brackett, "but that every twenty-four hours we should summon these irresponsible scribblers and cat-o-nine-tail them, and at the end of the session take 'em out and shoot 'em. Still, I doubt very much if this bill reaches the root of the evil."

"The purpose of this bill," Senator Grady said, "is to give the public an opportunity to judge between the critic and criticised. Newspapers have become degraded by what they call the impersonal character of journalism."

Senator Grady said that if the editorials were signed it would be a protection against fraud, as well as against assaults.

To illustrate his meaning, he read from an editorial which declared that 125th Street was the real business centre of New York. Investigation, he said, showed that the only piece of property for sale on the street referred to was owned by the man who wrote the editorial.

"This fraud would have been apparent to all if the man had been compelled to sign the editorial," Senator Grady said. The logical effect of the bill, he added, would be to separate the sheep from the goats in the field of journalism.

Senators Brackett and Sage were the only members who voted in opposition to the bill. Several Senators failed to respond to their names. Senator Grady introduced the bill after he had risen to a question of personal privilege to answer an editorial in which he was bitterly attacked for his attitude against woman suffrage.

CANOEIST DROWNS IN HUDSON

Swell from Passing Steamer Upsets Small Craft—Brother Is Saved.

The swell caused by a steamer going up the Hudson River late yesterday afternoon upset the canoe in which Thomas M. Santley, 24 years old, and his brother, Fred M. Santley, 20 years old, of 252 West Forty-second Street, were riding. The strong tide carried Fred several hundred feet down the river, blocking his efforts to reach his brother, who was drowned. Capt. Tighe of the West 152d Street Station was notified, and the police patrol boats started immediately to grapple for the body. At a late hour it was not recovered.

Mrs. Robert Bacon, wife of the American Ambassador at Paris, arrived with her family this evening. They will be the guests of J. Pierpont Morgan during the coronation festivities.

"Gentlemen of England" Meet.

As the outcome of an appeal by the Duke of Devonshire to "the gentlemen of England" to realize at this time their responsibilities to the empire, a meeting was held to-night in Queen's Hall. Patriotic speeches were made and a message of loyalty was sent to the King. Lord Loreburn, the Lord Chancellor; Lord Curzon of Kedleston, the Earl of Selborne, Lord Ampthill, Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, the Earl of Shaftesbury, Earl Cadogan, and the Archbishop of York were present. The Archibshop of Canterbury sent a letter in which he exhorted all to strive for Christian citizenship.

One of the most interesting features of the coronation is a compact by the Established and Free churches for joint services in many cities. This is the first time that the two bodies have united on such a scale for any purpose.

The fleet of foreign warships at Spithead for the coronation was made complete this morning by the arrival of the German cruiser Von der Tann. Sixteen nations are represented at Spithead. The American battleship Delaware takes the premier place both in size and armament.

Much attention is being paid to the officers and men of the Delaware. Capt. Gove and the six senior officers of the vessel will come to London to-morrow as the guests of the Admiralty to attend the coronation. Capt. Gove will have a place in the Abbey, while the other officers will have seats in the Admiralty stand to view the procession. An extensive series of entertainments has been arranged for the days following the naval review, including athletic sports, theatre parties, garden parties, banquets, and motor rides.

ENGLAND TO BENEFIT BY RECIPROCITY

Laurier Declares That Concessions Given to Us Will Be Given to Mother Country.

MAKES PROMISE IN LONDON

Says British Preference Has Come to Stay—Announcement Not Likely to Affect Action of Congress.

LONDON, June 20.—At a luncheon at the National Liberal Club to the overseas Premiers to-day Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Prime Minister, replied to a toast to the guests. In the course of his speech he promised that Canada would give Great Britain without question all the benefits which she received from reciprocity with the United States.

Canadian preference to the motherland had come to stay, Sir Wilfrid said, and Canada did not ask compensation from Great Britain.

The War Secretary, Lord Haldane, in toasting the Premiers, said that the main feature of this year's Imperial Conference had been that the governments of the component parts of the empire had taken each other in mutual confidence to an extent never known before. It remained only to develop this habit of confidence until it became a constitutional usage.

The Imperial Conference concluded its plenary sittings to-day. A few private meetings will be held to wind up details. The next Imperial Conference will be held in 1915.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—It is not expected that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's promise in London to-day that the concessions to Great Britain by Canada will keep pace with concessions to the United States will add to the bitterness of the reciprocity discussion here.

In Canada and in Great Britain this question has been kept prominently to the fore by the Conservatives, though Sir Wilfrid's announcement at this late day is regarded here as new. But in Washington interest in his pledge of concessions to British shippers is purely academic.

At present British shippers enjoy a preferential reduction of 33 1-3 per cent. of the Canadian imposts, but it has been asserted in the British Parliament that concessions in the reciprocity agreemen give far more than this to the United States. Sir Wilfrid's promise to-day is considered simply an answer to these statements.

The Premier's pledge will doubtless make the final passage of the Reciprocity bill at Ottawa easier and will go far toward reconciling conservative statesmen in England to the whole proposition. But, save for some possible reference by out-and-out opponents of the measure, like Senator Heyburn, who is, besides, an Anglophobe, the promise will have no weight in Washington.

RECIPROCITY IN DANGER.

Bailey Scheming to Defeat It with Amendments—Test Vote To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Following the running debate in the Senate on reciprocity yesterday, in which Mr. Bailey, alone of the minority side, stood out in opposition to the Canadian agreement, the Senator from Texas to-day sought the House side of the Capitol. For a time he was in conference with Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee, and soon afterward the report spread among the House Democrats that an elaborate plan was on foot at the other end of the Capitol for an alliance between Democrats and insurgents for changing the reciprocity measure by the addition of some sort of free list bill and some kind of woolen measure in the form of an amendment.

The ultimate object of these amendments, as understood by the real tariff revisionists of both Chambers, is the death of reciprocity by Presidential veto coupled with the death at the same time of the two measures hung to it as amendments.

In the debate yesterday Mr. Dixon, a Montana insurgent, threatened that if reciprocity with its removal of protection to the farmers was enacted it would prove an entering wedge that would stop only when the protection on steel, cotton, wool, and other manufactures has been removed. This suggestion was at once met by Mr. Bailey with the offer of a "modified" free list bill and woolen schedule to make the adjustments threatened by the insurgent Senator.

The suggestion made hastily yesterday by Mr. Bailey is the central piece in the plan for combination with the insurgents of the Senate as understood to-day in the House following Mr. Bailey's visit. Many of the insurgents sincerely desire a revision of the woolen schedule, but the free list bill is anathema to them—just as reciprocity is. The basis of the whole scheme seems to be the statement inspired by the President early in the session that he would veto reciprocity if tied up with anything else. That is the argument with which it is thought the insurgents opposed to reciprocity may be won to support the plan calling for affirmative votes not only on wool which they approve but on the free list measure which they reject.

There is a chance that the Root amendment to the Canadian Reciprocity bill will be voted on to-morrow, following the speech the New Yorker has announced he will make on the subject. Mr. Cummins of Iowa, an insurgent and an opponent of reciprocity, also expects to speak to certain amendments he has proposed, and it is possible that his remarks will put off a vote until the next day. But when the vote comes there is no doubt that the amendment will be voted down by a large majority.

Mr. Heyburn of Idaho to-day resumed his opposition to the measure, and the one incident of the day was an interruption by Mr. Martine, the new Democratic Senator from New Jersey, which ended in a severe rebuke to Mr. Martine by the Vice President.

New Naval Constructor Here.

Naval Constructor Robert E. Stocker succeeded Naval Constructor William J. Baxter in charge of the construction and hull division at the New York Navy Yard yesterday. Constructor Baxter was recently ordered transferred to the Boston Navy Yard. Constructor Stocker, who is to build the new battleship New York at the yard, has been superintending construction officer for the Government at the yard of the Newport News Shipbuilding Company and constructor in charge of the Norfolk Navy Yard.

YOUNG HAVEMEYER FOE OF SUGAR TRUST

Will Press It for Business, He Testifies, if He Wins Control of the National Refining Co.

DEFENDS HIS FATHER'S NAME

Philanthropic in His Methods and Trust Has Never Seen His Equal—Wife and Sister His Only Confidantes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Appearing in defense of his father's good name, Horace Havemeyer stamped himself on the Hardwick Sugar Trust Investigating Committee to-day as a virile successor of the founder of the trust. He did defend his father forcibly and effectively, and moreover he impressed himself on the members of the committee and the spectators as a boy who might some day be a giant captain of industry in the same sugar world in which his sire was easily king.

Only once was he in any way hard pressed, and this was when Judge Raker, who is a man of robust personality with strong opinions of himself and what he wants, went after an answer as to who voted the $10,000,000 of common stock of the National Sugar Refining Company which is in litigation and upon the ownership of which the future of the National depends. Mr. Havemeyer insisted that James H. Post, at that time President of the National, did not vote the stock as his own, but in a Trusteeship representing Havemeyer, Sr.

Judge Raker wanted it to appear that the stock was voted as being controlled by Havemeyer and Palmer for the American Sugar Refining Company, but after a prolonged bout in which there was some neat fencing, the witness came off victor and the Californian gave it up as beyond him. And to clinch the matter, Mr. Havemeyer showed him an option contract in the evidence in the pending suit which fully confirmed the position he took as to the manner in which Mr. Post voted the stock.

The witness said that he thought his father's original intention was to sell this $10,000,000 of National common stock to the American, making it a part of the American, but he was advised by counsel, John J. Johnson of Philadelphia, that it was not only improper but, possibly, illegal.

As a picture in retrospect of H. O. Havemeyer, who created the trust, the son's testimony was intensely interesting. He said that all the witnesses who said that the elder Havemeyer acted without taking any one into his confidence had told the truth.

Wife His Confidante.

"My father did not tell any one what he intended to do or why he did certain things—except this," he said, "he did tell my mother and my aunt, Mrs. Peters, my mother's sister. My aunt has told me much of this which confirms my own recollections of the circumstances. No one knew what he was doing or what he planned to do but these two women. He told them from time to time nearly everything connected with his business."

"He was accused of many things," continued the witness, "but I know he never did anything unless it was for the best interests of the stockholders of the American Sugar Refining Company. It is true he did not have much stock interest in the company, and he drew a salary of $100,000 a year. That was pretty large, perhaps, but he was the only man who ever made it a success. He ran the company well, and nobody has yet succeeded him in that."

When Chairman Hardwick wanted to know why it was young Havemeyer's father sold his stock in the American Company the witness said:

"I think he sold it to stop a set of speculators from putting up the stock to where it was bound to result in a terrible break in the market and to injure what he considered were the people entitled to protection. Some man accused him once of running that company for his own benefit and for stock manipulation. I think it was White, the receiver appointed with him in the case of the North River Sugar Refining Company. It made him so sick that he cleared out, as I understand it."

As to the $10,000,000 of stock in the National Sugar Company, Mr. Havemeyer furnished the committee a copy of a memorandum signed by Lowell Palmer, W. B. Thomas, and Arthur Donner, Directors of the American Sugar Refining Company, declaring that Havemeyer, Sr., was acting for himself in the operations to form the combination resulting in the National, and was not acting for the American. Young Havemeyer said that he was out of the American; that he intended to get back into the sugar refining business, and would have done so before this but for the fact that Mr. Post refused to transfer the common stock of the National to him, and he was confronted with a lawsuit over it. His plan was to buy enough preferred, taken with his common, to give him control, and he thought he could go on and do business as a competitor of the American Company.

Wants to be His Own Boss.

Representative Sulzer suggested that if the witness gained control of the National he might want to combine with the American.

"No, I want to have a say about my own affairs, and if I did that I know I could not," was his reply.

Members of the committee asked him if the $10,000,000 in the National was not watered stock, and he said he did not think so. The output of the National was 30 per cent. of the output of the American and the National together, he said, while the stock of the National was but $20,000,000 to the $90,000,000 of the American. When asked if the purposes of the purchase of the three refineries combined in the National was to suppress competition he said he did not think so, but was to secure greater economy and efficiency. With one of the three refineries shut down the output had been increased nearly 100 per cent. "The object of the combination," said the witness, "is to do business at an advantage, stop the wastes, and increase the sales."

When some one asked something about the purposes of H. O. Havemeyer in buying up the various refineries that entered into the American Sugar Refining Company, the young man gave an answer that brought a lasting smile on the faces of the committeemen.

"I know that trusts are denounced," he said, "and there has been a good deal of criticism of what my father did. I don't know as I should speak of it. I am his son and naturally my view is unlike that of others. I think, and I will say it frankly, I think it was philanthropy on his part in buying up these companies, some of which were almost bankrupt. He was doing business successfully and in keen competition. They were losing and in danger of being busted. He had the choice of keeping on and seeing them go down or to take them in. He took them in and saved them and made them all pay and the whole thing succeeded."

Family's Holdings $10,604,000.

He estimated the par value of the stock in the beet sugar industry now held by the family at $10,604,000.

"Has the holding been reduced materially since your father's death?" asked Chairman Hardwick.

"No, not materially; it has been decreased about a million dollars."

His retirement from the Directorate of the American Sugar Refining Company was explained by young Havemeyer at the request of Chairman Hardwick.

"I went West on a trip, and when I returned," said Mr. Havemeyer, "I had made up my mind that I wanted to take an active interest in the National Sugar Refining Company. I wanted to make a career for myself along that line.

"I went to Mr. Thomas, who was then at the head of the American, and told him of my plans and notified him that on Jan. 1, 1911, I intended to retire from the Directorate of the American.

"Then, more as a courtesy than as anything else, I went to Mr. Post, who was President of the National, and told him that I wished to terminate the contract whereby the B. H. Howell Son & Co. handled the National's business."

"Why did you want it canceled?" asked Mr. Hardwick.

"Because I thought the stockholders could manage its business better."

Mr. Havemeyer said he did not get very far in his plans about the National because the American Sugar Refining Company notified Mr. Post that it would hold him personally responsible if he transferred to Havemeyer, as desired, the $10,000,000 worth of common stock of the National, which had stood in Post's name for the Havemeyer estate since its issuance and by which Havemeyer would have controlled the National. It is the transfer of this stock and its legality that is still a subject of litigation.

To Fight the Sugar Trust.

"It is my intention if we win that litigation to make the National Sugar Refining Company a real competitor of the American Sugar Refining Company, which owns a majority of the preferred stock of the National," said Mr. Havemeyer. "I have no interest in the American and no sympathy with it."

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 20.—President Joseph F. Smith sat up yesterday after being confined to his bed for some time by sciatica. He reiterated the statement made in his telegram to Chairman Hardwick on Saturday night that he would go to Washington as soon as he was served with a subpoena, and his health would permit.

PUBLICITY BILL TO PASS.

Senate and House Expected to Approve Belmont Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The strength in the Senate of the bill pushed by Perry Belmont providing ante-election as well as post-election publicity of campaign expenses was indicated this morning, when by a vote of 41 to 11 the measure was taken up for consideration.

In the running debate that took up the rest of the time until Mr. Dillingham, in charge of the measure, was forced to attend the Lorimer hearings, it developed that while some of the Democratic Senators take the position of the House Democrats and oppose the committee amendment extending the operation of the bill to primaries, many of them will support the amendment and put the question squarely up to the House.

It is believed that the bill will soon pass the Senate, and that in some form the amended measure will be accepted by the House.

REFUSED TO GIVE $10,000 FOR LORIMER

SAVED KOHLSAAT FROM JAIL

Released Editor from Pledge of Secrecy—Committee to Make Thorough Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The select committee of the Senate to-day began its work of investigating the charge of fraud alleged against the election of William Lorimer of Illinois to the Senate. Cyrus H. McCormick, President of the International Harvester Company, was the only witness, and after hearing him the committee adjourned till Thursday.

Without qualification Mr. McCormick supported the testimony given in Chicago by H. H. Kohlsaat, editor of The Chicago Record-Herald, telling of the efforts of Edward Hines, prominent as a Chicago lumberman, to get a contribution of $10,000 for the campaign fund.

Mr. McCormick said that he had learned of these efforts through Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the harvester company, who said that Mr. Hines had approached him. He told the committee that he had commended Mr. Funk's stand in refusing the contribution.

He it was, he said, who had finally released Mr. Kohlsaat from his pledge of secrecy to save him from being sent to jail for contempt in the Illinois investigation.

Mr. McCormick said further that the harvester company had made it a practice to hold aloof from politics and to avoid efforts to influence legislation. Taking this as a cue, the counsel for Senator Lorimer sought to show that in many States the company had made an effort to prevent the passage of bills considered objectionable to it. The witness admitted that the company had made general opposition to legislation providing for the manufacture of binding twine in prisons.

William J. Hynes of Chicago appeared as counsel for Edward Hines, said to have been the originator of the alleged fund of $100,000 in Lorimer's interest. In view of the absence of Elbridge G. Hanecy, Mr. Lorimer's personal counsel, the committee permitted Mr. Hynes to represent the Senator at to-day's hearing.

By his course Mr. Hynes made it clear that it is the intention of Mr. Lorimer to neglect no line of defense.

Admitting that his purpose was to controvert the testimony of Mr. McCormick that the company does not engage in legislative efforts, Mr. Hynes read several of the charges. One was that the organization had employed every effort to prevent legislation in South Dakota providing for the manufacture of binding twine by convicts.

"We always oppose such legislation," said the witness, "because machinery plays an important part in the making of twine."

The committee continues to promise that if possible the work will be concluded during the present session of Congress. It is realized, however, that in order to accomplish this result it will be necessary to crowd on all possible steam. Every person mentioned in connection with the case will be examined together with new witnesses, and it is believed that visits to both Chicago and Springfield will be necessary. Mr. Lorimer himself will be questioned minutely.

"We will follow every lead that presents itself," said one of the members of the committee just before the beginning of to-day's sitting.

CHINESE WARSHIP COMING.

The Hai Chi, Now in British Waters, to Call Here Next Month.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The first Chinese warship to visit America will make her way into New York Harbor next month. This will be the cruiser Hai Chi, now in British waters to take part in the Spithead naval review. Only once before has any Chinese vessel visited an American port, and that was in 1880, when a small merchant vessel called at San Francisco.

The Hai Chi is the largest vessel in the Chinese Navy, having a displacement of 4,300 tons and a speed of 24 knots. She is armed with two 8-inch and ten 4.1-inch guns. The Navy Department is making arrangements to welcome the Chinese sailors.

Men's Shirt Sale—at Saks'

Today and Tomorrow

Men's Summer Negligee Shirts values 2.00, 2.50 and 3.00 at 1.30

¶ Every shirt in this offering has a bosom confidence for you.

¶ It will tell you that in the dear, dim ago, as far back as the looms where it first blossomed forth as a fabric, it was intended for the honored profession of a shirt in the two dollar, two dollar and a half or three dollar class.

¶ But shirts are like men—what they deserve and what they ultimately get are totally different matters.

¶ These shirts were made up especially for this sale, which is an annual affair with us, and that their value should so far exceed the sale price is due to your support of this great sale in former years.

¶ Domestic and imported fabrics, in woven or printed Madras, Russian cords, mercerized cloths or silk striped cloths, in a splendid variety of plain colors and neat stripes. Also, plain white pleats. Soft, semi-soft or laundered, as you prefer; double soft cuffs or laundered cuffs; all sizes and sleeve lengths.

¶ A shirt event which derives its chief importance from the fact that it offers a maximum of value for a minimum of price.

An all round combination auto cap for the woman autoist—at Saks'

¶ Has a variety of uses. Desirable for steamer wear, the very thing for tourist wear, the only thing for auto wear.

¶ It came to us first, as all that's new and novel and worth while in autodom usually does. And its chief merit is its ability to stay put. It has tenacity of purpose, Madame, and doesn't give a toot of the horn for the wildest wind that ever blew! It is gathered on an elastic string and holds the head firmly but gently.

¶ Comes in glorias, satins, messalines, taffetas, or changeable silks. Oh! and it has a soft patent leather visor, too—we almost forgot that.

¶ It is just the sweetest, becomingest auto cap that ever woman wore, and it has not taken advantage of its desirability by asking exorbitant prices.. 2.50 and 3.00

Goggles at half a dollar that were 1.00 to 3.75

¶ There are still some of these left, though more than half of them have gone the way of all good goggles.

¶ Those that remain will soon go, too. The weather has sadly interfered with their plans or they would have departed ere this.

M'ANENY REPORT TO PASS AMENDED

Mayor Acquiesces in the Changes and Board of Estimate Will Act Favorably To-day.

SOME BENEFITS FOR QUEENS

Interborough Will Have to Agree to Immediate Swap of Franchises Below 42d Street and an Expense Basis.

With amendments expressing the terms of agreement reached at last Saturday's conference of the Board of Estimate and some prepared by its author, the McAneny subway report will be adopted by the Board of Estimate to-day. President Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen and Controller Prendergast obtained from Mr. McAneny last night a renewed assurance that he would support their demand for an immediate swapping of franchises below Forty-second Street as a condition of dealing with the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, and so long as their votes are added to that of the President of Manhattan, the further vote of President Cromwell of Richmond, a member of the McAneny Committee, would make a majority for the report and insure its adoption.

Mayor Gaynor indicated again yesterday that he was ready to vote for the report even in its amended form, and it is probable that President Lawrence Gresser of Queens will follow the Mayor, inasmuch as the majority of the Estimate Board has agreed to an amendment backed by a strong popular sentiment in that borough, which will give the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company joint trackage rights over the extensions to Woodside and Corona, which the report as originally drafted gave exclusively to the Interborough.

This amendment places at the disposal of the people of Queens the Second Avenue elevated line in Manhattan via Queensboro Bridge, either the Fourth or the Seventh Avenue subway line in Manhattan, via the Steinway tunnel; the Broadway line of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, via the Queensboro Bridge and Fifty-ninth Street, or the loop line of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit elevated which is to run from the Queensboro Bridge Plaza southerly through Long Island City and the Eastern District of Brooklyn to a connection with the Williamsburg Bridge and the present elevated lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit. The extension of facilities would, of course, be made without an additional fare.

There is a Mitchel-Prendergast amendment relating to the terms of compensation in case the city undertook to acquire the entire Interborough subway system after thirty-five years of operation. The report as first submitted provided that in such an event there should be a financial adjustment which involved estimating and compounding the profits of the Interborough for the remainder of its lease. The amendment provides that the acquisition shall be made on the basis of the then present values of the property and the franchises on the original Subway.

One amendment proposed by the Controller and the President of the Aldermen Mr. McAneny has not acceded to. That is to strike out of the operating terms requiring the computation of expenses on extensions on the cost-per-passenger basis the proviso "or other basis equally acceptable to the city," which, it has been contended, is tantamount to an invitation to the Interborough to create delay by suggesting an alternative.

The importance of this alleged loophole in the McAneny report became evident yesterday when the joint committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association held a meeting, at the request of Mayor Gaynor, to consider the McAneny report.

The joint committee came into existence last Fall at the instance of the Mayor, and made a report advising the adoption of the Interborough's offer of Dec. 5. Yesterday's session of this committee adopted a report by Seth Low, its Chairman, and with respect to the endeavor of the McAneny committee to get the co-operation of private capital in subway development said:

> Upon this aspect of the question the City of New York is in the Valley of Decision, and I earnestly hope that this committee will unanimously urge the Board of Estimate to accept the risks that are involved in acting upon this determination rather than now to embark. Without a rudder, on another sea of negotiation.

An Alternative from Interborough.

The report adopted by the citizens' committee also declared that it would be a misfortune if either company declined to accede to the city's terms, and in this connection declared:

> Every effort certainly should be made to avert that misfortune even now. The benefits to be derived from the plan as a whole through the co-operation of both companies, or of either of them, are so great that no financial detail should be permitted to stand in the way of an agreement between the city and the two companies.

The impression prevailed last night that the Interborough, which opposes the "per passenger" basis of determining the operating expenses on the extensions more seriously than anything else in the report except the admission of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit to Broadway, Manhattan, would come in with an alternative, and there were indications that if this were done the effort to get a modification of the McAneny report to allow something equivalent to what the company wanted would have strong backing. The programme laid out by Mr. McAneny is the resubmission of the report, after its adoption as amended, to the joint conference of the McAneny Committee and the Public Service Commission, and then the opening of conferences with the two companies pending their final replies of acceptance or rejection.

In the Coney Island fare the report says, on Page 23, that "the conferrees are of the opinion that as the city allows the company to reserve for itself the aggregate rate of present net profit on its elevated lines, without regard to the segregated profit or loss on individual lines, no reason remains why a five-cent fare should not be extended to other parts of the city." In a table on Page 50 of the appendix of the report, however, figures were given showing "comparative mileage of routes and trackage to be operated at a five-cent fare, with universal transfers within each system under proposed adjustment," and such figures were accompanied by a footnote stating that "mileage has been subtracted from Coney Island lines south of the second-fare point."

The Coney Compromise.

The compromise which introduced the Coney Island five-cent requirement into the report became known yesterday. It came out that the figures in question were prepared the very last of the week preceding the Monday night when the final compromise agreement was reached at the Bar Association. At that time the conferrees had not declared for a five-cent Coney Island fare, and the assumption was that it would not be incorporated in the report. On Sunday, however, it is learned, Chairman Willcox advanced various objections against the report which threatened to break up the general agreement of the conferrees, and one of these involved the injection of the five-cent fare into the discussion. Mr. Willcox stuck to that proposition, and at the Monday night session at the Bar Association Mr. McAneny yielded, but apparently forgot to change the table to conform with the body of the report.

The Interborough kept up its fight against the report yesterday, and various real estate bodies passed resolutions either approving or denouncing it. At a meeting of the Real Estate Board of Brokers at 115 Broadway counsel for both the Interborough and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit were present, and the meeting after long discussion adopted resolutions commending the report to the Board of Estimate.

MUSIC LESSONS IN COURT.

Proprietor of Correspondence School Suing Collier's for Libel.

David F. Kemp's $50,000 libel suit against Collier's Weekly went to trial yesterday before Justice Brady and a jury in the Supreme Court. Kemp is the President of the United States School of Music, which advertises that it teaches pupils to play the violin and piano by correspondence. On June 19, 1909, under the headline "Fair Trade and Foul," Collier's printed an editorial, in which it referred to Kemp's school as a "triple-plated swindle" and continued:

"Certainly no human being can teach any other human being by letter to play the violin, except in such a manner as unwarrantably to increase the sum total of human suffering."

Kemp thereupon sued, urging all the customary grounds of damage pleaded in libel suits. Robert J. Collier, owner of the Weekly, put in an answer that the editorial was printed without malice and on information which the editors of the Weekly believed to be true.

Kemp testified yesterday that his school had been giving instruction for eleven years and prior to the publication of the editorial in Collier's had taught 80,000 pupils without dissatisfaction. The school, he said, is duly incorporated and has its headquarters at 225 Fifth Avenue. James W. Osborne, lawyer for Collier's, objected unsuccessfully to Kemp telling the jury about the ten instructors employed by his school to teach harmony, music, and the practical playing of musical instruments. Justice Brady ruled that the editorial referred to the school in its entirety and not merely to the teaching of violin playing, as contended by Mr. Osborne, and said that Kemp might show any fact bearing on his methods of instruction.

Dr. Frank H. Damrosch, director of the Institute of Musical Art, was called to testify before Mr. Kemp was cross-examined, in order to give him an opportunity to fill an out-of-town engagement. Dr. Damrosch took a violin and described its four strings. He also tested a pitch pipe, sent out by the school to pupils, and after blowing a few notes declared that it was out of tune, and a beginner on the violin would find it difficult to tune with it.

Dr. Damrosch admitted on cross-examination that he had not played a violin for forty years and that his last teaching of beginners on the piano was fifteen years ago. He said that he was not prepared to say that it was impossible to teach violin playing by correspondence methods, but declared he considered it unlikely.

There will be a piano in court to-day and demonstrations of how correspondence lessons are carried out by pupils of the school, counsel for Kemp said yesterday.

FIRE ON BROOKLYN BRIDGE.

Planks on North Roadway Ignited by a Blaze in the Street Under Structure.

Traffic on the north roadway of the Brooklyn Bridge was held up for about twenty minutes and the structure itself was slightly damaged as a result of a fire which occurred at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in a storage yard in Water Street, Brooklyn, under the bridge. Passengers on the cars and drivers of vehicles crossing the span were forced to swallow a lot of smoke, and some of them got a shower bath when a stream from a fireboat was turned on the blazing planks of the bridge.

The fire started in a disused coal pocket in Water Street, near the Fulton Ferry. The property is owned by the city, and is being used temporarily for the storage of supplies by the Ryan & Parker Construction Company, which is doing some work at the Brooklyn end of the Manhattan Bridge, and J. H. Holmes, a contractor, who is putting in part of the high-pressure water system. Two alarms were turned in.

Clouds of smoke ascended to the bridge, driving back pedestrians on the promenade and stopping trucks and trolley cars. The flames soon leaped to the floor of the north roadway of the bridge and set fire to the planking. The fireboat Zophar Mills put in near the foot of Fulton Street and pumped a stream through a stand pipe to the blazing planks on the bridge. The fire there was quickly put out, and that below was soon under control. The damage to property in the storage yard amounted to about $2,000.

SEVEN CRIPPLED GRADUATES.

First Time Entire Class in Public School Has Been Thus Constituted.

Public School 27, in Forty-second Street, east of Third Avenue, is about the proudest school in Manhattan. Its whole class of cripples will be graduated in the next ten days.

The special pride of No. 27 arises from the fact that this is to be the first class of cripple graduates ever sent out from this or, so far as the Department of Education knows, any other city in this country. A few individual cripples have, of course, been graduated at the public schools, but No. 27 has a special class of six girls and one boy, all seriously disabled physically, but as bright mentally as new pins, with the keenest anticipation possible of getting their diplomas, with pendant blue ribbons, just as other children.

Several individual cripple graduates, who spent eight years of hard work in the elementary schools, keeping pace with other pupils who had no such handicap as they, are readily recalled at the Department of Education. A boy completed the course in Public School No. 104, some years ago, and was graduated. In 1908 a girl was also graduated from School 104, and a girl and a boy, at different years, from Public School No. 67.

Two of the girl members of the cripple class in the East Forty-second Street school will go on to the high school next year, and two others will enter the Hebrew Technical School for Girls. There are several other cripple classes in the schools, but none of these has been organized long enough for graduation.

MAYOR WHACKS NIGHT COURT

Useless, He Says—Will Approve Bill for Installment Tax Payments.

At a public hearing on a number of legislative bills pending before him, Mayor Gaynor yesterday said he did not believe it was necessary to have a Night Court. He expressed this view while talking of a bill which provided that the court may be closed at 1 A. M. if the Chief Magistrate so wills it, instead of 3 A. M., as at present.

"I am one of those," said the Mayor, "who have doubted that we needed any night court at all. About all that they exist for is to let people go who should not have been arrested at all.

"As for the criminal classes, I doubt if we ought to be in any great hurry to discharge them during the night. It is time enough to arraign them in the morning."

The Mayor said he would approve the bill which provides for the payment of city taxes on the first of May and the first of November each year in semi-annual installments. Taxes for the first six months will become a lien on May 1, while taxes due Nov. 1, if paid before that time, will be subject to a rebate at the rate of 4 per centum per annum from May 1.

The Mayor condmned a bill providing for the repayment to residents of Third Avenue, Brooklyn, of an old sewer assessment.

"Under no condition," said the Mayor, "will I approve a mandatory bill telling us in this city that we've got to do things whether we want to or not."

DIAZ SAYS HE WANTS REVOLT TO SUCCEED

Ex-President Arrives at Havre and Is Welcomed by Officials and a Big Crowd.

HE PRAISES OUR ATTITUDE

Declares It Has Been Dignified, Unselfish, and Generous—Does Not Know if He Will Return to Mexico.

HAVRE, June 20.—Gen. Porfirio Diaz, ex-President of Mexico, arrived here to-day on the steamer Ypiranga. As in Spain and England, he was officially welcomed on arriving in France. Representatives of the Prefecture greeted him on behalf of the French nation, and the Mayor of the city called on the retired President on behalf of Havre.

As the Ypiranga drew near to the shore of France Gen. Diaz, who was active and as joyous as a boy at the prospect of landing in Europe, received a representative of The Associated Press. After expressing his appreciation of the tributes paid to him by European countries the ex-President enthusiastically exclaimed:

"I cannot predict the result of the Mexican revolution. No man can read the future, but I wish you would send this message to the people of Mexico:

"'I desire with all my heart that the revolution may succeed, so that the people of Mexico may suffer the least possible.'

"That is my feeling of peace at this moment. I love this Mexico which I have built up by years of faithful toil, and I wish it to endure in peace."

To the direct question whether he intended to return to Mexico, Gen. Diaz replied frankly: "I cannot say."

Continuing, the ex-President said he wished the United States to understand that he had not the slightest feeling against America, whose attitude, he believed, had been dignified, unselfish, and generous throughout, "America," the General said, "did her best to prevent complications and to seek the highest good for all. I did my best for Mexico, and as I clamber on the shores of the Old World I reiterate my message of good will and peace."

Gen. Diaz denied that he made the statement while at Vigo, attributed to him by the Paris Temps, that the Mexican revolutionists had already squandered $31,000,000 of the Treasury reserve fund.

The ex-President's condition was greatly improved to-day. His teeth, which have caused him considerable suffering, are now better. He explains that the trouble was caused by the extraction of some teeth in Mexico City, which resulted in local poisoning and a partial abscess of the mouth. The ship's surgeon successfully treated the affected parts, but the aged General still has some difficulty in talking.

Gen. Diaz was a great personal favorite among the passengers of the Ypiranga, with whom he mingled constantly during the voyage from Vera Cruz. The ship's German officers and crew styled him "the modern Bismarck" on account of his striking resemblance to the Iron Chancellor.

England's greeting to Mexico's ex-President took place at 3 o'clock this morning in Plymouth Harbor. The General had turned in for the night, but arose and received a cordial message from a British flag officer, who brought messages of welcome from the Admiral of the Port and the British nation.

The Mexican statesman has made no plans for the Summer. He will probably go to Switzerland by way of Paris.

When the Ypiranga drew up to the pier here Gen. Diaz was greeted by hundreds of persons ashore, including many Mexicans of prominence, who waved their hats and handkerchiefs. After the steamer had reached her wharf the ex-President held a reception in the saloon of the Ypiranga.

CHLOROFORMS DAUGHTER.

Mother Feared the Girl Was to Leave Her—Insanity Suspected.

Mrs. Bertha Stangohr, 42 years old, of 214 East Twenty-fifth Street, adopted heroic means yesterday morning to prevent her daughter, Caroline, 17 years old, from leaving her home. She attempted to chloroform the girl and as a result is a prisoner in Bellevue, where she will be held for five days for observation. The charge against Mrs. Stangohr is attempted homicide.

Patrolman Leidig was at Twenty-fifth Street and Second Avenue when a boy told him that there was some trouble in the tenement at 214 East Twenty-fifth Street. The policeman found Mrs. Stangohr and her daughter struggling in the hall. He separated the two women, and then the daughter fell into a stupor. Dr. Betts was called from Bellevue and said the girl was suffering from the effects of chloroform. The mother admitted that she had placed a towel saturated with the anesthetic over the girl's head when Caroline attempted to leave the house. The mother said she thought her daughter was going to leave her.

When the daughter was revived she told the police that the family was in poor circumstances, and a dispossess notice, which will take effect to-day, is tacked to the door of their apartment. Caroline said she had a job this morning and intended to try to earn money to pay the rent. She was sitting in a rocking chair when the mother took a towel, which she had saturated with chloroform, and threw it over her head. The girl fought until the police arrived and then succumbed. The girl fully recovered at the hospital.

TEST OF AUTO EXCLUSION.

Justice Reserves Decision on Question Relating to Ocean Parkway.

Supreme Court Justice Kapper in Brooklyn yesterday reserved decision in an action brought by automobilists to test the legality of the restriction of a part of the Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, as a speedway for horses.

Inviting the test, C. Stewart Cavanagh of the Long Island Automobile Club made himself amenable to the penalty provided for operating an automobile on the forbidden stretch of road. He was stopped and taken to the Flatbush Court, where he was held for a further hearing in $100 bail. Cavanagh refused to give bail, and habeas corpus proceedings in his behalf were brought before Justice Kapper.

T. Ellett Hodgskin, attorney for Mr. Cavanagh, said that the parkway had been opened as a public highway in 1869, and that the owners of abutting property had paid the cost. To restrict its use to any one class of vehicles was unconstitutional. A careful computation on one Sunday had shown that while between three hundred and four hundred drivers of horses were using the restricted section, thousands of automobiles were forced to turn out into the side roads. This caused loss of life and limb.

Assistant Corporation Counsel James D. Bell argued that the restriction of a part of the boulevard was a reasonable interpretation by the Park Commissioner of the provision of the Charter.

ANOTHER LIBERAL UNSEATED.

But C. F. G. Masterman Will Retain His Office in the British Ministry.

LONDON, June 20.—Charles F. G. Masterman, Under Secretary of State for the Home Office, was to-day deprived of his seat in the House of Commons for the North Division of West Ham, the court finding that his election was aided by corrupt practices on the part of his agent. The Judges said that no fault rested upon Mr. Masterman personally.

Mr. Masterman will retain his post as Under Secretary for Home Affairs, and a safe seat will be found to assure his early re-election to the House of Commons.

FIGHT IN THE SIXTY-NINTH.

Capt. Scanlon and Lieut. Nagle Making Charges Against Col. Conley.

The factional strife within the Sixty-ninth Regiment is taking on such proportions that some think it threatens to disrupt the command. An indication of the widening split between Col. Louis B. Conley and some of his officers was furnished yesterday when it was learned that Capt. John F. Scanlon of Company E and Lieut. Percival E. Nagle, the Tammany leader of Harlem, have made formal charges against Col. Conley. Lieut. Nagle asks for a court of inquiry.

The papers of both officers are now in the hands of Conley himself, for, according to military regulations, such papers must first be read by the Colonel of the regiment before they are forwarded through the regular channel to Albany. Gen. Smith, it was learned last night, has not yet received them, and it is thought that they may not reach him for a week or longer. If too long a time elapses, however, it is within the power of the complaining officers to forward them directly to the Adjutant General.

Capt. Scanlon's company was under inspection last Friday night by Gen. Smith, commanding the First Brigade, of which the Sixty-ninth Regiment is a part. He made inspection at the request of Col. Conley, who asked for a board to examine into the moral character, capacity, and general fitness of Capt. Scanlon. Relations had been particularly strained since the recent election in the regiment, when Private Hagan was chosen for Second Lieutenant over Sergt. Herbert, the candidate favored by Col. Conley.

None of the officers concerned will furnish any details of the charges made by Capt. Scanlon and Lieut. Nagle. The affair of Friday night, however, is laden with accusations made by Capt. Scanlon. It is known that he charges Col. Conley with having belittled him in front of his company after the special inspection drill, and he accuses the Colonel of having unjustly humiliated him before enlisted men contrary to law. He also asserts that he has been oppressed and discriminated against because he refused to sign a paper giving the Colonel power to appoint officers instead of holding elections for them. Internal politics plays a leading part in the history of the regiment's troubles.

Lieut. Nagle charges, among other things, that Col. Conley has publicly and falsely cast aspersions upon him, and for the good of the regiment he asks that the allegations be submitted to a court of inquiry.

CHOATE MAKES COURT PLEA.

Appears as Counsel for Mrs. Watt in Contest Over Big Estate.

Supreme Court Justice Bischoff reserved decision yesterday on the application of Mrs. Thomas L. Watt to have her late husband's $2,680,273.50 share of the Mary G. Pinkney estate declared personalty. The application was argued in Mrs. Watt's behalf by Joseph H. Choate, ex-Ambassador to England, who has made few appearances in court in recent years. Mr. Choate contended that the widow was entitled to about $900,000 outright from funds derived from the sale of the Pinkney realty instead of a life interest in one-third of the funds. Mr. Choate argued that the specific provision in Mrs. Pinkney's will for the sale of her realty had made the proceeds personalty, although under the usual rule funds derived from the sale of realty, sold to permit the division of an estate, are regarded as realty and subject only to a widow's life interest in dower.

Justice Bischoff was also asked to rule that the transfer tax on the share going to Watt's widow and his children should not be twice assessed against them, but that the Pinkney estate may be made to pay the first inheritance tax which became due on Miss Pinkney's death.

Abram I. Elkus, for the executors of the Pinkney will, argued that in the absence of specific provision to the contrary the heir, in this case the Watt estate, must pay the transfer tax on what it received from the Pinkney estate. If this contention is upheld, Watt's widow and children will have some $36,000 less to divide.

CAN'T HIDE STOCKHOLDERS.

Steel Shareowner Gets a Court Order Empowering Him to Copy the List.

Supreme Court Justice Guy granted the application yesterday of Charles M. Cabot, a Boston stockholder of the United States Steel Corporation, for a mandamus directing Richard Trimble, the corporation's Secretary, to allow him to copy a list of the company's stockholders. Mr. Cabot wants to distribute among the stockholders, it appears, copies of a magazine containing an attack on the corporation's labor policy, and Secretary Trimble submitted many affidavits in opposition to Cabot's purpose, which he said was not germane to his status as a stockholder.

Mr. Cabot said he had made application to examine the stock book to Mr. Trimble on May 15 and that this had been refused. He wanted to correspond with the stockholders on the subject of a magazine article entitled "Old Age at Forty." Mr. Trimble replied that the matter with which the article dealt, the alleged ill treatment of certain employes of the company, had been under investigation by the Department of Commerce and Labor and an official report was soon expected. Mr. Cabot is the man who introduced a resolution passed at the last annual meeting of the company for the appointment of a committee to investigate these charges.

Secretary Trimble in his answer refers to the magazine article which Mr. Cabot desires to circulate as "sensational, inaccurate, unfair, and unreasonable." He asks what reason there is to put this article out among the stockholders when two official investigations are soon to be concluded. He submitted affidavits from heads of subsidiary companies of the Steel Corporation in departments against which particular charges were made, defending the gang system of labor, and asserting that the work in the industry had been made lighter and special precautions taken to safeguard the workers from accidents and prevent injury to the health of employes.

The Board of Water Supply awarded the contract yesterday for the completion of the Hudson Siphon and a part of the Hudson River Division of the Catskill Aqueduct in the towns of Cornwall and Fishkill to the T. A. Gillespie Company of 50 Church Street, the third bidder. Their price was $1,649,020, as against $1,432,322 bid by Anthony G. Douglass of 2 Rector Street and $1,483,936 by Winston & Co. and Breuchaud. The three Commissioners, Charles Strauss, President of the board; Charles N. Chadwick, and John F. Galvin, concurred in the award.

It was explained that in view of the importance of the work, the board considered that the award should go to the bidder who had the necessary facilities, experience in like work, ability, and financial resources to perform the work in a satisfactory manner within the time stipulated.

AIR RACE POSTPONED.

Storm Prevents Resumption of International Circuit Contest.

LIEGE, June 20.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon the black flag was hoisted at the aerodrome here announcing, on account of a storm, the postponement for the day of the international circuit aviation race over France, Belgium, Holland, and England.

Eighteen aviators had qualified for to-day's flight, which was to be from Liège to Spa and back, a total distance of thirty-seven and one-quarter miles.

Three o'clock to-morrow morning has been set as the time for the resumption of the race. The storm continued this evening.

NEW POLICE PATROL SYSTEM.

Stationary Post Plan Will Be Tried in the Central Part of Manhattan.

Police Commissioner Waldo announced yesterday that the plan of placing policemen on stationary posts where they might be found at any hour of the night, would be tried in the Third Inspection District either to-morrow night or Friday night. This district covers the greater part of the city between Fourteenth and Forty-second Streets, from river to river.

It is the belief of Commissioner Waldo that a stationary policeman will prove of greater benefit to the city than two policemen covering posts which may take them through half a dozen side streets and into one or more avenues. By the plan proposed by Commissioner Waldo there will be a policeman within two blocks anywhere in the Third Inspection District. These policemen will remain on post for four hours, when they will be relieved for the next four hours.

Under the three platoon system one-half of the men are on duty between 11 o'clock at night, and 7 o'clock the next morning. Under the stationary post plan only half of these men, or one-quarter of the whole force, will be sent on post. The other half will be assigned to the stationary posts. The men who patrol, of course, will have their posts doubled to include the territory hitherto covered by the men now to remain in one place. After four hours the men will change places, those on patrol going on stationary post, while those who have remained in one spot will begin a patrol.

TO RUSH THROUGH RACE TRACK BILLS

DIX DOESN'T SHOW HIS HAND

But Promises to Define His Attitude to Bills This Week—Will Give Hearing to Opponents.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 20.—Senator Gittins of Niagara, introducer of the two bills to "define" bookmaking and to hold directors of race tracks immune from punishment for violations of the anti-gambling laws at their respective race courses, served notice in the Senate to-day that at some future time he would move to have the Senate rules suspended in order to take these two measures from the general orders calendar and rush them for final passage. The notice was given at a time when it was out of order except by unanimous consent, but no objection was made although a similar notice, made to accelerate a vote on the Buffalo charter, to which the Democratic machine is opposed, obstructed to-day's session. There has been a good deal of acceleration in the interest of the two Gittins bills, the passage of which are so eagerly hoped for by race-track interests. Senator Gittins expresses himself as hopeful that the two bills will pass, although telegrams and letters opposing them are pouring in upon the up-State legislators of both parties.

Meantime Gov. Dix has not as yet been willing to commit himself with reference to the bills. The legislative leaders have asked him to state whether he would sign the bills if they were passed by both houses. Many up-State Democratic legislators who had been willing to defy the sentiment in their districts and vote for the bills if they could be assured that Gov. Dix would approve them, are not willing to brave popular resentment at home and a Gubernatorial veto here at the same time, especially as in the latter event they would have made their sacrifice to no purpose. The Governor told the leaders that in the present week he would let them know his attitude.

No end of pressure is being brought to bear on Gov. Dix in favor of the two bills, particularly the bill to repeal the provision in the present law which holds directors or owners of race tracks responsible for violations of the anti-gambling law at their tracks, whether these violations are made with their knowledge and consent or not. Racing Commissioner John Sanford, who is a breeder of blooded horses, and R. T. Wilson, President of the Saratoga Association, were here yesterday and ready to promote the bills.

The Governor has acceded to a request of those who are opposed to a resumption of gambling on race tracks for a hearing before he acts on the Gittins bills should they pass both houses.

GOTHAM LICENSE UP TO DIX.

He Hears Religious Objections to Fifth Avenue Hotel Selling Liquor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 20.—Whether or not liquor may be sold in the Hotel Gotham, opposite the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, in New York, is for Gov. Dix to determine. Gov. Higgins and Gov. Hughes refused to give their sanction to enabling legislation, but the managers of the hotel have not given up hope of carrying their point.

Before the Governor to-day there was a hearing on Senator Sullivan's bill, which would permit the sale of liquor within the prohibited limit of 200 feet from a church, provided a part of the church property is used for other than religious purposes. The Rev. Dr. J. A. Patterson of the Anti-Saloon League, the Rev. Walter Laidlaw of the Federation of Churches, Silas B. Brownell, James Marshall Stewart, and Dr. Silas F. Hallock of the Fifth Avenue Churches, and ex-Senator George B. Agnew urged the Governor not to sign the bill.

An irresponsible party leader, Mr. Agnew said, had misled the owners when the hotel was being built, saying that he would have the law changed. Mr. Agnew said he hoped that Gov. Dix, like his predecessors, would veto the bill.

The only speech in favor of the bill was made by Job E. Hedges. He expressed the belief that the enactment of the measure was preferable to a hypocritical compliance with the law on the part of the hotel proprietors. Mr. Dix reserved decision.

KINGS OFFICIALS LOSE JOBS.

Senate Passes Bill Ousting Record Commissioner and Aid.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 20.—The fourth "ripper" bill, affecting Kings County, was passed by the Senate to-day by a party vote. It transfers from the County Judges to the Register the power to appoint the Commissioner of Records, a position now held by Lewis M. Swazey, a Republican leader of Kings. D. Harry Ralston is the Deputy Commissioner. The passage of the bill virtually turns them out of office.

Senator Brackett, minority leader, denounced the bill as a "steal." He said it was little short of petty larceny, and declared that such legislation would alienate votes from the Democratic Party. Senator Grady replied that the bill was merely retaliation for what the Republicans had done when they were in power.

Confirms Forest Head and Port Warden.

ALBANY, June 20.—Without opposition the Senate to-day confirmed the nominations of James S. Fleming of Troy as State Forest, Fish and Game Commissioner, and David Lazarus of New York as Port Warden for the Port of New York. Mr. Fleming expects to assume the duties of his office to-morrow.

TO HEAR REAL ESTATE MEN.

Cullen Will Again Consider Objections to Reducing Tax on Buildings.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 20.—In response to many requests he has received Senator Thomas F. Cullen, Chairman of the Senate Cities Committee, has granted another public hearing on the Sullivan-Shortt Single Tax bill, under which the tax rate on buildings is lowered to one-half the rate on land by a series of reductions running through five years, beginning in 1912.

This bill, with others, was introduced at the request of the Congestion Commission appointed by Mayor Gaynor. Benjamin J. Marsh, Secretary of the commission, has been at the Capitol continuously for several weeks working for the bills.

The opposition comes chiefly from the real estate interests in New York City, who declare that the bill will not serve the purpose of relieving congestion of population in certain New York districts and would affect disastrously real estate values in the city.

Among those who requested the hearing are Allan Robertson, President of the Allied Real Estate Interests; William H. Chesbrough of the Fidelity Trust Company, Francis N. Jencks, Albert J. Shaw, William C. Demorest, Edward B. H. Boynton, President of the American Real Estate Company; Judson S. Todd, Clinton R. James, Vice President of the Title Insurance Company; D. Aymar Sands, John N. Parish, and William N. Grove, Second Vice President of the Realty Company.

SAYS HE EARNED BALCH FEE.

Dr. Ferris Answers Woman's Charge That She Paid Him $200 Under Protest.

ALBANY, June 20.—Dr. Albert Warren Ferris, President of the State Commission in Lunacy, to-day briefly outlined a part of his defense to be made on June 26 to the charges filed with Gov. Dix by Mrs. Georgia C. Balch of New York, a former inmate of the Bloomingdale Hospital of White Plains. The woman alleges that she paid to Dr. Ferris, under protest, a fee of $200 for services rendered while she was an inmate of the hospital.

Dr. Ferris says that he acted in an extra-official capacity in testifying before a Sheriff's jury as an expert alienist in the case of Mrs. Balch, under an order of Supreme Court Justice Vernon M. Davis of New York, in which order the amount of compensation was stated, and that a second and extra-official visit, otherwise unnecessary, was made to Mrs. Balch at Bloomingdale incidental to giving such testimony, at the request of the special guardian of the patient, William Adolphe McQuaid, now a Deputy Attorney General.

"Mrs. Balch has not limited her attack on me," said Dr. Ferris to-day, "but has started proceedings against Dr. Hermon Hambold of New York and Dr. William Mabon, Superintendent of the Manhattan State Hospital, who also examined her as to her sanity. I understand that she has also started proceedings against the executors of her husband's will."

DIX'S NEW PLAN FOR BILLS.

To Avoid Delays, Will Have His Measures Ready When Session Opens.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 20.—Disheartened over the lack of real accomplishment on the part of the present Legislature, Gov. Dix has decided on a new departure beginning with the next session. The Governor is determined that when the Legislature meets next year all the important measures he wants passed shall be drafted under his supervision and be ready for introduction on the opening day. By this means the Governor expects to enable the Legislature to adjourn in three months or a little over, a feat that has not been accomplished since the days of Gov. Odell.

FOR 5-CENT FLATBUSH FARE.

Senate Again Passes Bill Despite Dix's Veto of Previous Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 20.—Although a similar bill was vetoed by Gov. Dix, Senator O'Brien's measure providing for a five-cent fare between Flatbush Avenue and Railroad Avenue in Kings County was passed by the Senate to-day without dissent.

The previous bill was vetoed on the ground that the question was one for the consideration of the Public Service Commission.

TO ASSESS STOCKHOLDERS.

Dix Approves Plan That They Meet Losses of Brooklyn Union Bank.

ALBANY, June 20.—The plan of Supt. of Banks Van Tuyl to assess the stockholders of the Union Bank of Brooklyn to make good the bank's losses meets with the approval of Gov. Dix. The Governor believes that if stockholders of banking institutions were compelled to make good such losses there would be fewer failures.

The Governor is understood to be opposed to a legislative investigation of the affairs of the Union Bank at this time.

Assembly Advances Election Bill.

ALBANY, June 20.—The Levy bill, generally amending the election law, which has been made a party measure in the Assembly, was advanced to third reading to-day. An amendment was adopted, providing for a referendum on the voting machine question, and another to take from Boards of Supervisors the power of appointing Commissioners of Elections, making it mandatory for them to accept persons named by political organizations unless proved incompetent or dishonest.

Aviation Bill Favorably Reported.

ALBANY, June 20.—The Duhamel bill establishing an Aviation License Board of ten members, to be appointed by the Governor, was reported favorably to-day by the Senate Codes Committee. The bill provides for the licensing of aeronauts, flying machines, aeronautical schools, and aerial exhibitions.

A Little Liberty for Robin.

Joseph G. Robin, the former banker, in the Tombs awaiting sentence on his plea of guilty to a violation of the banking laws, who has been assisting the District Attorney's office in the Carnegie Trust Company case, will get a little liberty this week. He will be taken out of the Tombs to tetsify before Referee Ernest C. Hall in the suit of the Fidelity Development Company against the Northern Bank.

FOSDICK INQUIRY INTO HIS OWN FORCE

Two of His Examiners Appear to Have Been Dealing in Mining Stock on the Side.

NOT AT ALL TO HIS LIKING

Dock Department Was Under Investigation When Investigators Sold Securities—Fosdick's Men Promoters.

Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick was busy yesterday trying to learn from two of his most trusted investigators what relationship, if any, a Guatemala gold mining concern might properly have to Commissioner Stover's Park Department.

The two chief inquirers were the subject of the day's inquiry, and when the all-day session in the Commissioner's office was concluded no announcement was made, but Mr. Fosdick intimated that one of his men and possibly more than one had ended his usefulness as an investigator to the Commissioner of Accounts.

The suggestion that all was not right among his trusted workers reached Commissioner Fosdick on Monday afternoon, when a prospectus of the Chiantla Mining and Smelting Company was placed in his hands.

The company appears to own the Esperanda Mine, worth $1,000,000, at Chiantla, Guatemala. Its list of officers included Walter J. Sears, Superintendent of the Municipal Ferries, President; Hiram W. Eastman, accountant in Commissioner Fosdick's office, Vice President; Charles J. Farley, chief clerk in the Dock Department, Treasurer, and William L. Chaffee, chief examiner in Mr. Fosdick's office, Secretary. Among the Directors is Charles B. Schenck, one of Mr. Fosdick's accountants.

The complaint accompanying the submission of the prospectus was to the effect that some of the Commissioner's men, while looking into the Dock Department, had been doing a neat business turn on the side. They had been able to persuade the men they were investigating, it is said, that they had something good to offer in the shape of mining stock in a mine abroad, and could place it at a very tempting figure.

Commissioner Fosdick had the alleged seller of the mining stock before him as the first witness yesterday. He admitted on the stand that he was the same person named in the prospectus as an officer of the Chiantla Mining and Smelting Company, but he pointed out, in reference to the Dock Department charge, that the mining company was not organized until last August, whereas the investigation into the Dock Department was completed last June.

The company's history, so far as Mr. Fosdick could develop it, was that two members of the Dock Department in combination with three men from the office of the Commissioner of Accounts, formed the $1,000,000 company by putting in $200 each. They gave their shares a par valuation of 25 cents and offered them to city employes. One employe of the Park Department was so favorably impressed that he bought stock to the amount of $50.

On the stand he said he had been coerced into buying. He met Commissioner Fosdick's men at luncheon in a Central Park inn, and as the mining stock was mentioned he asked for a chance to purchase it.

The alleged stock seller when given a chance to speak in his own behalf said he failed to see why an investigator should not interest himself in a plain business proposition if he discussed it only out of working hours.

It took a rather prolonged session to induce the investigator to see that there was anything wrong in his having something to sell while investigating for a department occupying the peculiar status of the Commissioner of Accounts' department in relation to other city departments.

"I suppose there is no reason why a city employe should not be connected with business," said Mr. Fosdick after closing the investigation for the day, "and I know of several institutions whose stock has been owned almost exclusively by city employes who were at the same time its principal sellers. However, in the case of my own department, I regard it as highly improper."

EXPRESS COMPANIES WIN.

Judge Lacombe Holds That They Need No Licenses for Wagons and Men.

Judge Lacombe in a decision filed yesterday holds that the corporation ordinances requiring express wagons and express drivers to be licensed does not apply to the drivers and wagons of express companies doing an inter-State business and therefor grants injunctions against the city asked for by the Adams, United States, and Wells Fargo Express Companies.

He says that when the case was considered on the application for preliminary injunction, the use of automobiles by one of these express companies was not discussed. It now appears that the Adams Express Company operates nearly ninety automobiles, the drives being chauffeurs. The State itself has taken charge of the regulation of these high power machines in public thoroughfares, the vehicles and chauffeurs being licensed by the State.

BRIDEGROOM SHOOTS NOISY SERENADERS

One Victim of a Wealthy New Jersey Farmer's Resentment May Die.

FIRES TWICE INTO CROWD

Buckshot Tears Through Arms and Abdomen of a Neighbor—Village "Skimmerton" Has Tragic End.

Provoked by a crowd of serenaders on the return from his honeymoon with his bride of five days, Walter Force, 28 years old, a wealthy Livingston, N. J., farmer, shot into the merrymakers assembled on the lawn at his house late on Monday night, wounding two men, one probably fatally. Force is held in the Essex County Jail in Newark without bail on a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill.

There are several versions of the story of the shooting and the events leading up to it. One is that of the young husband himself, who, when brought into the West Orange Police Station at 3 A. M. yesterday, said he had fired in self-defense; the other is told by members of the serenading party who declare that there was no provocation whatever for the shooting. Many of the farmers near Livingston declare that the shooting is the terrible outcome of a long-standing neighborhood feud, but more they will not say.

The farmhouse of the Forces is on the crest of one of the Orange Mountains, four miles from the business section of West Orange on the Livingston Road. Around about live ten more families of the same name, all related. In fact practically the whole of Livingston Township is owned by the various branches of the Force relationship. Some of the relatives of the young man now in jail have prospered and others have not fared so well. It is the remarkable success of Walter Force, it is said by many, which has made him envied and even hated by some of his neighbors and relatives. For although only 28 years old, he is already the proud possessor of a farm of 100 acres.

Last Thursday Walter Force married Miss Emma Gamble, daughter of John Gamble, Principal of the West Orange Public Schools and sister of George W. Gamble, a produce merchant of West Orange. The wedding ceremony was performed in Rosedale, N. J., and only the immediate families were present. Mr. and Mrs. Force then went on a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls, returning late Monday night. They went to the farmhouse which the young husband owns, intending to share it with Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Force, the young man's parents.

A Skimmerton That Went Wrong.

It is the custom in Livingston Township to celebrate the return of every bridal couple with a serenade, or "skimmerton," as they call it there. Accordingly a crowd of about twenty men and boys gathered just as soon as the news of the return of the bride and bridegroom had been flashed from one farmhouse to another. They came with dishpans and tinhorns, and at 11 o'clock there was a din and racket which was heard for a mile around. One of the crowd had a revolver and fired blank cartridges into the air. The crowd was not admitted, however, and the bridegroom did not appear in the doorway to make the customary speech in acceptance of the din of congratulations poured upon him, and when the crowd had waited a long time some of the merrymakers grew boisterous, it is admitted by both sides to the controversy, and used obscene language.

A true acknowledgment of the custom of the skimmerton involves the treating of the crowd to food and drink. In most cases a keg of beer is rolled out into the street in front of the house favored, which is supposed to satisfy the crowd. In this case there were no favors, the serenaders being repeatedly requested to leave the grounds as quickly as possible. This they refused to do after a consultation, and it was proposed to wear out young Force's patience by making more noise and by shooting more blank cartridges into the air.

Suddenly a window in the south wing of the house, which is occupied by the young Mr. and Mrs. Force, was opened and a shot rang out, the full charge of a 10-bore shotgun loaded with buckshot striking in the midst of a group of seven of the serenaders standing about 50 yards from the house. It was immediately followed by a second shot, which took effect a little to the right, about 60 yards from the house. Two men fell to the ground at about the same time, shrieking with pain.

One of them was Walter Leavenguth, who lives in the house next to that of the Force farmhouse. He had been standing with both hands folded facing the house from which the shot was fired. His hands and arms were practically carried away, and many of the shot penetrated his abdomen. He was thought to be dead. The other was Hugh Porter, employed as farm hand by a brother of ex-Senator Keen, whose land lies about half a mile below the Force farm. His right thigh was ripped the entire length by the second shot which came from the window.

Among those who witnessed the shooting and who were members of the crowd were Crowell Baker, an uncle of Walter Force, and two cousins, Edward Force and John Force. Another cousin, Marie Force, who lives near by, was just returning from an entertainment in a carriage, and was attracted by the shooting. She assisted in administering to the injured.

Help Refused for the Injured.

According to Percy Tyson and Morris Cook, farm hands, who stood near the men when they fell, both ran to the Force house asking for water and were repulsed by the elder Mrs. Force, who slammed the door in their faces. They also said that the crowd up to the moment of the shooting had been well behaved, and that only the revolver shot had been fired by members of the crowd. Seeing that nothing could be done for the injured at the Force house, they said, they decided to carry them a distance of 300 yards to the home of Leavenguth.

Walter Leavenguth is of the same age as Walter Force. The two boys grew up together and went to the same country school. His father has a farm of nine acres, of which the son is manager. The two young men were always regarded as good friends, and there were none who would intimate that Leavenguth had been the intended victim of the shooting.

When the serenaders, carrying the wounded men, came to the Leavenguth home Mrs. Leavenguth fainted, and remained prostrated until Dr. Edward Peck and Dr. Edwin Bond, living three miles away, arrived in their automobiles. The doctors found that Porter could live, but the condition of young Leavenguth was considered so serious that his life was despaired of. He was taken to the Orange Memorial Hospital. Acting on the advice of the doctors, the police of West Orange were notified of the shooting shortly after midnight.

Lieut. Murphy of West Orange communicated with Chief Weimer of East Orange, chief detective of the Prosecutor's office for the county, who gave orders for Force's arrest. Detective Sergeant Godfrey, accompanied by Policeman Busold, arrived at the Force home about 2 A. M.

When the young bride learned of the arrival of the police to arrest her husband she clung to him and frantically begged to share a cell with him. The police would not permit her to go to the police station, however, and thereupon she became hysterical. It was with great difficulty that young Force was wrested from his wife's arms and hurried to the police station. He gave himself up willingly, but regretted that he had to part with his wife.

Fired at the Ground, Says Force.

The police arrived in West Orange with their prisoner about 3 o'clock in the morning, and when asked for an explanation of the shooting the young husband said, according to the police:

"My wife and I were just retiring when about forty men arrived at my house, running all over my lawn and making such a noise that sleep was out of the question. My mother went to the door, begging that the noise cease and that the men go away, but they refused to do so. Then my mother suggested that we all retire and turn out all our lights, thinking that the crowd would then leave. We tried that, but it did no good.

"They made more noise than ever. Some of the men climbed up on the piazza and I thought that they would attack me and my wife. I loaded my shotgun and went to the second story window, raised it, and shot into the ground twice, thinking that it would scare them.

"The next thing I heard were screams, and my mother came up stairs and told me that some one had told her that two men had been shot. I thought they must have shot themselves, if they were shot at all. My mother went down again and told the men that if any of them were hurt they should be brought into the house and that a doctor would be summoned. But they refused to bring the men in, and that is all I know about it. I think the men must have been drinking."

All of the serenaders who were interviewed denied that they had had anything to drink before arriving at the Force home. They said that they had come with the best of intentions, the only object of the noisy demonstration being to extend congratulations to the bride and bridegroom. There was absolutely no occasion for Force's fear of violence, they all said.

When a reporter went to the Force home to get a statement from members of the family, the elder Mr. Force, a man of about seventy, was seated on the porch, smoking.

"We have nothing to say, whatever" he said. "I only hope that the young man who was seriously wounded will live."

George W. Gamble, brother of young Mrs. Force, said that Frank H. Sommers, ex-Sheriff of Essex County, had been retained as counsel for Force.

In the town of West Orange there were many who talked freely about the Force family. Young Mr. Force, it was learned, has always been active in the church and Sunday School work of the Livingston Baptist Church, and is pointed to as a model in character and achievement. He is said to have fallen heir to a fortune recently.

At the hospital it was said last night that Visiting Surgeon Runyon would probably perform an operation for the removal of shot from the abdomen of Leavenguth to-day, if the condition of the patient permitted. He was said to be in an extremely critical condition. His sister, Miss Elizabeth Leavenguth, was summoned from East Orange to be present at his bedside.

The other victim of the shooting is being treated on the Kean estate, where he is employed, and his condition was declared favorable last night.

GAYNOR PROTESTS TO ALBANY

Wants Bill for Removal of Death Avenue Tracks Passed at Once.

Mayor Gaynor wrote to Senator Robert F. Wagner yesterday asking him to use his influence to hurry up the passage of the bill now before the Legislature for the removal of the New York Central tracks on Tenth and Eleventh Avenues. The letter reads:

> June 20, 1911.
>
> Dear Senator Wagner:
>
> I very much regret that the bill to take the New York Central tracks off of Tenth and Eleventh Avenues has not been passed and sent to me before this time. If it is delayed until after the Board of Estimate adjourns for the Summer I fear the initial proceedings under it cannot be taken until next Fall, and that delay will be most regrettable. This bill provides for the making of a plan for the elevation or sinking of the tracks. If we need other legislation next Winter we can get it. It may be found expedient, for instance, to appoint a commission to carry out the work and collect the money of the company. The bill was drawn in the Corporation Counsel's office, and will effect the result desired. The bill which was passed and sent to me was wholly inoperative. The enterprise has to be done in a lawful manner. It is similar to the enterprise of sinking the tracks on Atlantic Avenue in Brooklyn, and raising them on Park Avenue in Manhattan. If we do not pass an act for the doing of it in a lawful manner it will never be done. The matter has been the subject of political claptrap for years, and we are striving now to take it out of that field and actually do the work. Why should we fail? The matter is not a difficult one, for we have the two precedents which I have mentioned to follow. I trust that those who have made the subject one of political claptrap for years will not now be allowed to defeat the passage of this bill.
>
> Very truly yours,
> W. J. Gaynor, Mayor.
>
> Hon. Robert F. Wagner,
> Senate Chamber,
> Albany, N. Y.

The present bill was practically drafted by the Mayor, and if it is passed by the Legislature he will promptly sign it.

Mayor Inspects Slaughter Houses.

Mayor Gaynor and Health Commissioner Ernst J. Lederle went on a tour of inspection yesterday through the slaughter houses on the east and west sides. Wearing hip boots and long rubber coats they examined these establishments from beginning to end. Their object was to ascertain for themselves whether the complaints regarding the way in which the houses were being conducted are justified. Chicken slaughter houses on the east side in particular were complained of. On his return to the City Hall the Mayor refused to discuss what he had seen.

$15,000 for Bath Attendants at Coney.

The Board of Aldermen adopted yesterday the resoltion providing for the appropriation of $15,000 to pay attendants at the new municipal bathhouse at Coney Island. The bill was introduced several weeks ago by Alderman Drescher of Brooklyn and met with much opposition.

TELEPHONE PLANS CALL FOR $54,928,000

New Stock Authorized by American Company Carries Rights Worth $8 to $9 a Share.

PRICE DROPS ON 'CHANGE

New Financing Brings Quotation for Rights Down to $6.75 and $7.25 in Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., June 20.—At a meeting of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company Directors, held in this city this morning, it was voted to authorize an issue of approximately $50,000,000 of new stock, in the ratio of one share of new for each five of old. Rights attach as of June 30 and expire Aug. 31. The first payment on the new stock will be due Nov. 1, 1911, and will be for 25 per cent. The balance will be due in three equal installments of 25 per cent. each, Feb. 1, 1912, May 1, 1912, and Aug. 1, 1912. This gives shareholders fourteen months in which to pay for their stock.

Partially paid stock will carry interest at current dividend rates, which will be paid on the day the regular dividends are distributed. Prepayment in full may be made, but only 4 per cent. interest in this case will be allowed.

The official statement says:

"The proceeds of this issue of capital stock will be mainly used to provide the associated companies of the Bell system outside of the State of New York with funds for current and ordinary construction and extension of plant, and will be represented in the treasury of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company by the share capital or the capital advance notes of such companies.

"A part will be used for extensions to the plant (long-distance service) of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company outside of the State of New York, and a part to maintain the cash balances now being drawn upon for all the above purposes.

"The annual report for 1910, end of Page 7 and Page 8, under head of depreciation, sets forth the great advantage and economy of advance construction. Advance construction must be planned and prepared for, and the cash provided in advance, if it is to be done in the best and most economical way.

"The charges of this proposed issue on this year's revenue will be hardly appreciable, as a matter of fact the usual yearly dividend on the whole amount could be met out of this year's revenue and still leave a surplus.

"The business of the current six months of this year will show a continuation of increases in gross and net, although the toll and long-distance business, as usual, shows the effect of business depression.

"The increase of subscribers' stations directly connected with the systems of the associated companies shows an increase over any previous year. The year will probably show a greater increase of stations, including those of connected or sub-licensed independent companies, than any previous year.

"In any comparisons with the figures so far of the present year consideration should be given to the fact that the year's surplus earnings will be reduced at least $150,000 by increased charges against it, due to conversion of bonds into stock, and also about $315,000 by the decrease of interest income, due to the exchange of capital advance notes of the associated companies held by the American Telephone Company into capital stock of such companies, upon which no dividends as yet have been credited.

"All the above facts, taken in connection with the growing and more favorable sentiment of the community, which is evidenced by the passage in some States, and general advocacy and favorable consideration in others, of bills allowing opposition telephone companies to merge, together with the very broad and exhaustive decisions in supporting our contentions in the very few cases where we have had to go to the courts for protection against adverse legislation, presage for the next and future years a continuation of our past prosperity."

The decision to offer the new stock at this time comes from one to two months earlier than had been anticipated. It is stated that the only real reason why the stock was authorized at to-day's meeting rather than a month later was that it was possible to get a full meeting of the board to-day, whereas in the hot Summer months it is very difficult to get a quorum. An important matter, such as the issuance of new shares, obviously demands as nearly a full board as possible.

The new stock is issued at par. Theoretically this should give rights worth $8 to $9 per share. On the Exchange this afternoon, however, when the announcement of the stock issue was made, the rights dropped three to four points. They were quoted at $6.75 and $7.25.

At present, American Telephone has a total of $274,640,000 stock outstanding. This would make the exact amount of new stock to issue $54,928,000.

The company has spread payments over fourteen months because the cash is not required all at once and because the financing takes care of two years' requirements, 1911 and 1912.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company has declared a quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent., increasing the annual rate from 6 per cent. to 7 per cent.

Stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company was quoted on the Paris Bourse for the first time yesterday. The company has listed 300,000 shares there. The stock opened at 790 francs, the equivalent of about 152½, and closed 3 francs higher. On the New York Exchange it opened at 151½ and closed at 147⅝, a loss of 3⅞ points for the day.

The listing of the shares in Paris has the support of the largest and most powerful French banking houses, including the Banque de Paris et du Pays Bas. Negotiations had been in progress since November of last year. Atchison stock was listed on the Paris Bourse a few weeks ago.

SWEEP FOR AMERICAN BOATS.

Cima, Bibelot, and Beaver Again Beat German Sonder Yachts at Kiel.

KIEL, Germany, June 20.—The second event in the international yacht races for sonderclass boats was won to-day by the American racers in one, two, three order. Cima was first, Bibelot second, and Beaver third.

These three American yachts were bunched far ahead of the German competitors Tilly XIV., the Wannsee, and Seehund III., which finished in the order named.

Cima, the winner, is owned and was sailed by Guy Lowell of the Eastern Yacht Club, whose crew consisted of J. R. Harding and F. A. Godley.

The elapsed times were as follows: Cima, 2 hours 25 minutes 31 seconds; Bibelot, 2 hours 25 minutes 39 seconds; Beaver, 2 hours 26 minutes; Tilly XIV., 2 hours 27 minutes 55.5 seconds; Wannsee, 2 hours 32 minutes 31 seconds; Seehund III., 2 hours 41 minutes 55 seconds. Tilly XIV. alone sailed unreefed.

Metropolitan Tennis Winners.

Attention centred upon the younger experts, Dean Mathey, the Princeton Captain; George M. Church, the Princeton interscholastic champion, and F. H. Gates of Yale, in the continuation of the Metropolitan lawn tennis championship on the turf courts of the West Side Club yesterday. Mathey was one of a small group of players who worked their way to the fifth round. In a match that savored of an intercollegiate battle between Princeton and Yale, the youngster from Old Nassau came through with flying colors, to the score of 7—9, 6—1, 6—3.

A beginning was made in the doubles, Harold H. Hackett and Carlton R. Gardner defeating H. N. Tifft and L. H. Magoun by the score of 6—3, 6—1, and O. M. Bostwick and Arthur Smith, who defeated H. M. Alden and G. K. Hildreth at 6—2, 6—1. The summary:

Men's Singles.—First Round—A. S. Cragin defeated E. P. Larned by default.

Second Round—L. du Pont Irving defeated R. L. Baggs by default; A. Bassford, Jr., defeated N. G. Johnson, 6—2, 9—7; D. E. Roberts defeated A. D. Hammett, by default; Dr. Ewing Taylor defeated Coleman Miles by default; O. C. A. Child defeated C. W. Smith, 6—5, 6—8, 12—10; G. M. Church defeated R. Gates, 6—4, 6—2; F. C. Inman defeated Dr. W. Rosenbaum, 3—6, 6—2, 6—0; A. S. Cragin defeated E. H. Eggleston, Jr., 6—1, 6—1.

Third Round.—W. M. Hall defeated L. du Pont Irving, 6—2, 6—4; L. H. Magoun defeated C. S. Lutkins by default; C. R. Leonard defeated S. H. Voshell, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4; Dr. Ewing Taylor defeated O. C. A. Child, 6—1, 6—1; G. H. Church defeated Neal Stevens, 6—2, 5—7, 6—3; F. C. Inman defeated A. S. Cragin, 7—5, 6—1; Lyle E. Mahan defeated F. P. Fuller, 6—4, 6—2; Hugh Tallant defeated H. P. Homans, 6—4, 6—2.

Fourth Round—Dean Mathey defeated F. H. Gates, 7—9, 6—1, 6—3.

Men's Doubles.—First Round—H. H. Hackett and C. R. Gardner defeated H. N. Tifft and L. H. Magoun, 6—3, 6—1; O. M. Bostwick and A. Smith defeated M. Alden and G. K. Hildreth, 6—2, 6—1.

Coaching on Magnet and Meteor.

The coach Magnet made its first regularly scheduled trip yesterday to Arrow Head Inn, with Miss Marion Hollins handling the ribbons over the four. Morris E. Howlett occupied the box seat. Others to have places on the coach were Henry B. Hollins, Frank Appleton, and Miss Alexandre. Miss Hollins drove in masterly fashion, and made the trip on schedule time. The Meteor, as usual, made the trip to Brighton Beach Casino, Coney Island, with Walter Lee driving. Prominent among the occupants on the Meteor were Mr. and Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Benser, Mr. and Mrs. Farbridge, and Mr. and Mrs. William Saloseider.

Will Issue New Jersey Licenses.

The Deputy Commissioner and Inspector of Motor Vehicles for New Jersey, W. J. Morgan, yesterday received another batch of eight-day tourists' licenses from Trenton, and was of the opinion that no more would be sent after the last 100 he received. He believes that Commissioner of Motor Vehicles J. B. R. Smith is acting in the utmost fairness toward New York in the eight-day touring matter, and he is only waiting to see what the New York Legislature will do in a reciprocity way with New Jersey before it adjourns.

Britt Beats O'Leary Easily.

Young O'Leary of Brooklyn is rapidly hitting the stride of a "has been," and last night did little more than block some of the blows of Young Britt of Baltimore in a ten-round session at Brown's gymnasium. The bout was far from being interesting, as the Baltimore boxer, although he did all the forcing and most of the landing, was unable to successfully dispose of the Brooklynite, who should have been easy picking. Of the entire ten rounds only one favored O'Leary, two resulted even, and the remainder were all in favor of Britt.

Morgan Outpoints Benedict.

Johnny Morgan, the Canadian bantamweight, who was knocked out by Roger Benedict two weeks ago, turned the tables on the latter last night by outpointing him in a fast ten-round bout at the Superior A. C. The advantage changed from one to the other often in the early part of the bout, but in the closing rounds Morgan had the advantage. In the tenth round the two stood toe to toe and exchanged punches so fast that the crowd was in an uproar and the boxers failed to hear the final bell. It was necessary for their seconds to jump into the ring and separate them. In the semi-final bout Georgie Gibson and Lou Fles fought six fast rounds to a draw.

Moore Horses Win More Ribbons.

LONDON, June 20.—Judge Moore took two firsts at the International Horse Show at Olympia to-day. His Menella and Phyllis won in the class for tandems between 14 and 15 hands, while his Lord Seaton captured the Radiant Challenge Cup for gig horses from 15 hands to 15.3.

Judge Moore won first for tandems over 15 hands and not exceeding 15.2, with his famous pair of bays, Lord Seaton and Lady Seaton. In the class for harness horses not exceeding 16 hands, he won second and fourth with Robin Hood and Wallenstein, respectively.

Louis Chevrolet Withdraws.

The only American entry in the French Grand Prix, July 23, will be the little Ford, as Louis Chevrolet and his Marquette-Buick are out of it, and he has asked W. J. Morgan, the American representative, to return him his entrance fee. The latter cabled the Automobile Club de la Sarthe, the promoters of the international road race, for instructions, and the club replied that, according to the rules, no entrance money could be returned.

The list of entries in the Grand Prix now totals twenty-five. Louis Disbrow and Ralph De Palma are now endeavoring to make entries, but it is doubtful if either of them will go to represent America.

SULLIVAN LEAGUE ATHLETES COMPETE

Youngsters of Lower East Side Schools Hold Sports in Seward Park.

Public schoolboys of the lower east side, distinctively known as the James E. Sullivan Athletic League, held a banner series of sports yesterday at Seward Park, Canal and Hester Streets, probably 5,000 persons witnessing the nine events decided.

Refereed by Mr. Sullivan, the games were very well conducted, being unmarred by even a semblance of a protest by any of the lads. Youngsters of Public School 147 carried off the point trophy offered by the referee, who also donated the other prizes given. The winners' total was 38. Public School 22 gained 36, while Nos. 160 and 98 tallied 17½ and 6½, respectively.

One of the features was the wonderful strength and form of H. Lazofsky of Public School 147, a competitor in the chinning event, which consisted of trying for the greatest number of pull-ups to a horizontal bar. This lad, who some time since had the misfortune to have an accident which resulted in the amputation of his right leg just above the knee, performed with as much vim and snap as his more fortunate opponents, and managed to get a tie as the result of his work, by doing 26 pull-ups, a feat quite above the average for lads of the size who competed, as 20 pull-ups is considered a high figure.

The best running class of the series was the unlimited weight contest at sixty yards. H. Singer of No. 147, who recently won the novice schoolboy championship "hundred," won from J. de Vita, another No. 147 lad, who all but got his mate at the worsted in 8 2-5 seconds. Two lads from No. 160 put up a gallant struggle, finishing so close up that a yard would have covered the quartet.

Of the relays, that for the 100-pound lads was the best. Wizutsky of Public School 147 and Lefkowitz crossed the line at the expiration of the fourth relay inches apart after the hardest race of the games. A. Berkowitz of 22 did 8 feet 3½ inches in the standing broad jump, winning by an inch from S. Lipshitz of No. 147. The summary:

50-Yard Dash; 85-Pound Class.—Won by J. Himmelstein, P. S. 147; A. Levonosky, P. S. 22, second; B. Teitle, P. S. 22, third; S. Feldman, P. S. 147, fourth. Time—0:08 1-5.

60-Yard Dash; 100-Pound Class.—Won by C. Eisen, P. S. 22; R. Yaffee, P. S. 147, second; B. Schwartz, P. S. 22, third; S. Greenwald, P. S. 22, fourth. Time—0:08 4-5.

60-Yard Dash; 115-Pound Class.—Won by C. Mann, P. S. 160; A. Hirschorn, P. S. 160, second; F. Bernstein, P. S. 147, third; W. Leichter, P. S. 22, fourth. Time—0:08 3-5.

60-Yard Dash; Unlimited Weight.—Won by H. Singer, P. S. 147; J. de Vita, P. S. 147, second; S. Goldstein, P. S. 160, third; F. Beckleman, P. S. 160, fourth. Time—0:08 2-5.

Umpires—Connolly and O'Loughlin. Time of game—Two hours and ten minutes.

Turn on the electric fan, open the windows, and hear about it.

The Yankees were thoroughly beaten by the Bostons on the Hilltop yesterday when they swung gracefully into the ninth inning. The Red Sox were far in front by an 8-to-4 score. The Yankee outlook was funereal. The gates were crowded with people going home. Unbeknownst to a soul, somebody put a big charge of nitroglycerine under Charley Hall, the Boston pitcher.

Sweeney was the first man up, and he grassed to oblivion, Wagner to Engle. Jim Vaughn walked.

What's this? Bang!

Bert Daniels cudgeled the ball to the right-field fence for a three-bagger, and Vaughn went home. Fitzgerald, a smooth-faced youngster, new to the Yankees, sent a grounder to Larry Gardner, to be thrown out at first, Daniels scoring in the meantime. The explosive now started to work, and Hall began to wind up and swing as if his arm was made of lead.

It's coming quick now. Caution is thrown to the winds. Men begin to hug each other and swallow their cigars, the women got red in the face, and the boys, oh, the boys, they began to try to rip up the seats.

Hartzell singled to left. Cree spanked one to right, sending Hartzell to third. Jack Knight angrily smote the ball amidships, and it sang its way to deep right field for three bases, sending Hartzell and Cree home, and the score was tied.

This is a three-alarm fire, sure.

Tenderly Hall was ushered from the fanatic mob. Owner John I. Taylor of the Boston team chewed his lower lip and frowned. It was too much. He turned his head away. Pape, a new pitcher, went to the mound and Hal Chase stepped up to bat. The populace stopped breathing, and only the singing of the west wind broke the quiet of the gathering dusk. Pape went in cold—icicles were dangling off his flinging arm. He whipped over a ball. The next one wasn't over the plate, but Hall was impatient and went out to meet it. High toward centre field it flew, then began to drop like a bird with a broken wing. Tris Speaker was after it. The west wind came to the rescue again. It carried the ball far toward right, and Speaker strained every muscle to keep up with its flight. No, no, no, he couldn't reach it. Knight hustled in from third and Chase was swallowed in the dancing crowd.

Of all the spectacular jumping picture shows that have ever been seen on the Hilltop canvas this was the best. The rally was engineered with murderous intent and carried out with dynamic execution. The Yanks won, 9 to 8. Now will Boston behave? Take that.

In the first inning New York, with Russell Ford pitching, was very confident. Two three-baggers by Daniels and Cree, a sacrifice, and a single by Wolter produced two runs. Boston had one, but it didn't look big. Another Red Sox tally in the second tied the score, and in the fourth inning Chase surprised the multitude by taking Ford out of the box and substituting Vaughn. The Yankees are rich with good pitchers, it seems.

Vaughn held the whip hand until the sixth inning, when Knight fumbled Yerkes's grounder. He was sacrificed to second and scored on Nunamaker's single. In the seventh the Red Sox plastered Vaughn without consideration. Hooper walked and was sacrificed by Gardner. Speaker was safe on a bunt which wasn't gathered quite correctly by Chase and the Yankee infield. Lewis singled to third, scoring Hooper. Yerkes forced Lewis at second. Then Charley Wagner jammed a home run into the centre-field bleachers on the hop, and four runs were chalked on the scoreboard.

Hall began to crack in the eighth inning, but the chances of the home team looked to be worth about as much as a plugged nickel. However, four cracking singles netted two runs, and at least took the touch of complete humility from the impending Yankee defeat. Speaker was hit in the ribs, and he scored on a two-bagger by Lewis.

Then followed the tumultuous ninth with its fire and smoke and thunder and lightning. Pity the poor Bostons in a wild storm like this. Nothing could save them. Gladness broke forth in a fusillade of stinging hits, and victory shone out of the gloomy sky like a rainbow after a storm.

It was a sizzling, cracking good game, with lots of sharp, accurate fielding, heavy cannonading, and strong-arm throwing by both outfields. There were a few errors, too, but who cares in a happy moment like now about errors. What if there were two dozen! Nobody cares.

BUNTS, HITS, AND MISSES.

The Red Sox have taken six out of ten games from the Yankees this season. Enough!

High-handed robbery—Yerkes nabbed Chase's red-hot grounder in the sixth with his bare hand and tossed him out. Hooper gathered Cree's long fly on the finger tips in the eighth after a mile romp.

If the Boston management really means to ask for the rumored waivers on Wagner some one will get hurt in the mad scramble to get him.

Jack Knight was out to wreck something. He broke two bats, and when he bruised the ball for a three-bagger in the ninth both bat and ball were scarred for life.

Birdie Cree raised a foul over the boxes in the sixth, and it landed plump on a man's bare head. The ball bounced as if from granite, and no injuries were reported, either.

The wings of Catchers Sweeney and Nunamaker were both limber, and all but one ambitious stealer was turned back.

If the Yankees keep this sort of thing up, fans better have their hearts examined before going through the turnstiles.

Considerable strong-arm throwing on tap. Cree and Lewis hit the plate at half a mile.

Saturday's crowd was missed, thank you.

A good many warblers are gargling their throats as a result of that ninth inning rally.

There are rallies and rallies, but few of that 100 hourse power kind. Too big a strain on the motors.

Bring on your Joe Wood again, go on.

In the Subway waiting for the train—"Say! Why didn't you wait for the 'third out?'"

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., June 20.—A two-base hit by Larry Doyle, following a single and a stolen base by Josh Devore, gave the Giants to-day's game against the Kling-Tenney-Russells 2 to 1. Strictly speaking, Doyle's two-bagger was the means of propelling in the winning count, but the pitching of Rube Marquard, who surprised the local talent by staying throughout the game and holding the Hopes to six hits, was a powerful factor. Marquard had to pitch some because Boston's best little battery, Mattern and Kling, were in the points, and between Johnny and Albert the Giants were able to gather only five somewhat scattered bingles. It was a tight battle all the way through. Pitching of the sort that was being served is not conducive to much grand stand playing.

There was a fair-sized crowd to witness the former Cubs, two of whom, Kling and Kaiser, appeared in the game in the spangles of the locals. Kling caught an excellent game, and Kaiser fielded well, although he did not have much to do in his bailiwick. Boston's new outfielder, Mr. Jones, played in centre field part of the game, giving, however, no indications of having yet become accustomed to the big league motions. It was the same old Giant team, except that Otis Crandall was at short field in place of Al Bridwell. It is fair to assume that after Ote gets through hurling he can obtain a job as an infielder, for barring one uncouth heave he took care of his territory in perfect fashion and chased out into short left field for a couple of high ones that were dangerously near hits.

Boston got a lead of one run in the third round. Mattern had succumbed when Crandall tossed wide on Sweeney's rap. Tenny followed with a hit to centre, but Snodgrass, by a great piece of fielding and a perfect throw, caught Bill going to third. Tenny took second on the throw-in and scored, thanks to Merkle, on Herzog's hit to right. Devore made a great throw and would probably have caught Tenny at the rubber had not Merkle jumped in and grabbed the ball as it was shooting on a line to Meyers.

It was not until the sixth that the Giants could force the issue sufficiently to produce a deadlock. Snodgrass managed to draw a walk at the opening of the inning. Murray flied out, and Merkle also walked. Crandall doubled to left, scoring Snodgrass. In the next play Devlin rapped to Ingerton, who pegged home and caught Merkle at the plate. Meyers got a walk after this, filling the bases, but Marquard was unequal to the task of driving in a couple of counts and went out, Herzog to Tenny.

Both pitchers went well after that until the ninth, when with two out Devore singled and stole. Doyle planked one over Jeff Pfeffer's head, the ex-Cub playing it rather poorly, so that Larry got two bases and Devore galloped home. Snodgrass went down by the way of Ingerton and Tenny for the third out.

Sharp fielding by Crandall and a strike out by Marquard ended matters propitiously for the Giants in the Boston half of the last round. The $11,000 beauty never more clearly demonstrated the worth of John McGraw's judgment than he did throughout the whole game, and with perfect support would surely have won a well-merited shut-out.

HARVARD ROUTS YALE.

New Haven Pitchers Get a Severe Beating and Crimson Wins, 8 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 20.—Outplayed in every department of baseball, Yale to-day lost its opening match of the season to Harvard, 8 to 2, before a brilliant crowd of 12,000 alumni and guests of commencement week. The visitors shot to the lead in the first inning with two home runs, and Yale never came abreast. Terrific bombardment of both Yale pitchers placed victory safe for the Crimson, but Yale missed easy fielding chances which, while not technical errors, netted runs.

Capt. McLaughlin of the visitors batted terrifically, his three-bagger in the seventh inning driving two runs across the plate and making almost inevitable his own score on the next play. His home run found the bases unoccupied. Babson and Potter shone in all-around ball for Harvard, the nine chances accepted faultlessly at second base by the latter giving the quietus to several apparently safe Yale hits.

Harvard's fielding was as fast as its batting was strong, and three whirlwind double plays upset as many Yale batting rallies. Substitute McKee, who displaced the cripple Bennett, played the most brilliant ball for Yale, leading his side at the bat and corralling nine chances without a misplay. Both Yale pitchers were handled without mercy by the Crimson batsmen. After Hartwell had been retired in the sixth inning, Scott was pounded for three runs in the seventh. The score:

SUPERBAS PLAY GAME BATTLE, BUT LOSE

Dahlenites Force Play Into Tenth Inning, When Phillies Bag Run Needed for Victory.

Bill Dahlen had his Superba ball tossers back on their home lot yesterday afternoon after a somewhat inglorious whirl around the Western end of the circuit, and they made Red Dooin's hustling Phillies go ten innings to gain a victory. Three times during the battle the Quakertown crowd jumped into a lead, and three times the Superbas came back just strong enough to crawl back to even terms. The lone run lead which the Quakers pushed across in their half of the tenth inning proved just a bit too large for the Dodgers to overcome in the limited space of one-half inning, and it gave the Dooinites the verdict, 6 to 5.

Brooklyn had to take second honors in both batting and fielding, but had the satisfaction of chasing Earl Moore to the clubhouse before taps sounded. The downfall of the big fellow came in the eighth inning. The Brooklyn outlook appeared decidedly dim after Wheat had fanned for the first out in the last half of the inning, with the Phillies leading 5 to 2, but this was the spot where some one touched off the fuse. Two hits and a pair of passes clustered so closely that Manager Dooin awoke to the fact that Moore was slipping after the bases had been filled and one Brooklyn runner chased across the plate. Any kind of a hit would put the Superbas in position to grab back the victory, and there was a sudden gathering of Phillies in the vicinity of the pitcher's box. Moore looked on sadly while Manager Dooin and Capt. Doolan discussed the case, and then he wearily dragged his number elevens toward the bench.

Here comes Alexander on a dog trot from the outfield, where he had been getting in shape for just such an emergency. Alexander has made quite a little noise for a newcomer in the big show, but the best of 'em do not relish a call to duty with the corners decorated and only a hit or two needed to break up the game. Nothing but fancy flinging would save the day, and Alexander was there with the fancy stuff. It proved a bit too fancy, for the third strike on Tex Erwin also fooled Pat Moran, and the ball splashed off Pat's mit and rolled to the sand. Hans Lobert made a flying dash for the fleeting horsehide, and Bill Dahlen, on the third base coaching line, saw to it that Hans had a clear patch. Yes, he did—not. The Superba manager seemed to be everywhere that Hans wanted to go, and there was a grand little mix-up before Dahlen was left in the rear. When Hans finally collared the ball two more Superbas had finished their journey, and the score was again tied.

The next scene represents Hank O'Day in a circle of excited Quakers, all talking at once, making motions with their hands and shooting occasional glaring glances toward Dahlen, who moved uneasily around the noisy circle as if he feared those two runs might be lost. While the argument was at its height Zimmerman moved up to third base from second and Erwin skidded along to the midway. O'Day continued to wave his head from side to side, the oratory gradually subsided, and the Phillies dragged themselves back to their positions. Then Alexander continued his fine work by forcing Barger to hit weakly and Burch to strike out. In the last two chapters he mowed the Superbas down in order. The score:

Amateur Boxing in Open Air.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 20.—Amateur boxing bouts in the open air on one of the public playgrounds of the city, under the sanction of the municipal authorities, are the latest novelty in Connecticut, introduced here under the auspices of a number of prominent men interested in the athletic development of the youth of the city. The first of the proposed public boxing tournaments was held successfully last night, the bouts ranging from lightweight to bantamweight. The crowd of spectators was large and enthusiastic, and included many women, who watched the programme with interest from start to finish.

GREAT NECK POLOISTS WIN.

New Haven, 2d, Defeated at Meadow Brook in Hempstead Cups Game.

Wide difference in official ratings and playing form seem to be the rule at Meadow Brook. Yesterday the New Haven second organization were rated at only three goals in the aggregate, and verified that opinion of the official handicapper by registering a couple of honors, while at the same time distinguishing themselves by losing 1¼ goals for penalties, which, with their allowance of 7, netted them 7¾ at the end of eight more or less strenuous periods of play. Their conquerers were the First Great Necks, whose total rating was 10 and who piled up exactly 15 goals without penalty of any kind. The contest was the second for the Hempstead Cup.

Despite these figures, the game was quite appetizing to follow, and one of the most instructive for young players to watch that any tournament this season has presented. The line-up had been scheduled for the express purpose of testing the relative merits of young Elliott C. Cowdin at No. 1, assisted by Alexander Burden, Hamilton Hadden, and J. G. Milburn, Jr., in the order named, as it was expected that the opposition might play a heavyweight man at "back" for young Cowdin to operate against. As a matter of fact, however, the New Haven club put in the youthful H. R. Holt as No. 4 on paper, but actually deputed him to act as Nemesis to Mr. Milburn, and the two kept company most of the afternoon.

For the first two and a half periods James Parkes of Pittsburg rode "in front" of the Connecticut quartet, and was doing well, but unfortunately a ball struck him in the face immediately after he had registered one brilliant goal in the third period, and he withdrew, giving place to Peter Stevenson, brother of Malcolm Stevenson. J. C. Rathbone rode at No. 3, and played his position very well until the team found itself overwhelmed, when half-time was called. In the centre of the team T. Le Boutillier, 2d, an ambitious young player, showed up to advantage at many critical periods of play, and both he and Holt must have absorbed a lot of knowledge in the matter of picking up and riding off as a result of the opposition they met. That the Connecticut talent could not win even with seven goals in hand is nothing to be ashamed of, for the Great Necks are easily under consideration for a higher rating, although they should change titles with the Phipps quartet, which for some reason are called the second team during this tournament.

The summary:

| GREAT NECK I. | NEW HAVEN II. |
|---|---|
| Elliott C. Cowdin, | P. Stevenson, |
| A. S. Burden, | J. C. Rathbone, |
| Hamilton Hadden, | T. Le Boutillier, |
| J. G. Milburn, Jr. | H. R. Holt. |

Goals scored—Great Neck: Milburn, (2,) Cowdin, (5,) Burden, (5,) Hadden, (3.) Total—15. New Haven: Parkes, (1,) Holt, (1;) allowed by handicap, 7; less penalties, 1¼. Total—7¾. Referee—Harry H. Holmes.

To-day the Meadow Brook champions meet the Magpies, and they will have to play hard, as they allow the latter twenty-two goals.

E. L. Stokes Hurt Severely in Polo.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—Devon defeated the Country Club Freebooters in the semi-final match of the Wootton Cup polo series to-day on the Bryn Mawr polo field, 10 goals to 6½. E. Lowber Stokes of the Devon team had his lips badly split in the eighth period when one of the Freebooters raised the ball for a long drive. The ball struck Stokes full in the mouth, knocking him from his mount in a dazed condition. He was removed to the Bryn Mawr Hospital, and the game continued with only three men on each side. The Freebooters were allowed one goal by the handicapper, as follows:

| DEVON. | | COUNTRY CLUB. | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Thomas Stokes | 1 | A. J. Drexel Paul | 0 |
| L. L. Downing | 2 | A. V. Swartz | 1 |
| E. L. Stokes | 2 | W. H. T. Huhn | 4 |
| T. H. Dougherty | 2 | W. P. Stewart | 1 |
| Total | 7 | Total | 6 |

E. L. Stokes and Downing each scored three goals, and T. Stokes and Dougherty each two of the ten goals earned by the victors. The Freebooters earned six goals, three by Huhn and one each by Stewart, Swartz, and Paul. They were penalized one-half goal for safeties by Paul.

Longwood Tennis Starts July 17.

BOSTON, June 20.—Arrangements have been completed for the Eastern doubles championship and the twenty-first annual Longwood lawn tennis tournament to be held on the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club in this city on Monday, July 17, and the following days. It was announced to-night that some of the best of the Pacific Coast players were expected to participate, in addition to most of the leading Eastern tennis cracks. The sixth Longwood Challenge Cup will be put into competition for the first time, W. A. Larned having permanently won the fifth cup last year. The new cup will become the possession of any person winning it for three years, not necessarily consecutive. It is expected that Mr. Larned will defend his title. The tournaments are open to members of clubs belonging directly or indirectly to the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, and entries to all events will be received up to noon, July 15, by Arthur S. Pier, 201 Columbus Av., Boston.

OUT OF THE PAST.

To the Hon. WOODROW WILSON,
State Capitol,
Trenton,
Please forward. N. J.

My Dear Sir: He who ventures to address you was, when he dwelt among living men, on the broad disk of the earth, STEPHEN ARNOLD DOUGLAS, a name, in its time, oft in the mouths of the people. I am made bold to communicate with you, not only because, as a student and writer of history, the facts of my brief and strenuous career, now dim in minds of common men, must be somewhat known to you, but also because there are some features of that career which seem, in some degree, parallel with certain features of your own. If I mistake as to this, you must pardon me for the love I always bore and which you now bear to the great party of which you are, as once I was, a proud and confident and, perhaps, a too ambitious leader.

We, the immortal shades of mortal men, who inhabit the pale shores of the Stygian Lakes, within the unbroken gloom of Tartarus, are spared one portion of our earthly equipment, which becomes more active and vital with the weary passing of the uncounted years, because it alone is preserved to us unimpaired, and brings to our sad hearts the only consolation, poor as it may be, poor as surely it is with me, that is permitted. This is memory. And memory paints for me, against the dreary background of my surroundings, a picture of the life I led, to which I venture to call your thoughts. I was a strong and gifted man. I had an abounding store of energy and endurance, and the delight of battle was as the breath of my nostrils. I was resourceful, ingenious, even subtle, so that my enemies deemed me cunning. But men followed me eagerly and fought by my side, and ere the down was heavy on my cheeks the people called me the "Little Giant." I believed, as you do, in democracy, and since the shield and buckler of democracy is the support of the majority, I early learned, and, until near the end, incessantly practiced the art of persuading, moving, enlisting, and using the multitude. I was wary of the ideas and motives, lofty as they may have been, and inspired by the just gods, which appeal only to the few. My thoughts dwelt in the present and the near future, and I treated with sincere contempt the visionaries who aimed to build upon the consciences of men a structure that could be erected for their children's children.

And I was successful. Before I had reached your present age, I had fought my way through State offices and the House of Representatives to the Senate of my country, and from the moment my firm step crossed the threshold of that body I took place in the front rank, and within a few years had definitely shaped the policy of my party, as I thought, for many years. It was a hard task, as you, the historian, know; but, as it then seemed to me, its rewards were rich. Before I was old enough to be President, I made a first fight for the nomination of my party, and a good one. I made a second which was still more promising. As the third trial came near, and I looked over the ground I had gained, measured the force of my leadership, counted the multitude to whom I had appealed, and recognized the hopeless idealism of the extremists on both sides, I felt sure of a signal triumph. I had wasted no strength on abstract principles. I had kindled no misleading aspirations toward Utopias of justice and freedom. I had read the everyday thoughts of the many and was ready to guide them along a simple path to the easy settlement of current questions, and made sure that they would follow and sustain me.

The happy end seemed very near. At this juncture, rather for confirmation than for advice, I asked one of the sages of my party, MARCY by name, what he thought my prospects were. He answered, as sages will, with a parable of a racer, who early in his course had put forth all his strength and then demanded of an old athlete when he would be likely to reach the goal, and the veteran replied: "If you run like a sane man, you will soon arrive; if you run so like Hades as you have been running, you will never get there." The sage was right. I had not only exhausted my strength, but I had wholly misdirected it. The multitude whom I had counted on, and, indeed, had loyally served, fell away from me. At last they had felt the appeal of the visionaries to their conscience and their manhood. My keen eyes, studying their everyday thoughts, had been blind to the approach of a mighty crisis, before which my plans and schemes, my compromises and expedients, shriveled like stubble in a prairie fire.

Your lot has fallen in more tranquil times. You are not likely to meet the perils and trials which bore me down. But dwelling in these sad regions on the picture of my own career which undying memory paints for me, I am moved to draw your gaze toward it. I have no advice to offer, still less any implications to convey. But of all the thoughts that pursue and torment me in the House of Hades none is so hateful and pitiless as that of the Multitude, which I trusted, courted, served, and which failed me.

I wish you farewell, and GOD be with you.

STEPHEN ARNOLD DOUGLAS.

LOST, TWO MILLIONS?

GEORGE OTIS SMITH, Chief of the Geological Survey of the Department of Agriculture, has almost succeeded, we think, in frustrating the will of the people and the intent of Congress, by preventing the purchase of tracts of forest lands in the "strategic areas" of the White Mountains and in the Southern Appalachians.

The $2,000,000, appropriated for the acquirement of these areas in 1911, must return to the Treasury before June 30, unless contracts are closed for its expenditure before that date. The United States Forest Service has made a complete examination of nearly 50,000 acres in the White Mountains, comprising the steepest slopes of the Presidential range and of the Franconia range. The National Forest Reservation Commission judges that the preservation of these forests is "necessary to the regulation of the flow of navigable streams." But, according to the law, the contracts of sale are not valid until the Geological Survey shall report to Secretary WILSON that "the control of such lands will promote or protect navigation of streams on whose watersheds they lie."

The law was approved by President TAFT March 1, 1911. These tracts have been surveyed and resurveyed. The Geological Survey has time and again declared that the forest cover regulates stream flow. Mr. SMITH was reproached six weeks ago for his neglect to act, by a delegation headed by Gov. BASS of New Hampshire and Prof. GEORGE F. SWAIN of the Engineering Department at Harvard University; he had taken the position that he was "not warranted in prejudging the case of any area," yet he had done nothing since the enabling act was passed to carry out the intent of Congress. Up to June 15—Chief SMITH vouchsafes the information—he has merely sent two men to New Hampshire to "make plans for an investigation." There "might be reports" from one tract of land in Georgia and another in Tennessee. Mr. SMITH is in the attitude of a recalcitrant mule.

But when a mule decides to balk, it should not choose its balking place upon a railroad crossing. Mr. SMITH had best beware the cow-catcher of public opinion. We recommend that the case of the purchase of tracts under the joint Eastern Forest Preserve act be immediately appealed to Secretary WILSON and to the President. There is yet time to provide a new head for the Geological Survey, if not to utilize properly the funds appropriated by Congress. Possibly both things can be done properly, and immediately.

THE TWO RECIPROCITY DEBATES.

There are ample signs that the Senate is following the reciprocity debate throughout the country at least as closely as the country is following the debate in the Senate. The contrast between the two discussions is striking and encouraging. The Senate discussion is of the old-fashioned sort, colored by manoeuvre and intrigue and attributions of motives. The interests and the parties are as willing as ever to do business together in the old ways, and to make any coalition at the expense of the country. The farmers are as willing to sacrifice the country as they are unwilling that the country should sacrifice them. The political farmers are thinking of the next conventions and the next elections and not of the country, except as an afterthought. The insurgents who were so eager to administer the draught of tariff reform to others strangle when the cup is pressed to their lips, and vow that if they are compelled to swallow the bitter medicine the country shall take more than is good for it. Rule or ruin is their motto, and they are willing to sell themselves to their opponents. The Democrats, instead of profiting by the dissensions of the Republicans, seem eager to get into similar difficulties themselves.

What is encouraging about this sordid and repulsive exhibition of politics is that the country pays so little attention to it, but holds steadfast to the line indicated by the last election. It knows what it wants and means to get it, but is not anxious to get it all at once. One thing at a time is the country's policy, and reciprocity is the thing just now. The country is not disturbed by predictions of disaster by those opposed to freer trade, and is not allured by predictions of greater prosperity by broader measures of tariff reform. The country is keeping its eyes steadily on the main question without the least divergence from the straight path. It is not passing resolutions about either the Republican or Democratic brands of tariff reform, but is passing resolutions about reciprocity.

Senator LODGE received one set, and withdrew his amendment. Senator ROOT was more stubborn, but it now appears that he has taken note of the resolutions of the Chamber of Commerce of his State to the effect that the Representatives of New York should pass reciprocity "without amendment." It was announced yesterday on his behalf that he would vote for the bill, with or without his amendment. But he proposes to address the Senate upon it. The Senator is a better lawyer than politician. If he were addressing the Supreme Court he might win a disastrous victory. In addressing the Senate he is under the disadvantage of seeking to convince a body whose collective mind is made up, and whose function, moreover, is to adopt a policy rather than to follow precedents. The Senate's vote will assist in determining what shall be and will not be determined by what has been heretofore. Canadian reciprocity opens new ground on the tariff question, and the arguments which should and will prevail are those of statesmen rather than those of lawyers.

A word of caution may be addressed to the Democrats who are suffering from an excess of zeal on the tariff question. They should beware of arousing Democratic insurgents who would make their party as pitiable a political spectacle as the Republicans. Have not the Democrats observed that the Republicans prospered better by their promises than by their performance? A promise to revise the tariff in the manner of the popular mandate is better politics than a bungling attempt to redeem the promise. The country is sophisticated now, and knows that neither party, nor any tariff, is capable of being as beautiful as it is painted by its friends, or as shocking as it is painted by its opponents. Just as the Republicans never produced a tariff which was not perfect, so it is just imaginable that even a perfect Democratic tariff may need to be explained by its friends. A promise to produce a perfect tariff is better campaign material than a tariff which needs to be defended, despite its perfection. The enactment of Canadian reciprocity and the exposure of Republican tariff blunders may be all that the Democrats can accomplish, but that is an ample installment of performance on which to go to the country as a pledge of further revision downward with all prudent haste. The Democrats should think more of the country and less of the party. The country is no more ready for free trade, whatever its merits, than it is for free silver or New Nationalism. Peace and prosperity are what the country wants, not agitation for the sake of politics. Revision upward lasted the Republicans for a generation, and Democratic revision downward may be made to go as far with due discretion.

DUHAMEL ON THE RECALL.

We have received from Senator JAMES F. DUHAMEL of the Eighth District the following letter:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You again indulge in inconsistencies regarding the recall in adjoining columns of your Saturday's issue, when in one column you refer to the case of the President of the Borough of Queens having again been pronounced guilty of incompetency and neglect of duty, while in the adjoining column, referring to the Beacom short ballot, you take a fling at the recall and rejoice at its omission from the Beacom Charter.

Many of us believe that as far as the interests and wishes of the people of Queens are concerned, the merits of the Gresser case will receive little consideration at Albany. It is his friends in other parts of the State who will decide the matter. The recall will readily remedy the defect by leaving it to the people of Queens to pass judgment on matters which interest them, and with which they are thoroughly familiar.

The roll is now so long that it is difficult to enumerate the number of Borough Presidents who have been found guilty in the past few years, and the questions involved in their dismissal, and in some cases attempted restoration to office; the people of these various boroughs have been influenced by jealousy of the executive power, and certainly in these cases they are best qualified to pass upon such measures.

You overlooked the fact that the most enlightened and prosperous nation on the face of the earth, Switzerland, has the recall and does not find it oppressive or unjust.

JAMES F. DUHAMEL.
Albany, N. Y., June 19, 1911.

Does not the "number of Borough Presidents who have been found guilty" and dismissed, the roll of whom is now "so long that it is difficult to enumerate" them, furnish a reasonable excuse for our continuing to do without the recall? Queens continues to elect Cassidys and Gressers. A "recalled" Borough President would be replaced by one just as bad. Gov. DIX has not yet refused to remove GRESSER.

THE DONORS OF BLOOD.

Even homeopathists complain that the doctors of the modern school have largely done away with the use of drugs. The case of Senator LUKE LEA of Tennessee, who on Monday "donated" a quart of his healthy blood to save the life of his wife, is in point. The development of knowledge that the blood contains specific forces of immunity, largely stimulated by the researches of Sir A. E. WRIGHT, accounts for this tendency to do away with the glass, the spoon, and the potion.

Blood transfusion, heightening the powers of resistance, is an anologue of preventive medicine. Dr. CRILE of Cleveland, who developed the alternative method of saline injections, prefers the splicing of veins of donors with recipient patients. In severe surgical operations, transfusion prevents shock; in infectious diseases, it establishes immunity. CRILE and BEEBE have drained the blood of cancerous dogs, transfusing into their bodies the blood of dogs found immune to cancer. In every case the cure was complete. Dr. JAMES EWING of the Cornell Medical School, and most cancer experts, are convinced that thousands of human beings recover spontaneously and unconsciously of cancer. If it were possible by a test to ascertain the immunity of these recovered individuals, the problem of the cure of human cancer might be solved.

DRS. OTTENBERG and FRIEDMAN of Columbia are experimenting upon the bloods of animals and human beings to discover, if possible, the way to overcome the fatal tendency of the blood of different species to form clots when transfused. This tendency is observable in some cases between human beings, so that it is necessary, as in the case of Senator LEA, to determine this question by preliminary tests. But JEAN BAPTISTE DENIS in the seventeenth century successfully transfused the blood of lambs into his patients' veins, and, in 1894, DE DOMINICIS reported transfusions from twenty-seven dogs to nineteen human beings. Since that time many doctors have studied the problem, and there is hope that blood from any species may soon be customarily used to reinforce the vital powers of human beings. Senator LEA risked his life in this operation. Medicine will have achieved a great victory when human donors of blood are no longer needed to make this sacrifice.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Open Warfare Against the Police.

"Gangs," criminal, semi-criminal, and merely rowdies more or less ruffianly, with something of organization and recognized leaders, have long, perhaps always, existed in this city. They have frequently attacked and sometimes killed their natural enemy, the individual policeman. Rarely, if ever, in the past, however, have even the worst of them ventured upon as much as defensive warfare with the police as a body, and that this week two of the gangs on a single evening should have gone so far as to take the offensive against the hastily summoned reserves is something new, sinister, and, if not exactly alarming, at least enough to give the municipal authorities a subject for very serious consideration.

In one case the gangsters, to effect the rescue of an arrested companion on the way to the station, hired an automobile or otherwise secured its use, filled it with eight of their best fighting men, followed the prisoner and his captors to a carefully selected spot, and there piled out and gave battle. They were not successful, and relinquished the attempt when reinforcements for the policemen arrived. The utilization of the motor car was a novel feature of the affair, and quite removes it from the category of impulsive lawlessness.

In the other instance what was a commonplace row between street car rowdies and a few policemen gained significance from the fact that the former, with apparently sincere indignation, denied the right of the latter to use their clubs in restoring order and making arrests. This reminds one that only a few days ago the Mayor was at some pains to secure from Commissioner WALDO a contradiction in explicit terms of the report that orders had recently been issued depriving the police of either clubs or revolvers. The contradiction must, of course, be accepted as conclusive, so far as the order went, but it was not denied that in one way or another both the policemen and their antagonists had gained the impression that the policeman who uses his weapons is sure to stand a trial in which his word would count for much less than that of any man whom he had hurt.

None of us, any more than the Mayor, wants the inoffensive citizen to be clubbed or shot, but immunity for the offensive citizen, for the gangs, is a different matter, and the belief that it exists should promptly be removed.

Senatorial Folly Culminates.

In a moment of what one may call, according to his taste in the use of epithets, either unseemly levity or sheer imbecility, the Senators at Albany yesterday passed by a vote of 27 to 2 a bill, evolved by Senator GRADY in a moment of personal irritation against one newspaper—the bill requiring that beneath every editorial article in every newspaper there should be printed the name of its writer.

This is carrying a joke, if it was a joke, pretty far, but we are ourselves too charitable to charge the Senate with having twenty-seven members stupid enough either to expect or to desire the enactment of such a law as this. Presumably even those who voted for it are trusting the Assembly, or, as a last resort, the Governor, to keep the Grady bill off the statute book. Presumably, too, their confidence is justified, though one cannot be over-sure of anything legislative or gubernatorial in these disquieting days.

But why should twenty-seven Senators care to have recorded against them the gross folly of voting for a bill as absurd as this—a bill that would make the State, as well as the press thereof, an object of ridicule to the civilized world—a bill that by no possibility could be enforced and that really could not be obeyed, whatever the desire to do so. As we explained the other day—quite needlessly, perhaps—no one name reveals the whole provenience of any except rare and exceptional editorial expressions. Theoretically, on all except the smallest and least important papers, such expressions are always the product of consultation and agreement between a varying number of people, and usually theory and practice are in harmony. Is each of the consultants to add his name to that of him who puts into words the result of the deliberation?

Even that would not be enough, for the responsibility extends through a far larger circle. Often Miss Mamie or Miss Susie, the typewriter and stenographer, shares it, and so does the reporter who furnishes the editor with facts, or near-facts, as the case may be. In a measure, too, moral responsibility rests on the proofreaders, the compositors, the stereotypers, the pressmen, everybody in the business and circulation departments, and so it goes on to the distributing agencies and the very newsboys. That can be called nonsense, but not half so nonsensical as the bill that prompted it.

Behind what a paper says is always the paper, and that is not only enough; it is the most and the best that could be asked. Editorial anonymity increases responsibility as well as power. Signatures would decrease both, and none would suffer from the decrease as much as those whom a paper offends or injures.

Odd Relics from the Maine.

Most surprising items appear in the list of things found in the Maine after thirteen years of submergence in the water and mud of Havana Harbor. Of the dead sailors, as yet only a few fragments of bones have been discovered, but objects nobody would expect to endure a month have lasted better, some of them with what seems like miraculous persistence.

A paper-covered novel, for instance, comes forth from the deeps to prove something or other about its author, the eminent Miss MARIE CORELLI, and raises the momentous question whether or not her writings give the stern joy which navy men would naturally demand from fiction in the few hours they have for reading. Rubber bands, too, have survived, though it is their wont to grow hard and disintegrate after a few weeks of safe seclusion in office desks. Less remarkable is it that a pair of binoculars could still be recognized, though cruelly corroded.

With each foot that the water in the caisson lowers, the extent of the destruction caused by the explosions is more clearly revealed, and the hope of raising the Maine in anything except fragments decreases at the same rate. It seems to be already certain that nothing of her will ever float again by its own buoyancy, and the inaccuracy of the recent report that she might return to the United States under her own steam is more than manifest.

SUBPOENAED TEACHERS.

Suggests That Municipal Research Bureau Find Out How Many There Are.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the more or less frequent absences of teachers from public, and perhaps other, schools, in order to prove by their roll books that a pupil-plaintiff was absent from school, this explanation is offered by a lawyer, a member of the Board of Education: The roll book is the book of original entry in the matter and is the only "competent" evidence. Only if the book should be lost or destroyed would any other manner of evidence be admitted. Being a rule laid down in elementary works on evidence, it must be observed.

Nevertheless, the absence for a whole day of no less than five teachers to prove by "competent" testimony that a pupil was absent, when a stipulation could be entered into by opposing counsel to permit the submitting of a certificate from the Principal of the school, indicates the need of reform.

Dr. Allen of the Municipal Researchers is very fond of statistics relating to schools, and he could, if he chose, find the facts in this matter and whether such doings are common. It would be no wild-goose chase, and the Board of Education could request the Judges to assist in the matter.

THE RIVERSIDE STAGES.

Suggests That Check Numbers Be Issued for Seats on Top.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Although a large part of our residents spend their Sundays out of town while others take advantage of the popular boat and railroad excursions, there are a great many who are unable to get away for the entire day and to whom the only thing that appeals is a trolley ride or the popular omnibus ride up Fifth Avenue to Grant's Tomb. Being one of the unfortunates who cannot leave town I decided yesterday (Sunday) afternoon to take the bus ride from Washington Square up Fifth Avenue and Riverside Drive to Grant's Tomb.

Upon arriving at the starting point I found at least fifty persons waiting, all anxious to board the next available bus. Naturally, they all wanted to sit on the top section in order to get the best view during the ride. No sooner were the incoming passengers let off than the crowds waiting would push and scramble, all eager to get to the top. The upper accommodation being limited to eighteen passengers, those left behind preferred to wait for the next one. After waiting half an hour I managed to get aboard merely through being pushed.

This sort of thing should certainly not exist in a city like New York. I would suggest the following: Why not do as in Paris, distribute check numbers in rotation to intending passengers as they arrive? For that purpose, a small booth, with a window could be used, similar to a Subway ticket office. Then as soon as the bus is ready to take on passengers, only those persons holding check numbers to be allowed on board, the conductor or starter to call off the numbers in rotation.

Another Beautiful Spot.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

From certain standpoints each of the "Prettiest Spots of New York" mentioned in your Sunday's issue merited the designation accorded to it. And yet, to my mind, there is no more beautiful, picturesque, and imposing view wholly within the city limits (a delightful combination of nature and art) as the one from the Cathedral Parkway elevated station, taking in the so-called Acropolis, with its imposing buildings and the beauties of Morningside Park and surrounding streets. How many will agree with me?

A Painter's Needy Widow.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Charity Organization Society appeals for $150 for the widow and two young sons of a painter who died of tuberculosis last October. The wife contracted the disease two years ago, but received treatment early and recovered. Good food and proper home conditions without worry or overwork are needed to maintain the health of the mother and her children.

Contributions may be addressed to the Charity Organization Society, 105 East Twenty-second Street, and will be acknowledged.

The society acknowledges, with thanks, the following contributions received in response to former appeals in THE NEW YORK TIMES: "L. A. C.," $1; "A. L. H.," $25; Mrs. H. M. B., $1; "G.," $1; Mrs. P. O. M., $1; Charles B. Barnes, $1; Mrs. Elizabeth M. Lynch, $2; Miss Alice C. Moffatt, $3; "Cash," $1; "Cash," $1; "J. H. B.," $2; "E. H. C.," $1; "E. A. N.," $1; Mrs. S. F. W., $2; Charles H. Roman, $2; "R. A.," $1; "S.," $1.

Poolrooms and Race Tracks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In yesterday's issue THE TIMES states its knowledge of several poolrooms for women in New York City. Now, if poolrooms for women are so plentiful, those for men must be even more so.

This being the case, does it not bear out the contention of the opponents of the recent anti-race track legislation, namely, that the worst and most injurious form of betting is carried on in the city and that the closing of the race tracks here would only serve to magnify this evil by multiplying the number of poolrooms and handbooks in the city, thereby placing facilities to bet within the convenient reach of the very persons most injured by it?

CROWDED RAILWAY CARS.

Complains of Long Island Road's Inattention to Passengers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The complaint made in this morning's TIMES by your correspondent "Observer" was long since due. The way in which the comfort of the public has been ignored for years on the Far Rockaway line is a public scandal. Time after time I have heard a whole carful of people protesting against the disregard of the company for their comfort; but strange to say only once in a number of years does any one seem to take the practical method of exposing it that your correspondent has done.

Over and over again a protest has been made to the Long Island Company about another illustration of the policy so markedly characteristic of the company, which is seen at Far Rockaway. Passengers wishing to smoke who take the train there have no knowledge until they get on the train which is the smoking car, which is sometimes placed at the head and sometimes at the tail of the train. Half the time they have to walk the length of the train before reaching the smoker. Another objectionable feature of this negligence is that very frequently ladies get into the smoking car and are put to the trouble of leaving upon discovering where they are. It has been suggested several times that a simple way of saving all this trouble to the patrons of the road would be to have a placard put outside the smoker, facing the platform and close to the entrance steps. This could be readily moved by the conductor from one car to the other as required without inconvenience. But the nuisance still continues.

Another flagrant example of non-provision for inevitable passenger traffic on the Long Island Road is seen during the Summer months every Sunday night in the train that leaves Port Jefferson for New York at 8:15. Seldom are there enough cars, and in the majority of cases many of the passengers are packed like cattle on a freight train. The discomfort and indecency of it are positively barbarous, but they still continue. Won't a few more of those who for years have been submitting in silence to this kind of treatment put their sentiments on record in THE TIMES?

Causing the Voice to Travel.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your issue of the 18th inst. contained an article headed "Don't Know How to Talk." It emanated from a special correspondent at Paris who claimed that Dr. Pierre Bouvier had enunciated a new law in reference to "throwing sound to a desired point." The article is interesting, but contains nothing new to teachers of voice culture, as the means therein described for causing the voice to travel were used by James E. Murdoch, George Vandenhoff, Philip Lawrence, and other teachers more than fifty years ago.

The writer has, in several of his works on the speaking voice, insisted that the only proper way to get the voice out of the larynx into the air is to "think" it out, consequently it seems odd to read an article which parades this fact, known to all masters of voice building, as "a new discovery."

Endless Property.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Not so. Your correspondent who said the aviator could fly without fear of interference in prisms formed by parallel lines erected on the edges of my property is wrong—but so are you. There will be neither prisms nor pyramids. I own my land and all that is beneath it and all above it. My property starts at the centre of the earth and goes in an ever-widening slice until it reaches the surface of my property on the earth, and so the lines go on to infinity. The lines of my next door neighbor and of my property touch from the centre to the very end, and we can't possibly see where the aviator comes in on this deal.

Low Water Pressure and Fires.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A feature of the threatened water famine that appears to receive very little attention is the fire hazard. When the water pressure is greatly reduced, as it probably will be in a few months, and we have had three or four big uptown fires, the insurance companies are going to reduce or cancel their commitments, mortgagees will call loans or cut them down, and even if we don't have a conflagration, there may be some very serious "trouble." The need of care in using and avoiding waste of water is very great. Your paper is doing good work in speaking of this so frequently.

A Short-Lived Newspaper.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One naturally shrinks from the harsh task of discouraging the prophetic spirit, but to Mr. J. H. Griffiths, in whose Sunday TIMES letter this sentence occurs, "An immense circulation awaits the newspaper that has the courage to cut the size of its pages in half," I would say that just exactly this attempt was made in the year—if my memory serves me right—of 1888 or 1889 in the case of the short-lived New York Daily Continent. It was of admirable size, about that of THE TIMES SUNDAY BOOK REVIEW Section. But for some reason unknown to the general public it soon went under.

Activities of Cabinet Members.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A while ago President Taft announced that he considered it a duty appertaining to his position to encourage the game of baseball. A little later his Secretary of War thought it part of his duty to make a visit to the heathen in the South Sea Islands.

Now the present Secretary of War, in order to demonstrate his peculiar fitness and adaptability for the position he holds and to inspire public confidence at the outset of his work by making himself a shining example, submits to vaccination.

Verily the duties of public officials in these later days are varied and wonderful.

Graduates' Names Omitted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg to call your attention to the fact that through an unfortunate oversight the names of Harold Rowe and John Taylor did not appear on the lists of the graduating class as announced at the annual commencement of Princeton University on June 13. The authorities of the university regret exceedingly that these omissions occurred and wish to do all in their power to rectify them. We know of no better way to do so than to bring the matter to the attention of the papers in which the lists of the graduating class appeared.

A VICTIM OF SOCIETY.

  Embroidered with yellow roses,
And looks through the window all day,
  And gazes and smirks and dozes;
He yawns aloud from sheer ennui,
  Finding life dried up at the core.
Hardly worth while, I know he thinks—
  The poor little dog next door.

  At the end of a silver chain;
He and the Madam walk three blocks,
  Then solemnly pace home again;
He's 'fraid of everything he sees,
  And he votes all outings a bore,
As he's dangled and yanked along—
  The poor little dog next door.

Poor little tyke, he's never lived—
  Never mingled free with his kind—
Never chased alley cats, hooked bones,
  Barked loud, nor snarled, bit, growled,
    nor whined!
He's been deprived of his birthright,
  Nor left with sense to deplore—
A puff-ball make-believe for a child—

WIN FIGHT TO KEEP MURRAY HILL QUIET

Residents' Protest Against the Invasion of a Milk Bottling Company Sustained.

CAN ENFORCE RESTRICTION

Referee Upholds Agreement of 1847 Against Business Encroachments—Injunction Is Recommended.

The noise made by milk cans while their lids are being knocked off by a wooden mallet is a nuisance no quiet possessor of a residence on Murray Hill should be forced to tolerate, according to the findings of ex-Justice David Leventritt, who as referee has just completed the taking of testimony in the case of certain property owners against Mrs. Collis P. Huntington and the White Cross Milk Company.

The recommendations of the referee are that Mrs. Huntington may properly be made a co-defendant in permanent injunction proceedings against the milk concern because she leased to the milk company her private stable while there was in force an agreement among the property owners that the stable was to be tolerated for private use only. The findings throughout are for the plaintiffs.

While technically on the court records the case is listed as that of Frances and Helen Irving against Mrs. Huntington and the milk company occupying her stable, the matter at issue is really a broader one, involving the right of property owners in the restricted section in which J. Pierpont Morgan has his home to enforce an agreement, made in 1847, that was calculated to hold back the advancing business invasion.

The referee's view is that the sixty-four-year-old agreement is perfectly good, and that even if it weren't there would still be ample grounds for suppressing the obvious nuisance of the milk cannery.

The result of the findings, it is thought by the law firm of Harris & Towne of 258 Broadway, who prosecuted the case, will be the granting of an immediate injunction under which the Murray Hill residents will be rid of the noise that the White Cross Milk Company now occasions. It will establish a precedent, it is thought, on which the business encroachments can be permanently forced back.

The home of the Irving sisters is located at 121 East Thirty-seventh Street, and is wholly within the restricted district. Its rear door abuts on the rear of the milk company's plant.

The plaintiffs alleged that not only were there noises of milk cans being dragged across stone floors at all hours of the night, but that the noise of the delivery wagons was disconcerting and the odors from the place were anything but pleasant. They brought in their neighbors as witnesses to tell how they also were disturbed by the bottling operations.

One of the Misses Irving, according to her story, spent many a sleepless night listening to the resounding whacks of mallet against the milk can's lids. She was finally forced to abandon her sleeping room in the rear of her residence and keep the windows closed.

Mrs. Blake, living two doors away, found the loud talking of the men at 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning unbearable, and every little while, just as she was dozing off to sleep, she would be awakened, and thereby made ill by some large truck arriving or departing with the morning milk. Dr. Putnam, living opposite, was awakened so often by the teams and the noises in the bottling rooms that he had to abandon his sleeping quarters and hunt peaceful rest elsewhere. Mr. Moore, living diagonally across the street, and Mr. Hall, living next door, were awakened frequently and felt very much aggrieved at having to live so close to an unwelcome neighbor from the world of business.

"A mere recital of the company's methods indicates that it is a most disturbing neighbor," the referee concludes, "and this is especially so because of the compact residential character of its surroundings. A sound that is inoffensive in the daytime may be extremely disquieting at night, and the noisiest operations of the defendant company are carried on in hours usually devoted to sleep. There is an absoluet incongruity between the milk business and its surroundings. Therefore I conclude that the business conducted by the defendant company so disturbs the quiet and comfort of the plaintiffs that it amounts to a private nuisance, and should be enjoined. The lease of the stable building expressly permits its use for milk business and authorizes interior structural changes in the buildings necessary to adapt it therefor. The conclusions herein reached are, first, that these changes, together with the use of the building, violate the restrictive covenant, and, second, that the necessary operations of the business constitute a private nuisance and make the defendant, Mrs. Collis P. Huntington, a proper party defendant, and require that the injunction should also run against her."

MAYOR WARNS ALDERMEN.

Must Consider Carefully Tile Provision in New Building Code.

In a communication to the Board of Aldermen, Mayor Gaynor intimated strongly yesterday that he does not intend to sign the Building Code which a committee of the board is considering unless he is satisfied that certain interests are not being favored. The communication read:

> To the Honorable, the Board of Aldermen:
>
> Gentlemen: Several committees have called upon me in reference to the difference of opinion whether hollow tile is better than concrete for building purposes, however high the building may go. I suggest that this matter be examined into very carefully, and that no preference be given to either unless for undoubted reasons. I send this message to you so that the matter may be thoroughly gone over before the new Building Code is adopted, and I shall be ready to assist you in any way that I can. Respectfully,
> W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

The Mayor is said to be in favor of having a test made of both hollow tile and concrete material. The concrete interests offered to make such a test at their own expense, but the Aldermanic committee ignored the proposition.

HADLEY ASKS FOR $2,000,000.

President of Yale Wants Endowment for Medical School.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 20.—In old Alumni Hall, which very soon will give way, in the march of university progress in a material way, to the dormitory to be erected as a monument to the services of Prof. H. B. Wright, so long Dean of the college, the Yale Alumni to-day heard the annual report of President Hadley, and the greetings brought by representatives of five reunion classes.

The President asked for an endowment of $2,000,000 for the medical school, $500,000 for the Peabody Museum, and he announced the gift of $100,000 from Mrs. E. H. Harriman for a chair in forestry management, in memory of her husband.

Speaking of other departments, the President pointed out that the medical schools will be one hundread years old in 1913, and a large endowment to increase its scope is desired. New buildings for the forest school will be begun right away. The Treasurer's books show gifts this year of $700,000.

During the morning the polls were kept open for election of a member of the corporation to succeed H. F. Dimock of New York, who recently died. John Villiers Farwell of Chicago, class of '79, was elected, as he was not opposed.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fuller a Bride at Home—Families Are Not Related.

WED IN BOWER OF GREENS

Beautiful Floral Decorations and Many Costly Gifts—Bridal Couple to Spend Honeymoon in Europe.

Fuller of this city, was celebrated yesterday afternoon at 5:30 at the home of the bride's parents, 1,072 Fifth Avenue. Although of the same name, the families of the bride and bridegroom are not related.

The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. David James Burrell of the Marble Collegiate Church, took place in the music room on the second floor of the house, which had been transformed into a bower of greens, broken by yellow marguerites, daffodils, and roses. Two standards, topped with ascension lilies, stood on either side of the priedieu.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with a court train, trimmed with rose point lace and pearls. Her tulle veil was fastened with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. She also wore a diamond pendant, the gift of the bridegroom. # DISGUISED LOANS IN CARNEGIE TRUST

Witnesses in Reichmann Trial Called to Explain How Transactions Were Hidden.

UNAUTHORIZED DRAFTS MADE

Further Cross-Examination to Show That Reichmann Didn't Know of False Reports.

Several out-of-town witnesses testified yesterday in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court before Justice Davis at the trial of Joseph B. Reichmann, ex-President of the Carnegie Trust Company. They told of drafts drawn against their accounts without their knowledge and the appearance of funds to meet them, also without their knowledge. By them the prosecution hopes to substantiate that portion of the charge that the defendant was guilty of a misdemeanor in making false returns to the State Banking Department, which rests on his assertion that on Aug. 31, 1910, the Carnegie Trust Company owed nothing for money borrowed. Its contention is that these drafts were employed to disguise loans.

Further testimony was also taken on the procedure followed in drawing up the return to the Banking Department. It came out that E. L. P. Ball, the auditor of the trust company, knew nothing of the contingent liabilities to the Nineteenth Ward Bank when he filled in the statement that there were none. On Monday the People had endeavored to show that Mr. Reichmann, when he signed and swore to the statement, undoubtedly did know of the notes which were guaranteed. The defense in its cross-examination aimed at establishing that whatever methods the trust company followed were those customary in banking circles.

Martin J. Condon, President of the American Snuff Company, was the first witness of the day. He was a Director of the Carnegie Trust, and told of the taking over by the Merchants and Manufacturers' Securities Company of 51 per cent. of the shares of the Vita (Col.) Mining and Smelting Company. He was questioned about the appointment of Mr. Reichmann, who was also President of the Merchant and Manufacturers' Securities Company, as President of the Carnegie Trust Company, and he stated that he regarded him as an experienced banker.

Mr. Baldwin, in cross-examination, however, brought out that Mr. Reichmann's appointment was understood to be for only such a time as it took to find another President.

E. L. P. Ball, auditor of the Carnegie Trust Company, was recalled and told how Mr. Reichmann had informed him that the Banking Department had criticized the "transi debit" account, wherein was recorded drafts drawn but not yet paid. This account was discontinued, although the witness protested that the method suggested in its place made no real difference.

Cross-examined by Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Ball stated that the transit debit account was in the trust company when Mr. Reichmann took it over, and that he had never considered Mr. Reichmann as an accountant or had seen him looking over the books inside one of the cages. The defence asked several questions to make it clear that Ball is an accountant of fifteen years' experience and thoroughly well qualified.

"Who prepared the rough draft of the report to the Banking Department?" asked Mr. Baldwin.

"The assistant auditor."

"Reichmann merely signed the report?"

"That is all."

Here William M. Ivins, special Assistant District Attorney, intervened for the first time in the trial with the objection that Mr. Baldwin was asking leading questions.

"It's the first time we've heard from Mr. Ivins," retorted Mr. Baldwin.

"You will hear more from him yet," was the reply.

Mr. Baldwin obtained the statement that the witness had not spoken to Mr. Reichmann about the return that there were no contingent liabilities, and that he did not in drawing it up in this fashion intend to deceive his President.

It came out that there was at first an item in the report showing $130,000 due under "borrowed money."

"This was erased," explained the witness, "after a discussion with an official of the Banking Department."

"Yes, by the advice of Mr. Hutchins, Chief Bank Examiner."

The witness also said that it was a common banking custom to permit the drawing against out-of-town drafts before they were paid. In the case of the Carnegie Trust Company, if a draft was not paid, it was not the bank on which it was drawn that was held responsible, but the man who had drawn it.

With the calling of George D. Crabbs, President of the Philips Carey Manufacturing Company of Cincinnati and a Director of the Carnegie Trust Company, Assistant District Attorney Clark entered on the question of the out-of-town drafts that came into the case. He showed the witness a draft for $26,500 which was made against him in August, 1910, by the Vita Colorado Mining and Smelting Company, and asked him if he had authorized it.

"I did not," the witness replied.

This note was not paid by the witness, but was afterward taken up by some one else and charged to his account.

Mr. Baldwin in his cross-examination of this witness was coached by Mr. Reichmann, and sought to bring out that Mr. Crabbs had often assisted Mr. Cummins by lending him his credit. The witness admitted that he had joined in the guaranteeing of the $300,000 paid to take over the Platt Iron Works by the Merchants & Manufacturers' Securities Company, but would not state that he had assisted Mr. Cummins in any other manner. Mr. Baldwin wished to bring out that Mr. Reichmann had at various times lent his own credit throughout the city to preserve the situation of his companies, but District Attorney Whitman objected and was sustained.

With Mr. Crabbs still on the stand an agreement between Robert Pringle of Chicago to purchase, on Dec. 16, 1909, from Mr. Crabbs, Mr. Reichmann, Mr. Cummins, and Mr. Condon 960 shares of the Carnegie Trust Company at 175 was put in evidence. These shares were those which gave Mr. Cummins and his associates the control of the trust company and were purchased just before Mr. Reichmann became President of the institution.

William C. Wachs, Vice President of the German National Bank of Cincinnati, was then called and supplied some further information as to the draft on Mr. Crabbs. He stated that when he received the draft he took it up with Mr. Crabbs and he refused to honor it.

Subsequently he received telegraphic advices from the National Reserve Bank, the relations of which with Cummins and his associates were close, to credit the money to meet the draft to the account of Mr. Crabbs. The draft was received on Aug. 9 and it was not returned canceled to the Carnegie Trust Company till Sept. 6, and to explain this delay two or three letters and telegrams were put in evidence in the face of strenuous objections from Mr. Baldwin.

On Aug. 25 the Carnegie Trust Company wrote a letter signed by Robert F. Smith, Vice President, asking that the draft be held till Monday, Aug. 29. A second letter was written on Aug. 27 asking for a further delay till Sept. 1, and the draft was finally taken up with money from the National Reserve Bank on Sept. 6.

Robert Pringle was then recalled to tell of his experiences with drafts. Of one drawn on Aug. 30, 1910, for $35,000 by M. J. Lynam, Secretary of Mr. Cummins, the witness declared that he knew nothing till it was presented. Another for $37,500 was drawn on him by Lynam on Aug. 4 and this he declared he had never authorized.

"You paid the $37,500 draft?" asked Mr. Clark.

"Yes."

"Where did you get the money?"

"I don't know where it came from. It was deposited to the account of Pringle & Wing, my brother's partner, a few days after the draft was presented. It did not come from me."

Then the witness told of the agreement to buy up the 960 shares of the Carnegie Trust Company. These were deposited in escrow in the safe deposit vaults of the Carnegie Trust Company, and he executed four notes of $42,000 each to pay for them. His agreement with Messrs. Cummins, Reichmann, Crabbs, and Condon was that he should be indemnified from all loss and should share in the profits of the transaction.

"Did you put up any money to buy these Carnegie Trust shares?" asked Mr. Clark.

"No," replied the witness, "the money was borrowed from the Carnegie Trust Company on my notes."

The witness declared that he had paid one of these four notes in May, and he believed that the other three had been canceled.

Mr. Baldwin, when this turn came to cross-examine the witness, showed that he had been an intimate friend of Mr. Cummins for fifteen years, and had known Mr. and Mrs. Reichmann socially. He also brought out that Mr. Pringle had once met a personal draft made on him by Mr. Cummins.

John Hetterman, a cigar manufacturer of Louisville, Ky., was next called to tell what he knew about a draft for $40,000 drawn on him by the Merchants and Manufacturers' Company on Aug. 29, 1910. He denied that he knew of it, that he owed the company a cent, or that he had authorized the draft.

"In August, last year," asked Mr. Baldwin in cross-examination, "you owed the Carnegie Trust Company $120,000, did you not?"

"It was more," replied the witness, producing a package of papers and beginning to calculate.

It then came out that Mr. Hetterman had been interested in the purchase of the Dickinson stock in the Carnegie Trust by Mr. Cummins and his associates and that he had given his notes to facilitate this. He went to Europe, and these notes were paid off by Mr. Cummins and his associates, and he knew nothing about the details of the transaction.

Edward Swenson, assistant receiving teller of the Carnegie Trust Company, was called to identify the draft for $35,000 on Robert Pringle, but his testimony was cut short by an adjournment to enable the counsel to draw up stipulations with reference to non-controversial facts and figures. It is hoped that when court meets at 10:30 this morning, they will have agreed on enough facts to shorten the trial by three or four days.

BERNHARDT HONORED AT PLAYERS CLUB

First Woman Ever Received There Except on Ladies' Day—Drew Host by Proxy.

WILSON WELCOMES GUEST

Actress Pours Tea for 500 Present and Then Distributes Flowers—Presented with Bust of Edwin Booth.

The Players, the club founded by Edwin Booth, broke its tradition yesterday and received into its portals a woman, Sarah Bernhardt. Other women have been received there, but only on ladies' day—Shakespeare's birthday. Yesterday was the first time that any woman has had a reception at the clubhouse. Even then Mme. Bernhardt was not the guest of the club, but of its President, John Drew, because a written law of the organization forbids it entertaining any guest. That Mr. Drew was absent, on tour in the West, did not prevent him acting host by proxy.

The reception was to be from 5 until 6 o'clock, and about 500 invitations had been sent out and accepted. Bernhardt arrived promptly on the hour, accompanied by her business manager, Edward Sullivan, and her leading man, Lou Tellegen. She was received at the steps of the clubhouse and presented with a large bunch of roses, and was then led inside and introduced to Francis Wilson and Otis Skinner, who acted for John Drew as hosts. She wore a gown of cream lace over cream silk, with trimmings of sea-blue panne velvet. Her hat was of light green lace, with grapes in two shades for ornament, and she wore a light green boa.

The reception was informal. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Skinner presented the actress to the guests, and then Mr. Wilson made a speech of welcome in French, concluding by singing two bars of the "Marseillaise" in French and starting the guests to singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." A telegram from John Drew was read. Mme. Bernhardt made a short speech in response, expressing her appreciation of the unusual honor shown her. Then she insisted on pouring tea for everybody present. Arrangements had been made for the club stewards to attend to this duty, but the actress would have no assistance. For almost an hour she stood beside the tea table and asked, "One or deux lumps?" when she put in the sugar. She refused to be seated during the entire reception.

After the tea pouring was over the guests demanded the flowers she carried, to take home to their wives, who were not invited, they said. Bernhardt distributed the blossoms as long as they lasted, and then took the decorations from the table and, kissing each bloom, passed them around.

Then she inspected the lower floor of the clubhouse, even going to the open-air dining room in the rear, where she praised the cool shade of the club's single tree in the back yard. The portraits and engravings on the walls interested her, and she was able to name all of the prominent players pictured at sight. In one of the club albums she discovered a photograph of a scene in the first play in which she appeared, and she autographed it. Before she left a bronze bust of Edwin Booth, one of two made by Johnson, a sculptor friend of Booth, was presented to her. The only other cast from the same mold is in the rooms of The Players.

This is not the first time Bernhardt has visited The Players. Once she had tea there with Edwin Booth, on ladies' day, and once, on another ladies' day, after his death, she visited his room. She did not go to the famous room yesterday, because the elevator was out of order. The only other actresses who have been received at The Players, and then only on regular occasions, were Mme. Modjeska, Ellen Terry, and Eleanore Duse.

BERNHARDT ACTS 'L'AIGLON.'

At the Globe Theatre last night Bernhardt gave the second of her four good-bye performances, presenting Rostand's five-act tragedy, "L'Aiglon," that she has given so often and so successfully in New York. The theatre, as on Monday night, was crowded to its capacity and the applause that greeted the actress on her first appearance was prolonged and hearty.

Nothing need be said about the performance; that was full of the usual fire and energy. Bernhardt's support was practically the same as when she presented the play here in January, M. Decoeur appearing as Flambeau, M. Maxudian as Metternich, and Mme. Seylor as Fanny Elssler.

This afternoon the bill will be "Madame X" and to-night, the last of the engagement, "Camille" will be presented.

METROPOLITAN'S NEW OPERA.

"PINAFORE" IN WALL STREET.

"Sisters, Cousins and Aunts" Sell 800 Seats for Juvenile Performance.

All of Admiral Sir Joseph Porter's "sisters and his cousins and his aunts" left "H. M. S. Pinafore" yesterday for a visit to Wall Street in a sight-seeing automobile. Their object was to sell tickets for the juvenile performance of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta that is to be given Friday afternoon, and they were successful in disposing of 800 seats, all they had with them. Several of the children who are to appear in the juvenile production were in the party that was headed by Lorraine Bright of the chorus.

The first place visited was the New York Stock Exchange, and then the Consolidated and the Produce Exchanges followed, with the party winding up at several of the big restaurants where the brokers were having luncheon. The money obtained for the tickets will go to the Stage Children's Fund, for the benefit of which the performance is to be given.

AID FOR MRS. PRICE.

$22 Sent by Times Readers Arrives in Time to Save Her from Eviction.

Mrs. Bertha Price, who on the night of June 14 was taken to Bellevue Hospital, having collapsed from lack of nourishment on a Third Avenue car, and whose sad story of starving children and desertion by her husband was printed in THE TIMES of June 15, was saved yesterday from being turned out of her two rooms at 806 East Ninth Street for failure to pay her rent. A TIMES reporter found her there yesterday afternoon and handed her $22 sent to THE TIMES by readers who had been touched by the woman's unfortunate plight.

Mrs. Price was discharged from the hospital on June 17. She returned to her rooms, in East Ninth Street, but had no money to pay the rent she owed, and had received notice of dispossession. Her youngest child, 3 months old, has been ill, and she was unable to leave it to go out for work.

With the money sent through THE TIMES she can pay her rent, get some necessary food for the children, and put her family out of want for the time being. The United Hebrew Charities has taken charge of Mrs. Price's case.

THE TIMES acknowledges these contributions for Mrs. Price: From Louis S., $2; from "J. M.," $2; from "H.," $3; previously acknowledged, $15; total, $22.

RIVERSIDE DRIVE IMPROVED.

Park Commissioner Says It Is in as Good Condition as He Can Make It.

Riverside Drive northward for a mile from Seventy-second Street has just been put into good condition under the direction of Park Commissioner Stover. He said last night that the Drive from Seventy-second Street to Grant's Tomb was now in as fine shape as could be expected under present conditions.

"The Drive," said the Commissioner, "is a gravel road, and whenever there is a heavy rain the road is washed. On the other hand, no matter how dry it is, the road is not durable enough to stand the wear of automobiles and other heavy traffic, nor even the impact of horses' feet. Consequently the Drive, particularly the south end of it, had got into bad condition. This has been effectually remedied, as far as repairing can do, by a new process, which is working admirably. This consists of smoothing off the gravel roadbed, raising the middle so that drainage will be rapid, and then covering the top with red clay. Over this is sprinkled a bituminous preparation which unites with the clay and makes a hard surface."

TO BUY CLEVELAND PORTRAIT

Mayor Receives One Contribution and Asks for More.

Arthur H. Delano of 611 Lexington Avenue sent $10 to Mayor Gaynor yesterday as a contribution to a fund of $1,000 which the Mayor hopes will be raised to buy the Eastman Johnson portrait of Grover Cleveland for the City Hall. The Mayor sent this reply to Mr. Delano:

> June 20, 1911.
> Dear Mr. Delano: I thank you exceedingly for sending your $10 to contribute to the fund of $1,000 to buy the portrait of Grover Cleveland, by Eastman Johnson, to be hung in the City Hall. I hope others will contribute small amounts to make up the necessary amount, $1,000, and that I shall not find it necessary to appoint a committee to collect the amount. Sincerely yours,
>
> W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

The painting is said to be an excellent example of Mr. Johnson's work, besides being a good likeness of the ex-President. It was offered to the city at the above price by Mr. Johnson's widow.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

AMERICAN TELEPHONE OFF

Copper Stocks Decline Following Brokers' Attempt to Take Profits in the Boston Market.

Declines marked the trading at other centres yesterday. Copper issues had another poor day.

On fairly good demand United Railways income bonds were fractionally firmer in Baltimore, but trading generally was dull at unchanged prices.

The undertone in the Boston market was softer yesterday. Traders attempted to take profits shortly after the opening and prices gradually sold off. Amalgamated broke at 71, East Butte lost Monday's gain, and North Butte declined to 33¾. The close was steady at a fractional recovery from the low prices of the day.

The majority of quotations on the Chicago Exchange reflected weakness as compared with final prices of Monday, though few of the changes were important. Principal among the declines were a loss of three points by Booth Fisheries preferred and a dip of two points on the part of American Telephone. Dealings in these issues, however, were insignificant. Among the other shares to display lower levels were Sears-Roebuck common, Illinois Brick, Metropolitan Elevated preferred, and Can common and preferred. There were moderate advances in Booth common, Chicago Telephone, Diamond Match, and some others.

The firmness of United Gas Improvement, which on comparatively light trading was advanced to 88¼, was the only redeeming feature of the Philadelphia market. The heaviness of the traction shares came in for considerable attention, particularly as it followed the announcement of the first plans of the new management to rehabilitate the P. R. T. property.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported in THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

The new company, which will be known under the latter name, is to have $27,000,000 of stock, of which $12,000,000 will be 6 per cent. preferred and $15,000,000 common. There will also be $5,000,000 of 6 per cent. bonds. The latter have been underwritten by London and Amsterdam bankers.

Elected to Trust Company of America.

Three new Directors were elected to the board of the Trust Company of America at the Directors' meeeting yesterday. They are Charles E. Meyer, Charles D. Freeman, and Albert B. Boardman. The regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent. was declared, payable June 30.

FEDERAL BISCUIT STOCK.

In Putting Issue Out It Is Explained That There's No Opposition.

The Federal Biscuit Company, with $30,000,000 capital, organized in July, 1910, to combine seventy-five independent manufacturers in thirty States, is offering $1,000,000 of its 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock with a bonus of one share of common with every two shares of preferred. The capitalization is divided into $18,000,000 common and $12,000,000 preferred, of the latter $11,000,000 having been distributed in payment for the quick assets and plants of the subsidiaries.

An officer of the company said yesterday that it had no affiliation with the National Biscuit Company. He denied, however, that it was a competitor. It was true that both companies manufactured the same class of goods, but he said that both worked in harmony. "There can be no competition where there is harmony," he explained.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—Bullish enthusiasm, based on continuation of hot, dry weather and serious damage reports, carried wheat up from 1½c to 2c per bushel, the market reacting a little toward the close on private reports of rains and cooler weather in the northern portion of the Spring wheat territory. Damage reports came in in great quantity from South Dakota, and while they came from recognized crop experts, the market was less sensitive to the reports than it was on Monday. Prices showed a good reaction late, and the short interest seemed to have been very largely eliminated by the advance of about 6c a bushel in two days. The bulk of the damage reports came from South Dakota, although there were some from North Dakota and from Minnesota. A study of the weather conditions for the last three weeks shows that the greater portion of the Spring wheat belt has received precipitation every week, and over Saturday and Sunday last South Dakota had from a third to one and a quarters inches over the entire State. Predictions of a bumper crop came from the Canadian Northwest, while the weather is favorable for Winter wheat harvest, which is going on rapidly. Receipts West were light, and there was a decrease in the world's visible, 5,006,000 bushels, compared with a decrease of 6,500,000 bushels last year. Export bids generally were out of line, although there were reports of 10 loads of Manitoba wheat, cost, insurance, and freight, Buffalo. No. 2 red was quoted at 98c, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.06¾, and No. 1 Manitoba, $1.03⅞.

CORN.—Heavy speculative buying carried corn prices up about 1½c per bushel, the market closing at about the top. Continuation of hot, dry weather, claims of deterioration to the crop, and sympathy with the great excitement in wheat and oats were the influences back of the advance in corn, besides which the trade is distinctly apprehensive of really serious damage unless the drought is generally broken within a short time. The country continues to sell corn freely, notwithstanding the damage claims, and receipts at the West are about double last year's, while the visible increased 1,959,000 bushels, following an increase of 1,859,000 bushels the previous week. Cash corn was higher; No. 2 quoted at 63¼c, free on board.

OATS.—The market for oats advanced with heavy trading to new high levels for the season, gaining 1½c to 1¾c, and closing at about the highest prices. Numerous and severe damage reports came in steadily from the Central West, the Southwest, and from South Dakota and portions of North Dakota and Minnesota. Serious deterioration was claimed and prices were easily advanced on the news. The weekly visible supply statement showed a gain of 851,000 bushels, compared with a decrease of 1,036,000 bushels last year. Cash oats were strong, with standards 46c; No. 2 white, 46½c; No. 3 white, 45½c.

PROVISIONS.—Trading was again very quiet, with prices somewhat stronger. The live hog movement was larger, amounting to about 110,000 at all points, with prices generally steady to 5c better.

COTTONSEED OIL.

A temporary cessation in the July liquidation encouraged some bull support during the session, and accounted to a large extent for the better undertone in evidence. A higher price level for lard and cotton were other factors checking pressure, although underlying conditions in both are not considered as particularly bullish by conservative authorities. Demand for oil is on a limited scale, and naturally represents requirement for only a very short period. Future quotations follow:

COTTON.

There was a more optimistic feeling in the cotton market, and prices made a strong recovery from the low figures of Monday, owing to the damage reports from Texas. The expert reports were very insistent as to the amount of moderate to irreparable damage in the State, and there were also statements claiming very serious damage in Oklahoma. The Government weather bulletin was considered bullish on both Texas and Oklahoma, and was unexpectedly bullish on Georgia. The rain reports for the day were very general. Rain was reported at Galveston and in East Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, and very generally east of the river to the Atlantic Coast. There was rain during the past week at 42 per cent. of the stations reporting in Texas, although more rain is badly needed, not only in portions of Texas but in Oklahoma, portions of Tennessee, Louisiana, and Georgia. The report of the Mercantile Cotton Crop Reporting Association was very favorable as to condition, making the condition as of June 13, before the rains, 87.5, against 84.7 a month ago. The reports to this concern made an estimate of the crop of 13,408,000 bales, against an estimate last month of 13,271,000 bales. The fact that condition was reported 2.8 per cent. better, and the crop was estimated at only 137,000 bales more than last month, attracted considerable comment. Spot cotton was firm, and there were reports that a good deal of cotton had been sold out of the local stock at 20 to 50 points over July. The amount of the sales was estimated at from 7,000 to 10,000 bales. The principal buying was reported to be for Europe, largely for the Continent. The prediction of dry weather in the West was one of the bullish influences during the day, as it created fear that the unsettled conditions which have prevailed were passing off without bringing the hoped-for relief. Private reports of unsettled conditions over Texas caused some selling late, notwithstanding efforts on the part of bulls to bring about higher levels, by bidding for large blocks of cotton.

Spot cotton was quiet at 10 points advance; middling uplands, 15.30s. Southern spot markets were generally unchanged.

CREDITORS MAY ORGANIZE.

Court Overrules Objections to Audit and Adjustment Association.

Supreme Court Justice Erlanger overruled yesterday the objections of the Attorney General to the incorporation of the Creditors' Audit and Adjustment Association, and signified that he would approve the amended incorporation papers. He said, in respect to the Attorney General's contention that the association proposed to practice law:

"The association was organized under the membership corporation law, and under no possible construction of its purposes and objects as set forth could it engage in the practice of law. Its purpose is simply to protect the members, who are merchants of character, in preventing and exposing the commission of frauds and collusive bankruptcy proceedings by dishonest methods of debtors with whom its members are trading or may do business."

CHINESE BONDS A SUCCESS.

Large Bidders Get Little and Bidders for $1,000 Will Get All They Ask.

So great was the response made to the offering by a syndicate of four New York banking institutions of one-quarter of the new Imperial Chinese loan of $30,000,000 that large bidders will receive but 10 per cent. of their subscriptions. In the outside market the bonds sold yesterday as high as 98, a premium of 1 point over the subscription price.

Small buyers who asked for $1,000 or less will receive their full amounts subscribed for. The success of the $7,500,000 Hukuang offering is believed to insure the quick absorbtion of the $12,500,000 of currency reform bonds to be allotted to this country this Fall.

Foreign subscription to the Hukuang issue was also very heavy. It is reported that English bankers asked to have a part of the bonds offered here returned to them, but the number of bids received for the American offering precluded any such concession. The division of the issue in four parts, moreover, was in pursuance of a well-defined plan for the equal participation of the four countries, England, France, Germany, and the United States in this Chinese financing, the loan having diplomatic as well as financial significance.

HITS METROPOLITAN REPORT.

Farmers' Trust Company Excepts to Findings of Special Master.

The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, successor of the Morton Trust Company, as trustee under the mortgage made by the Metropolitan Street Railway Company in March, 1902, to the New York City Railway Company, has filed in the United States Circuit Court exceptions to Special Master Turner's report. The company excepts to the statement that, up to June 30, 1907, the increasing deficits aggregated $11,000,000, and that the bondholders of the Metropolitan received dividends amounting to $1,265,000 which were not earned.

Exception is also taken to that part of the Special Master's report which states that it was to the interest of the creditors of the New York City Company on and after Sept. 24, 1907, that the lease from the Metropolitan Company be terminated and that the adoption of the lease by the receivers at any time thereafter would have been detrimental to the interests of the same creditors.

Further exception is also taken to the report because Master Turner, in his conclusions of law, failed to pass upon the question of the validity or enforcibility of the lease made by the Metropolitan to the New York City Company.

Stocks React Narrowly in Dull Trading—Exaggerated Reports of Crop Damage.

CONDITION OF SPRING WHEAT

Government and Railroad Reports Contradict Private Estimates of Damage—American Telephone Stock Issue.

A flood of crop-damage reports was sent to Wall Street yesterday from the Northwest in the shape of private crop advices, which told in plainly exaggerated terms of damage due to lack of moisture and excessive heat in both North and South Dakota, and in parts of Minnesota. Fortunately these were not the only advices regarding crop conditions in those States, for both in the weekly weather report issued by the Government and in the crop advices received by the New York offices of Western railroads, ample indication was had of the exaggeration which as usual at this season is creeping into the private advices from the grain fields. Of the Spring wheat growing States the weekly Government report said that the weather for the past week continued favorable as a rule, with abundant sunshine but moderate temperatures and with good showers in sections where rain was most needed, while in other sections the ground is still well supplied with moisture. Under these conditions not overmuch heed need be given to private advices predicting as poor an outcome of this year's Spring wheat crop as attended last year's harvest in the Northwest. This is the season at which crop damage reports run to their full length, but it is necessary to bear in mind always the speculative conditions which surround the dissemination of much of the private crop news which makes its appearance in advance of every harvest. The grain markets again rose sharply and cotton advanced after its heavy decline. Wheat in the Chicago market sold as high as 91, which brought the price back to the figure quoted ten days ago.

A noteworthy feature of the stock market was a decline of nearly 4 points in American Telephone and Telegraph on the announcement of a new issue of stock at par, the subscription rights on which were quoted at something over 6 per cent. The $50,000,000 issue announced by this company yesterday seems at first blush very large, particularly in view of the previous issues in recent years of stock and convertible bonds. Some such view of the issue is apparently reflected in the loss yesterday of nearly 4 points in the price of the company's stock, but it is important to bear in mind in connection with the security flotations of this company that it is practically under mandate from the public to supply the facilities which can alone be supplied through the expenditure of a very large amount of capital. The announced purpose of the new issue is for new construction, and it seems a foregone conclusion that with the growth of the country's need for telephone service large applications for capital will have to be made, as in the present instance, by the company which holds foremost place in supplying the service. It is important, of course, that capital thus invested should be amply safeguarded by proper charges for depreciation, and in this matter the American Telephone Company holds a noteworthy record.

Trading as a whole was even less active on the Stock Exchange yesterday than on the previous day, while the general movement of prices was downward. In most instances, however, the losses were fractional, and it was noteworthy that this was true among other issues of the Northwestern railroad stocks, which would be the largest direct losers by any such damage to the Spring wheat crop as was described in some of the day's dispatches. Canadian Pacific lost 2½ points, but presumably without any reference to the crop situation, inasmuch as the "crop-killing reports" were confined to this side of the border. Further selling of Denver & Rio Grande preferred, following the recent passing of its dividend, brought an additional decline of 2¼ points in that stock yesterday. The individual holders of Denver preferred are in a somewhat different position in respect to the suspension of this dividend than is occupied by Missouri Pacific, for the incidental advantages accruing from the suspension of the dividend apply with less force to the individual holders of the stock than to the railroad system, of which the Denver as well as the Missouri Pacific is a part.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

OFF FROM 103⅛ TO 102¾

Chinese Railway 5s Also Active and Sales in Bond Department Total $3,627,000.

Trading in the new Panama 3s overshadowed everything else on the Curb yesterday, and while a new record was established for business in the bond department, the activity in the general list declined to nominal proportions, except in scattered issues. The Panama 3s "when issued" sold $3,100,000 between 102¾ and 103⅛, the close being at 102¾. Chinese 5s were also active, reporting transactions of $500,000 between 97¾ and 98. The close was at the low figure. The scattered activity in other bonds brought the total bond business up to the phenomenal figure of $3,627,000. In the mining list price movements were narrow with some declines. British Columbia sold 1,600 from 5⅝ down to 5⅛, the close being at 5¼. Kerr Lake sold off from 5⅝ to 5¼, closing at 5½, after sales of 3,000. Rights to the proposed $50,000,000 American Telephone and Telegraph stock issue appeared in the market at 6½, rising to 6⅞. The close was at 6⅝, after sales of 5,500.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Weather and crop advices again exerted an influence upon the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Selling was incited early in the day by the news that wheat prices had advanced on drought damage reports from the Northwest. This selling was, however, of a rather scattered character, imparting softness rather than weakness to the list. In fact, the volume of business was limited throughout the day, the market appearing to have drifted back into a rut so far as general speculative interest was concerned. Some covering of short contracts resulted in a rally in the closing dealings.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Mercantile Marine Depreciation.

Following publication of the report of the International Mercantile Marine Company, which showed that all but a small part of the surplus earnings for the year had been transferred to the depreciation fund, the 4½ per cent. bonds sold yesterday from 68½ down to 67¾, although these depreciation charges help, of course, to strengthen the position of the bonds, however the use of practically all of the company's surplus net earnings for depreciation purposes may be regarded by the holders of the company's stock. The amounts set aside for depreciation by the International Mercantile Marine Company have varied considerably from year to year, the fact being that practically all of the surplus earnings are used for this purpose. It is understood that the ideal which the company has set for itself in the matter of depreciation charges is to make an annual charge for this purpose of 4 per cent. of the cost of its vessels, an ideal which it has never yet been able fully to attain.

Atchison Bond Syndicate Closed.

The syndicate of which J. P. Morgan & Co. were managers which underwrote the $43,686,000 4 per cent. convertible bond issue of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé, offered to the shareholders of that road in April, 1910, has been closed, all the bonds having been sold. The last installment of 35 per cent. of the purchase price of the issue was paid over to the Atchison by the syndicate two weeks ago, which released about $13,000,000 of the bonds. These were disposed of by the syndicate managers and left the way open to the dissolution of the syndicate. The members of the syndicate have not yet received their notices of final adjustment, and it is not yet definitely known just how much profit was realized. One of the subscribers estimated yesterday that the average price at which the bonds were probably sold would show a profit to the syndicate members of somewhere in the neighborhood of 1½ points. The price at which they were offered to the shareholders was 102½. The net price to the underwriting syndicate was below this, of course. The bonds are now quoted at 104¾. Since they were issued they have sold as low as 98 and as high as 105⅝, the former on Aug. 1, 1910, and the latter on June 7, this year.

Vacation Season.

The warm weather has vacated so many desks in the Wall Street district that some companies are finding it difficult to obtain a quorum for Directors' meetings. Many brokers and bankers have taken advantage of the dull season to go abroad, while those who are staying in town usually fail to appear at their offices on Saturday. Henry P. Davison, of J. P. Morgan & Co., will return from Europe to-day. Samuel Untermyer sails to-day and Judge E. H. Gary to-morrow. J. P. Morgan is still in London. Other financial men who are in Europe include Andrew Carnegie, Jacob H. Schiff, Otto H. Kahn, Henry C. Frick, William E. Corey, Charles M. Schwab, George J. Gould, Cornelius Vanderbilt, President R. S. Lovett, Felix M. Warburg, James Speyer, Samuel McRoberts, Judge Moore, and Daniel G. Reid.

Curb's Record Day.

The phenomenal activity yesterday in the new Panama 3s, "when issued," which made the total transactions, as nearly as could be estimated, $3,100,000, made a new record on the Curb. Never before has there been such a day's business in any issue, and never before, it is safe to say, has the total of Curb trading in bonds exceeded the day's business in that department of the Stock Exchange. The new Chinese Railway 5s, with their total of $500,000, and transactions of $27,000 in scattered issues, brought the aggregate transactions up to $3,627,000. This was $404,500 greater than the day's bond transactions on the Stock Exchange. Needless to say, the trading in Stock Exchange bonds was more diversified than on the Curb, where, outside of the two active issues, trading was limited to three others.

Exchange May Get Panamas.

The fat pickings the Curb has had for a month in the Panama 3s, "when issued," may not last until July 1, when the new bonds will first become available to the successful bidders. Curb men were speculating yesterday on the possibility of the Stock Exchange taking them in advance of their issuance, on the "when issued" basis. This was done last January with the new city 4¼s, which were traded in on the Exchange in the shape of "when issued" contracts for two weeks before the temporary certificates were issued. In the six weeks during which the Panamas have been on the Curb transactions have totaled, including yesterday's phenomenal market, $10,324,000 par value.

THE SOUTH OPPOSES LADING BILL PLANS

MORE ASKED OF RAILROADS

Objections of Southern Bankers Likely to Result in Modifications of Bankers' Committee Reforms.

It developed yesterday after a meeting of bankers from various cities interested in the proposal to establish a central checking station for cotton bills of lading that the South is strongly opposed to the suggestion made by the Liverpool Cotton Conference Committee. The Liverpool banks, having in mind the losses suffered through purchases of fraudulent bills of lading of Knight, Yancey & Co. and Steele, Miller & Co., are desirous of having bills guaranteed by the New York institutions.

A sub-committee of the Bill of Lading Committee of the American Bankers' Association invited representatives from the various centres particularly interested in cotton to attend a conference this week at the Bankers' Trust Company. The committee has been trying for several months to devise a system for safeguarding the issuance of bills of lading against cotton. It is understood that the Chicago and Eastern representatives at the conference favored a plan providing a central checking station, but that the Southern delegates see in this the loss of considerable business.

At yesterday's session of the bankers the following was agreed upon:

> The conference thoroughly discussed the plan submitted for verification through a central office, proposed to be established by the Liverpool Cotton Conference Committee of 1907, and concluded that the method carried with it certain vague responsibilities, which are likely to lead to litigation and contention in the future, and that these elements of doubt must be cleared up by the Liverpool Committee to the entire satisfaction of the American Committee before it can be considered.
> The committee, however, agreed that greater safeguards should be required of transportation companies in the issuance of negotiable bills of lading for merchandise of all kinds, and it approves the methods of safeguarding the issuance of bills of lading proposed in the agreement being signed by the railroads, and will assist and co-operate with all the various interests in the passage and enforcement of Federal and State laws, and railway commission regulations leading to greater safety in the handling of negotiable documents for all parties concerned.

Solomon Wexler, Vice President of the Whitney-Central National Bank of New Orleans, was outspoken against the proposed plan for guaranteeing cotton bills. He said after the meeting yesterday that Southern bankers see no reason for changing the present system, which offers all the security necessary if the foreign buyers exercise reasonable diligence in making inquiries. He said that no bank in the South extended credit to the two brokerage firms which sold their fraudulent bills abroad, and that only carelessness on the part of the Liverpool institutions was responsible for their losses.

"This outcry is a tempest in a teapot," said Mr. Wexler. "It will soon quiet down, and the old system will continue to prove satisfactory. The proposed scheme is vague and entirely inadequate. It imposes unfair requirements on the bankers. We see no reason why one class of bills should be validated unless others are as well. If Liverpool is uneasy over American cotton bills, her bankers can send over the money for purchases made here. The bills of lading are an accommodation on the part of the cotton people, who are extending the credit. If the proposed plan were adopted it would take business away from the South, Liverpool must have Southern cotton unless her mills are to be shut down and thousands of people thrown out of employment, and we see no reason why she should not pay for it in the regular way. Her mills have already contracted for 2,000,000 bales of this season's crop, against which they have sold cloth for future delivery."

The objections raised by Southern bankers may result in important modifications of the plan drawn up by the American Bankers' Association committee. The New York institutions are inclined to accede to the Liverpool committee's demands.

The bankers present at yesterday's conference were A. Breton of the German-American National Bank, New Orleans; Solomon Wexler of the Whitney-Central National Bank, New Orleans; Mason Smith of the Commercial Germania Savings and Trust Company, New Orleans; R. B. Snowden of the Bank of Commerce and Trust Company, Memphis; Mr. Howard of Inman, Akers and Inman, Atlanta, Ga.; Nathan Adams of the American Exchange National Bank, Dallas; Fielding Smith of the City Bank and Trust Company, Austin, Texas; Mr. Brown, representing the Georgia Cotton Company, Albany, Ga.; George Schuckher of the Mercantile Trust Company, St. Louis; Mr. Ross of the Philadelphia National Bank, Philadelphia; Mr. Lehman of the Tradesmens National Bank, Philadelphia; J. J. Arnold of the First National Bank, Chicago; H. G. P. Deans of the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company, Chicago; Charles Mather of the Transportation Mutual Insurance Company, New York City; Gilbert G. Thorne of the National Park Bank, N. Y.; J. E. Gardin of the National City Bank, N. Y., and Fred I. Kent of the Bankers Trust Company, N. Y.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Important Deal in the Times Square Section—Maiden Lane Building in a $1,000,000 Trade—Big Midtown Lease Pending—Fordham University Sells Building.

Activity in the real estate market was characterized yesterday by a big downtown transaction involving the sale of the twelve-story Myers Building in Maiden Lane, while in the Times Square section a good deal was announced in Forty-fifth Street, between Sixth Avenue and Broadway, in the sale of the Werner Hotel.

The downtown transaction included a trade of properties in which the old Langdon apartment house, at 157 and 159 West 124th Street, near Seventh Avenue, reported sold a few days ago, was given in part payment. The latter building has been owned since 1904 by the Inter-State Land Holding Company, the corporation controlling the realty in this city of Frederick B. Ayres of Boston. It figured in the recent deal at about $200,000, and has been taken by the S. F. Myers Realty Company, Jerome A. Myers, President, who has sold to Mr. Ayres the Myers Building, which has been valued at $750,000 and brings in an annual rental of $65,000 a year. The structure occupies a plot, 45 by 140, at 47 and 49 Maiden Lane. It was built about six years ago. The Langdon, which is a ten-story apartment house, adjoins the old Harlem Casino, recently altered into a theatre, and it is to be altered by the new owner for business. The deal was negotiated by the Charles F. Noyes Company and Daniel Birdsall & Co., the combined properties representing close to $1,000,000.

The Hotel Werner, at 132 to 134 West Forty-fifth Street, on plot 35 by 100.5, has been bought by Paul Salvin, proprietor of the Garden restaurant at Seventh Avenue and Fiftieth Street. It was sold by Charles Laue, who has held the property at $175,000. E. H. Ludlow & Co. negotiated the deal. It is an eight-story structure adjoining the Hudson Theatre and is diagonally opposite the new twelve-story loft known as the Forty-fifth Street Exchange recently completed and sold by John E. Olsen to William Crawford for investment.

John Street Alteration.

It was announced yesterday that the property at 50 to 56 John Street, recently sold by Charles B. Van Valen, has been bought by Edward A. Schmidt of Philadelphia. The plot is occupied by three old structures, and the new owner is planning to convert them into one building for business uses.

JEROME AND DE FORD HAVE ANOTHER TILT

Assistant District Attorney Attacks the Administration of the ex-District Attorney.

TELLS ABOUT THE ICE CASE

Court Tries in Vain to Suppress the Wrangle—No Progress in Poultry Trust Prosecution.

An attempt by ex-District Attorney Jerome yesterday to contradict the statements made against him in open court by Assistant District Attorney De Ford on Monday resulted in another tilt between the two lawyers. Mr. De Ford not only repeated his statements, but cited incidents to support his contention that Mr. Jerome had not conducted the District Attorney's office properly.

The tilt on Monday was a result of remarks Mr. Jerome had persistently made about the Assistant District Attorney during the trial of eighteen members of the so-called Poultry Trust, who are before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions charged with attempting to obtain a monopoly of the live poultry trade in this city. Mr. De Ford's anger was further aroused by Mr. Jerome's contention that the big packing-houses were behind the prosecution of his clients.

The trial has been going on for three weeks, and only one witness has been on the stand. He is George E. Brown, Secretary of the New York Live Poultry Commission Merchants' Association, or Poultry Trust, and his examination has been prolonged, Mr. De Ford contends, by the almost incessant objections of Mr. Jerome. All through the trial Mr. Jerome has referred to the Assistant District Attorney as the "gentleman from Kansas," a name which is particularly irritable to Mr. De Ford. Many of the chickens being shipped to this city come from that State.

As soon as court opened yesterday Mr. Jerome asked permission to reply to Mr. De Ford's remarks on the previous day and Judge Rosalsky concurred, Mr. De Ford asking that he be heard also. Mr. Jerome then read the opinion handed down by Judge Richard Hahn after the charges which had been made against him while in office had been investigated. Mr. Jerome ended his speech by saying:

"I had no idea of criticising the way the District Attorney has developed this case, but I feel that I must say that Mr. De Ford is conducting a fanatical prosecution and that his attitude is that of a fanatic.

Thrusts at Mr. Jerome.

Mr. De Ford was on his feet at once and, looking straight at Mr. Jerome, said with much heat.

"I resent the imputation that this prosecution is a fanatical one. As Assistant Deputy Attorney General I worked in the Ice Trust case. I saw the distinguished District Attorney Jerome then and he referred me to Mr. Smythe, his assistant. I laid 150 complaints against the American Ice Company before Mr. Smythe and they all showed restraint of trade. The distinguished gentleman [Mr. Jerome] said he would give the matter some consideration. Afterward he declared that there had been no violation of the law by the ice company.

"Your Honor, of all the farcical investigations I've seen made I know of none like that one. I soon saw that the District Attorney was belittling the matter and that his purpose was not to reveal but to conceal. It was easy to see that the people of the city could expect no relief from him, and so I reported to my superior. The Attorney General said there ought to be a prosecution, and I made a statement to the Governor and the Attorney General was assigned to take up the matter. I informed Mr. Smythe of this and he said the Grand Jury was ready."

Turning to the jury, Mr. De Ford continued:

"Gentlemen, I was soon convinced that there was a faction in that Grand Jury which held a brief for Mr. Jerome. We had been invited by this distinguished gentleman into a cul-de-sac. The Grand Jury refused to indict.

"Mr. Jerome had Nathan Vidaver arrested and took him into the ante-room of the Grand Jury. Mr. Vidaver was then engaged as a Special Deputy Attorney General in the Kissena Park land fraud investigation, which was of the utmost importance. The arrest of Mr. Vidaver by Mr. Jerome, in my opinion, was merely to humiliate and cover up whatever was taking place before the Grand Jury.

"At my suggestion Mr. James W. Osborne was employed. I knew him to be absolutely honest and knew that he could not be persuaded, wheedled, or controlled by this distinguished gentleman, who prates so much about the ethics of his profession, walks into court, and of his own motion causes the dismissal of the indictment against Mr. Vidaver. The opinion of this gentleman of a prosecution of this character is absolutely worthless. I made the retort I did when he challenged the administration of this office.

"How dare he attack the integrity of this administration? What about the Milk Trust conviction, the Kosher Chicken Trust matter, for both of which Mr. Jerome was the attorney, and then the White Slave cases? This matter was earnestly taken up by the present administration and earnestly investigated, Mr. Jerome again appearing for the other side. What about William R. Montgomery of the Hamilton Bank? The indictment slumbered and this administration brought about Montgomery's conviction. Furthermore, the Ice Trust was subsequently convicted as a corporation and paid a fine of $5,000, which I believe they have settled without appeal.

No Apologies for Kansas.

"Gentlemen of the jury, it is true that I come from Kansas, and I have no apologies to make. It is true that I imbibed some political ideas in my native State, and I have no apologies to make about that, either, to this distinguished gentleman, (turning and bowing to Jerome,) or in fact to any one else."

Throughout Mr. De Ford's address Judge Rosalsky kept rapping for order, but no attention was paid, and it was not until Mr. De Ford had finished that the Judge got a chance to speak. He then told the jury to disregard all that had passed between counsel. He had no sooner finished than Mr. Jerome was on his feet and talking.

"As I stated yesterday," said Mr. Jerome, "there is no desire on my part even to question the integrity of this administration, so, therefore, I could not have sat up all night, as Mr. De Ford has intimated, in order to make my mind up to withdraw any remarks this morning. What I have said has been met by violent hysteria on the part of the prosecution and is absolutely unnecessary.

"Now, far from any intention upon my part of inflicting anything that might tend to reflect upon the District Attorney, I am perfectly well aware of the circumstances under which a certain regiment was supposed to go to the front in a war in which this country was involved, but I have scrupulously avoided any reference to that."

Mr. De Ford was immediately on his feet, flushed with anger, as the remarks made by Mr. Jerome referred to an article in a magazine by Gen. Funston of Kansas in which he told how Mr. De Ford, while Adjutant of the Twenty-second Kansas Infantry, resigned his commission at the close of the Spanish-American War and how the regiment was subsequently sent to the Philippine Islands. Looking at Mr. Jerome, Mr. De Ford said:

"I beg of you to refer to the matter now. Do not think that you have any information that I would not be very glad to have you give to anybody. You cannot make good that assertion, and I challenge you to attempt to do so. You make remarks of this character, but they are false and you dare not attempt to make good on it, and I defy you to do so."

Mr. De Ford said later that while District Attorney of Franklyn County, Kansas, the Spanish-American War broke out and he raised Company K of the Twenty-second, and was then appointed Adjutant of the regiment. The company or regiment was never called to the front and upon the declaration of peace he resigned his commission. The company was later sent to the Philippine Islands, but there was no war, and he did not know that the Government intended to send the company away when he resigned.

Mr. Jerome then made a motion to have the witness Brown restrained from answering any further questions in regard to his belief that the Chicago pork packers were intending to invade the New York live poultry market.

Judge Rosalsky denied the motion and again instructed the jury to disregard them.

TAFT HERE; SAW 'PINAFORE.'

Goes to Yale To-day—No Politics, It's Said, in His New York Visit.

President Taft came to New York last evening and spent the night at the home of his brother, Henry W. Taft, 36 West Forty-eighth Street, after being present with a party at the Casino Theatre, where "H. M. S. Pinafore" is being given.

This morning the President will leave for New Haven to attend the Yale University commencement and a meeting of the Yale corporation. To-morrow the president will be back in New York to speak to the New York Bankers' Association and the Canadian Club of New York at Manhattan Beach. To-morrow night the President will sail from Sea Gate in the Mayflower and go to Fall River, Mass., where on Friday afternoon he will make an address at the two-hundredth anniversary of the New England cotton industry.

Friday night the President will be the guest of the Conservative Club at Providence, R. I. He will then come back to New York on the Mayflower, reaching here late Friday night or early Saturday morning, and proceeding direct to Washington.

The President and his party arrived at the Pennsylvania station last evening at 6:15. In the party were his brothers, Henry W. Taft and Horace Taft, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry W. Taft, and his son, Charles Taft. In the party also were his aid, Major Archibald Butt, and several Secret Service men. William F. Flynn of the Secret Service Bureau and half a dozen of his agents met the party at the station. A score of detectives under Capt. McElroy of the West Thirtieth Street Station were scattered around as a guard. The party traveled in the President's car "The Ideal." The train was late, and more time was lost by switching the President's car from Track 7, the regular track for the Washington Express, to Track 4, so that the President and his party would be near an elevator.

Finally the party climbed into four automobiles and went at once to the home of Henry W. Taft, where they had dinner.

No announcement had been made that President Taft was to be at the theatre, and the audience was taken by surprise. He was cheered as he took his seat in the box on the lower left-hand side, and the orchestra struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner." A special innovation during the performance was the introduction of a large etching of King George V., which was held up before the audience by Miss Alice Brady, who plays the part of Hebe, when Eugene Cowles sings "For He Was an Englishman." The President joined heartily in the applause that followed. As the President left the theatre through lines of policemen, detectives, and Secret Service men, three cheers were given for him again.

Although it was rumored that President Taft's visit had something of a political character, he did not see any politicians last night, and, so far as could be learned, he has no appointment to meet any to-morrow.

FIREBUGS BURN A STORE.

Made Good Their Third Threat Against a Small Grocer.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., June 20.—After three unsuccessful attempts to burn the building in which Nicholas Rennis lived with his family and kept a little grocery store at 34 First Street, New Rochelle, incendiaries succeeded last night in burning out the store. Each attempt was preceded by an anonymous note threatening to burn him out if he did not close his store and move out of New Rochelle.

Rennis says he burned the notes when he received them, so that his wife, who is nervous, would not find them, and paid no further attention to the threats. On each of the three previous occasions the fire was applied to the outside of the house, and his collie, which was always locked in the store at night, gave the alarm and the fire was extinguished by Rennis and his sons.

When the dog was captured by dog catchers two weeks ago Rennis and his family moved out of the building, fearing that if it were set afire again the alarm might come too late to save them. Fire Chief Ross found that the door of the store had been forced and oil poured over the floor behind the counter, where the fire started. The interior of the store was wrecked. Chief Ross believes the firebugs are the same that set fire to three other grocery stores in West New Rochelle within a month.

'TWAS SHE PROPOSED, SAYS WIFE WHO SUES

She Adds, However, It Was After She Had Once Refused to Say "Yes" to Dear Edward.

ABANDONED AFTER A TOUR

And Wants a Separation, He Sues for Annulment—Her Letter of Proposal Filed.

Edith Russell Gambier, who is suing Edward V. Gambier for a separation and is being sued by him for the annulment of their marriage, took the stand in her own behalf in the Supreme Court yesterday before Justice Pendleton. She asserted that Gambier abandoned her, after a trip through Europe. She admitted Gambier's statement that they had never sustained to each other the relation of man and wife.

The Gambiers were married on April 10, 1910, at the Church of the Incarnation in this city. She said Gambier had known her parents in Georgia and had proposed to her and been rejected, when she was on a visit to this city. Subsequently she wrote him this letter, under date of Jan. 9, 1890, which she identified on the stand:

> My Dear Edward:—Our letters must have crossed, my letter having reached you about the time I received yours. I don't know whether to go back to New York or not. Why don't you simplify matters by asking me to become Mrs. Edward V. Gambier? Of course, if you hadn't asked me once before, I wouldn't suggest it in this leap-year fashion. I feel that we know each other so much better. I believe I understand you better, and that we could be very happy together.
> I at least have reached the age of knowing my own mind. If I did not know that you were lonely—either for me, or because you are alone—we'll hope the former, I don't believe, however much I wished to come to you I could find the nerve to write to you and suggest such a situation. Mother does not know what I am writing, and I don't know what she would think of me, for I hardly know what to think of myself. What will you say and think? Do you think less of me? How could you know that my feelings to you had changed if I did not tell you? Please do not think less of me, believe me, when I say I am most solemnly in earnest. Can I have been mistaken in your regard for me?
>
> Truly yours,
> EDA.

Gambier replied:

> I could not control my hand to write to you yesterday, because joy possessed me. I am very sure of our happiness. I do not think any less of you. No, I think a thousand times more of you, because of writing this letter. I had ceased to hope that you had turned to me, my precious girl.

Later Gambier went to Georgia and brought her an engagement ring. She wrote, "I love you" on his shirt bosom, she said. She declared that on this meeting his kisses were "light," while her's were "ardent."

In one of her letters put in evidence she described the Atlanta Horse Show and some of the persons present, giving an uncomplimentary description of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, and adding, "I don't blame Elsie French." She professed in this letter to be "flattered" because Gambier had compared her to Blanche Ring, the actress. In another letter to Gambier she requested that he have her lingerie made in Paris. She said she could get none that was satisfactory in Atlanta.

Mrs. Gambier stipulated in one of her ante-nuptial letters that she would have to be allowed to go away on a trip once a year unaccompanied by her husband, and also be allowed to go to her home at Atlanta. She added: "I think you must understand how much independence I will have to give up." Gambier asked her if the marriage might not be performed by a clergyman who was a friend of his. She sent him a long telegram stating that she would be married only by an Episcopal minister in an Episcopal church and would brook no further argument on the question. In the letter which followed she wrote:

> You're only the bridegroom, and you have nothing to say about the wedding. Be a good man and just resign yourself to the fact that this is not your party. Please don't invite all the Syrians and Persians you know. As for Saturday being the most fashionable day, somebody has been giving you some ancient dope on that subject.

She instructed Gambier to hint to friends likely to give presents that silverware would be most acceptable.

After their separation Mrs. Gambier sent three letters to her husband, all of them very short, inclosing bills for her board and lodging. Martin W. Littleton, for the husband, cross-examined her. Augustus Van Wyck is Mrs. Gambier's counsel. Under their lead Mrs. Gambier told and retold the story of her loveless honeymoon.

SHOT AND ROBBED.

Edward Woodnaugh of Suydam Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., while crossing the Pacific Avenue bridge over the Morris Canal in Jersey City about midnight last night, came on twenty-year-old Walter Reilly of 103 Lafayette Street lying senseless on the bridge walk. He got an ambulance and had Reilly taken to the City Hospital, where he recovered consciousness and said that he had been held up, shot, and robbed.

Reilly had a bullet wound in the chest near the heart and Dr. Broderick said his condition was serious. Reilly said he had started across the bridge just before midnight after having spent the early evening at a lodge meeting, when some one struck him on the head from behind. As he turned around his assailant fired at him. Reilly said that his watch and $30 were missing.

As Woodnaugh found Reilly about midnight it is believed that the young man's assailant could not have been far away and perhaps fled on hearing Woodnaugh approach.

FIGHT COURT HOUSE BILL.

Lawyers Protest Against the Measure as Subversive of Public Opinion.

The Court House Site Committee of the Bar Association sent letters yesterday to the Assembly Rules Committee and all the members of the lower house of the Legislature denouncing the Stilwell bill as an attempt to obtain by indirection what its backers have failed to obtain directly—the location of the Court House in City Hall Park. The committee also demands as a public right a hearing before the Rules Committee before it acts on the bill.

The Stilwell bill provides that if the Court House Board and Board of Estimate do not agree on a site within four months the Court House Board shall have it built on the location of the present structure. It is pointed out that the Court House Board might refuse to agree to any site outside the park which the Board of Estimate might suggest, and, a disagreement having been effected, proceed to put the building in the park which it has already recommended. The letter says further:

> The bill takes from the City Government all power to determine the area to be occupied by the building, or to determine its character, style, or cost. This would be a gross violation of the home rule principle. The acts of the Court House Board should remain subject to the supervision or concurrence of the regularly constituted city authorities, as they are to-day.
>
> City Hall Park is not the proper site. More, rather than less, open space is needed at that increasingly congested centre of the city. The Court House should be located not in, but on the edge of, or near, that park, which, by appropriate treatment, may be made a fine public square, to the great advantage of the public and private buildings of the neighborhood and of the city generally.
>
> City Hall Park is too expensive a site for the new building. It would be a sacrifice of land of far greater value to the city as a square than if used as a building site. Other good sites in the same neighborhood can be procured at less sacrifice, and whose use would develop the convenience and beauty of the city, instead of retarding them.
>
> The new Court House in close proximity to City Hall would greatly injure the latter. This building, by reason of its beauty and historical associations, should have its setting enhanced instead of damaged.
>
> New York City has carefully considered the question of a Court House in City Hall Park, and does not want it there. It has said so many times, emphatically. And any bill whose effect would be to put it there would be a violation of the rights of the city by the Legislature.
>
> The Board of Estimate has the question under consideration and the city has assurances that the board intends to act with respect thereto as soon as possible, and that a better solution of the problem is to be expected.
>
> The present City Government should not be charged with the delays arising out of the failure of preceding administrations to progress toward a proper plan. While delay is most unfortunate, it would be still more unfortunate to embark upon the erection of a $10,000,000 building upon a site that is originally unsatisfactory and is only chosen as a last resort and that would become increasingly unsatisfactory as time goes on.
>
> The long-continued effort to locate the Court House in City Hall Park against the will of the city has delayed and is interfering with the adoption of proper plans with respect to the location and construction of the building. The public will lend its support to well-considered and far-sighted plans, in spite of the expense involved. It will back a good thing if it is to get its money's worth. But it is only irritated and divided by the persistent effort to put through the short-sighted and wasteful plan of erecting a huge and expensive building on an inadequate site, to the irretrievable damage of the City Hall and of sacrificing a potentially great and beautiful square.

The letter is signed by Charles F. Bostwick, Chairman, and Albert S. Bard, Secretary, of the committee.

The Aldermen were asked yesterday to advise the Board of Estimate that it reject the report of the Court House Board, which favors the use of City Hall Park for a Court House site. The resolution was introduced by Alderman Courtlandt Nicoll and it requested the board to designate some conveniently located place, outside of any present public park, on which a Court House may be erected and that the present overcrowded and unsanitary building be abandoned and removed.

Alderman Dowling opposed the resolution on the ground that the Stilwell bill is pending in the Legislature, and it was referred to the Committee on Buildings.

DIVORCEE'S PLEA DENIED.

Court Refuses to Help Mrs. Jewell's Breach of Promise Suit.

Mrs. Caroline S. Jewell, who was divorced by James A. Jewell and forbidden under the decree to marry in this State during his life time, met a rebuff yesterday at the hands of Supreme Court Justice Guy. She filed a $25,000 suit for breach of promise against a physician in the Bronx. She said he had married another woman after courting her, and asked to have him examined before trial on the amount of his property and income.

The physician's lawyer denounced the attempted examination as part of a scheme to harass and annoy his client. Justice Guy heard the account of the woman's divorce with amazement and questioned her lawyer about it. After the examination he said:

"This court is asked to do an illegal thing. It cannot grant the application for an examination of the defendant. That ends the proceedings. You might as well ask me to help collect a gambling debt. It cannot be done."

To Stop Smoking Automobiles.

It was decided yesterday that hereafter the traffic policemen shall act in unison with the Health Department policemen in putting a stop to the emission of smoke by automobiles. Heretofore only the latter tried to end the trouble, but so many violations have been discovered recently that the National Highways Protective Society urged the department to have the traffic men issue summonses to chauffeurs driving smoking cars. This will be done in the future and it is hoped that the nuisance will be greatly abated.

DANISH ENGINEER DROPS OUT OF SIGHT

NOT A MAN TO TRIFLE WITH

Wore a Brown Suit, Is Clean Shaven, and Came Here from Denmark Only a Few Days Ago.

Christian Sandborg, a Dane who had attained some prominence as a mechanical engineer in Copenhagen, has dropped suddenly and completely out of the sight of those who had the best reason to expect word from him. He is a stalwart, blonde man in his late thirties, and his height of 6 feet 3 inches would make it no easy thing either to handle him roughly or to lose him in a crowd. As far as could be learned yesterday, he was last seen at midnight on Sunday, June 4, passing through the gates at the Grand Central Station, bound for his berth in the 1 o'clock morning express for Boston.

Sandborg is described as wearing a sack suit of brown mixed goods and a derby. He is clean shaven. He came here from Denmark on the Oscar II. and on May 31 put up at the Commercial Hotel in River Street in Hoboken. It was his intention to settle in New York as an expert in lighting and ventilating engineering work. Meanwhile, he agreed to do a rush job for S. H. Woodbridge of West Newton, Mass.

The arrangements for this undertaking were completed in a telegram which the Dane received in Hoboken, directing him to meet Woodbridge in Boston, and on June 4 he told Herman Koehler, the proprietor of the Commercial, that he would be going on the midnight train to Boston. Koehler says that he immediately agreed to escort him to the station. The Hoboken hostelries, which cater for the most part to recent arrivals from the other side, often arrange not only to meet their guests at the steamer, but to see them off to the next point on their journey. Besides this, Koehler said yesterday, he liked Sandborg, and was very glad to pilot him to the station in New York.

When they reached the Grand Central, he says, they learned that every berth on the midnight express had been engaged, so that Sandborg took a berth on the 1 o'clock. There was more than an hour to wait, but the train was made up, so the Dane said good-bye to his friend and passed on through the gates. He had told Koehler that he would be back in a few days to arrange for his work in this city, and he asked permission to leave one of his traveling bags at the Commercial. His trunks had been shipped direct from the steamer to the Grand Central, where he left them, explaining that he knew of no cheaper or easier way to dispose of them temporarily.

The next thing that Koehler heard concerning the Dane was an alarming telegram from Woodbridge. Sandborg had failed to appear in Boston. Did he know why? Did he know anything of his whereabouts? Koehler answered by mail that Sandborg was headed for the sleeping car when he last saw him. He was very much puzzled by the disappearance of the man and Woodbridge seemed even more disturbed. The latter wrote two letters to the officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Road setting forth what he knew and asking them to trace the Dane much as they would a piece of baggage.

The railroad people have asked every one of their employes who might have any information—porters, conductors, and station men. None of them remembered having seen any man answering the furnished description. The inquiries were not started until after ten days had passed, and railroad employes see a good many people in ten days. It was admitted that a man could take a berth and go through to Boston without leaving anything by which his passage could be traced or proved.

Sandborg is believed to have had in his possession some papers of considerable value and an ample supply of money. Koehler says that he never seemed concerned about the cost of anything, though he came over second class and his quarters in Hoboken were modest. He paid his bill before he left, and Koehler noted that, in buying his ticket, he drew out a fifty-dollar bill, but how much more he had he does not know.

It is Koehler's theory that Sandborg reached Boston on the morning of the fifth and that there he met with either accident or foul play. He believes that he may be in some hospital somewhere, sufferings, perhaps, from a lapse of memory. The few days that he had a room at the Commercial he spent for the most part in New York, leaving after breakfast and returning in the middle of the evening. Whether he was with friends then or just seeing the sights, Koehler did not know.

Christian Sandborg showed himself to be a man of good education, and he spoke German and English with considerable ease. It is known that he had a sister, Amalia Simony, whose address is Villa Esra, Kobenhaan Street, Denmark. Her name appears on the flyleaf of a little prayerbook which was in the bag Sandborg left at the hotel.

Another Warner to Raise the Flag.

Richmond H. Warner, son of the late J. Gould Warner, adopted son of the Society of the War of 1812, has received permission from Park Commissioner Stover to raise the flag in the block house in Central Park on Independence Day. J. Gould Warner raised the flag on Independence Day for twenty-seven years, and now this honor has been handed down to his son.

PROMOTER HELD FOR FRAUD.

O. F. Spaete Arrested on Information Supplied by His Stenographer.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., June 20.—Oscar F. Spaete, promoter of the General Electric Inspection Company, who says he is President of similar companies in Chicago, New York, and St. Louis, and who induced residents of Detroit to invest with him by showing references from those cities, is under arrest here charged with fraud. The information leading to his arrest was given by Mrs. Eva Marks, who was his stenographer, and who is said to be the wife of a wealthy patent medicine manufacturer of Bloomington, Ill.

Spaete, it is alleged, induced F. C. Stack and F. A. Schneider of the Packard Motor Company to give up good places to become officers of his concern.

What Mrs. Marks revealed to the detectives has been kept secret, but her information, it is alleged, related to Spaete's business deals and caused his arrest this morning. When detectives sought Mrs. Marks they found she had left the city. Spaete asserts he was for four years associated with Charles T. Yerkes.

Among his personal effects is a copyrighted manuscript of a four-act play, "The Man and the Deal," written under the name of Dell Ovenia Neel of Boston. Letters in Spaete's possession seem to prove that he was the author.

ENDS HUTCHINS LUNACY SUIT

Proceedings Quashed Against Editor Now with Wife at Narragansett.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The lunacy proceedings instituted some time ago by Mrs. Rose Keeling Hutchins against her husband, Stilson Hutchins, were quashed by Justice Ashley M. Gould in Equity Court No. 2 here yesterday. The application of Mrs. Hutchins to have a receiver appointed to manage the estate of her husband, valued at $3,000,000, also was denied.

Mrs. Hutchins based lunacy proceedings on correspondence which she had had with the trustee of her husband's estate, in which the trustee admitted doubts as to the sanity of Mr. Hutchins.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins are now at Narragansett Pier, R. I. Mr. Hutchins in earlier years was well known in the newspaper field, having founded The Dubuque (Iowa) Herald, The St. Louis Times, and The Washington Post.

HELD FOR BEATING CHILD.

Magistrate Repented of Leniency to Mrs. Morris and Reopened Case.

When Mrs. Anna Morris of 477 Hudson Avenue, Brooklyn, appeared yesterday before Magistrate Geismar, in the Adams Street Court, to answer to the charge of felonious assault for beating her 12-year-old stepdaughter, Loretta, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children had the Magistrate reduce the charge to assault in the third degree, and the woman was held in $1,000 bail for the Court of Special Sessions. The Magistrate did this reluctantly, but on the argument of the society's agents that the Grand Jury would soon finish its work and the case would drag along all Summer if it were not disposed of quickly in the Court of Special Sessions he reduced the charge.

Almost immediately he thought that there might be something wrong, and he ordered the case reopened.

When the case came up again Mrs. Morris pleaded not guilty to the felonious assault charge and was held in $1,000 bail for a hearing this afternoon.

Mrs. Morris did not get bail and was sent to the Raymond Street Jail.
